The County Department of Building Inspection reports the issuance of 69 permits during the month, as compared with 14 in January, 16 in February, 18 in March, and 45 in April.

New residences accounted for 15 of the permits, residential additions and remodeling accounted for 22 permits, decks and porches accounted for one permit, residential outbuildings accounted for six permits, and residential garages accounted for ten permits.

Only two permits were issued for new commercial buildings. Commercial additions and remodeling accounted for five permits, and commercial outbuildings accounted for two permits.

Permits were also issued for three demolitions and three mobile home additions.

Eight permits each were issued for work in the City of Charlevoix and Eveline Township. Boyne Valley Township and the City of East Jordan each accounted for seven permits, Boyne City accounted for six permits, and Evangeline Township accounted for four permits.

Three permits were issued in each township of Charlevoix, Hudson, Marion, Norwood, Peaine, St. James, and South Arm. Two permits were issued in each township of Hayes, Melrose, and Wilson. Bay Township and the Village of Boyne Falls accounted for one permit each.

With boxes of fudge in hand, and cameras strapped around their necks, these "fudgies" were a popular entry in the Horton Bay parade. For more photos turn to page 6.

And the winners are...

Horton Bay - Oh, sure, the king and queen were ill and couldn't participate in the parade. And so what if no one entered the beard contest. The old fashioned parade held here Friday was still a big success, organizers said.

In a front page article on Saturday, the Detroit News poked a little fun at Horton Bay's celebration of July 4th because of the absence of the king and queen and the Horton Bay Marching Band - among others - from the parade. But, organizers viewed it differently.

"We had 50 entries and that's fantastic," said one woman.

George Housel served as Grand Marshall of the parade. He rode with Sheriff George Lasater. Ed and Eva Koteskey were selected as king and queen, but due to illness they could not partake in the festivities.

Several awards were issued following the parade by the Horton Bay Parade Committee and the four judges of the parade - Ken Winter, Ann Ekstrom, Trish Wright and Karen Brown. Winners included:

Horton Bay Citizen Awards - [illegible] Chamberlain and Mary Crosserfield.

Horton Bay Merit Awards - Bill [illegible] and Bucky Harris.

Funniest Entry - 1) Jodi and Jon Hartwell and Ashliegh Norris (Human Buffet Service), 2) David Fair (Horton Bay Smilemobile).

Best Horse - 1) Bill Blume, 2) Frank and Jan Leist.

Best Horse and Buggy - 1) Gail and Eddie Leist.

Most Original Costume Award - 1) Horton Bay Generals softball team (1880 B.C. team), 2) Weber kids and friends (Snow White and Seven Dwarves).

Best Old Fashioned Costume - 1) Judy and Harry Caldecott.

Best Old Car - 1) James [illegible] ([illegible] VW convertible), 2) Mildred and Dwight Sumner (1937 John Deere tractor).

Youngest Resident - Kyle Douglas [illegible].

Most Unique Animal Award - 1) Laurie Fair and Michele Carl with a [illegible].

Best Bicycle Award - 1) Jeramy Bohne, 2) Gretchen and Garrett Bohne.

In addition, Harriet Housel was given a "special acknowledgment."

Elmer Braun was the emcee for the parade.

That's the date when 19 and 20 year olds will begin registering for any future military draft. Registrations will be taken for two weeks, concluding on Aug. 2. Men born in 1960 are being asked to register the first week and men born in 1961 are asked to register the second week.

Charlevoix Postmaster Joe Schwartzfisher will join other northern Michigan postmasters in Gaylord this week for a briefing on registration procedures. He told the Courier last week that he had not yet received the registration forms, but Washington sources have described them as "a long question and answer sheet".

Lois Hodgson will work with the girls on modeling and walking routines for the event. Mrs. Hodgson will also be in charge of the music for the pageant.

Mrs. Hufford said that judges, including out-of-town adjudicators, have been contacted and will be here to interview the candidates prior to the formal program at 8 p.m. Thursday, July 24.

She will then attend the Miss Michigan Scholarship Pageant in behalf of the city in 1982.

"Much lies in store for Miss Charlevoix in the immediate future. Appeals Board denies permit to Montessori House

The Charlevoix City Council - acting as the Zoning Board of Appeals - Monday denied the issuance of a special use permit that would have allowed the Charlevoix Montessori Children's House to locate at 201 E. Garfield.

The appeals board voted 5-1 to deny the permit. Jeff Porter was the lone dissenter.

Residents in the neighborhood - represented by attorney Mike Gibbons - argued that the child care center would cause traffic congestion, noise and parking problems - among other things - at the Bergmann Center site. Residents also claimed it would hurt property values. Several asked that the building be converted to single family use.

In the end, it was the parking - or the lack of - that swayed the board's vote.

A parking plan presented to the board by Katie Donovan, directress of the Montessori House, showed four angle parking spaces for the staff and four drop-off spaces - as recommended by the Charlevoix Planning Commission. However, Gibbons noted, the four staff parking slots extended to the west property line, a foot and a half from the Frank Gallagher residence. The four drop-off spots, Gibbons contended, also violated the city ordinance because it showed tandem parking. In addition, he said, the drop-off arrangement was dangerous since vehicles would have to back out on to E. Garfield.

Both Ray Wood and Earl Muma said "insufficient parking" was the main reason they voted to deny the permit. Bob Timms said traffic also presented a problem.

"I think it would generate a lot more traffic than that residential district should bear," he said. "If they did have 40 children enrolled (projected figure) and they came in separate vehicles, that would mean 80 trips to the school - although I'm sure it would be something less. But still that would put a lot of extra traffic on that street.

"And I don't see how this parking plan can work since parking up to the property line is prohibited in our city ordinance."

Shirley Roloff cited traffic, parking and the unsafe egress and ingress (for drop-offs) as her reasons for denial. She also said that the child care center would be "disturbing to the neighbors" and could affect property values.

Ivan Whitley said simply he was "overwhelmed by the opposition of the neighbors."

The meeting was held in the Community Room instead of Council Chambers as more people could be accommodated. Besides a large contingent of neighbors opposing the issuance of the permit, there were several in attendance who supported the Montessori's contention. But the only member of the Zoning Board of Appeals who sided with the Montessori House was Porter.

"I think this is an overblown issue," Porter said. "I'm sorry to see it (permit) turned down.

"I can sympathize with the neighbors but I think their fears are basically unfounded. I think they're making a mountain out of a mole hill."

Porter said the city has not received one complaint about the Montessori House since it opened in the basement of the First Congregational Church nearly two years ago.

In fact, Scott Beatty said that Rev. Ray Giffin often writes his sermons while the Montessori House is in session.

After the vote was taken, City Attorney Frank Hoffman asked each board member to publicly state their reason for the way they voted in case the decision is appealed to Circuit Court. Hoffman told the board that if it is appealed and the court finds the board's evidence for denying the permit insufficient, it can be sent back to the board for further review.

Two weeks ago, the planning commission - by a narrow 4-3 vote - recommended the permit be granted. The commission set forth a number of stipulations in its approval that the child care center would have to meet. 1) the center could operate only between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Monday-Friday and that the drop-off of children be staggered, 2) carpools be used, 3) four staff parking spaces be provided along with four spaces for drop-off, 4) no cars be parked on grassy areas, 5) snow be removed only during the hours of 7 a.m. and 8 p.m., 6) the total enrollment not exceed 40, and 7) only one (parent) meeting be held monthly. The commission did not

Merger hearing August 27

Dave Knight named editor of Courier

Dave Knight has been named editor of the Charlevoix Courier, General Manager Ken Winter announced today (Wednesday).

Knight, 28, succeeds Dennis Chase. Chase will be returning to the Petoskey News-Review as a staff writer.

While editor of the Reedsburg Times-Press, Knight received Wisconsin Newspaper Association awards for Best Local Column, Best Editorial Page and General Excellence in the association's weekly newspaper division.

He attended Syracuse University and the University of Wisconsin at Madison. He is a 1973 graduate of the University of Wisconsin, where he majored in journalism and wildlife ecology.

Knight worked as magazine editor of the Wisconsin Wildlife Federation for three years before accepting the editor's job at the Reedsburg Times-Press. For the past six years, Knight also served as assistant director of a University of Wisconsin conservation education preserve and camp.

Knight and his wife, Krista, will reside in Charlevoix. Krista is a violin [illegible].

"Krista and I are real excited," Knight said about his new assignment. "We've met some tremendous people in the short time we've been here. They've been warm and helpful, making us feel at home.

"Working at the Courier will be a challenge, but I'll be working with good people and I'm excited about that, too."

Health is primary concern of senior citizens

By Peg Ohle

What are the concerns of senior citizens in Charlevoix County and the surrounding area?

In order, they are physical and mental health, economic stability, independent living, housing, mobility and access, socialization and interactions, service coordination and resource development, and lack of understanding and knowledge about aging problems and programs.

These concerns were set forth and put in order of priority by the Policy Board of the State Area Agency on Aging, the Northwest Regional Council on Aging, and each of the 10 county aging organizations.

One of the methods used in obtaining information to be used in setting up the priorities was a survey of 500 senior citizens in northwest Michigan. Fifty seniors in each county were interviewed on a randomly selected basis. They were asked such questions as the size and content of their families, employment and income, housing arrangements, interaction (getting out to socialize with others), health and nutrition, personal and household care, and recreation.

Almost two-thirds of the survey respondents were females. One fourth of them were 60 to 64, one half were 65 to 74, and another one fourth were over 75. Almost half of them had not graduated from high school, due primarily to the agricultural background of the area. Nine percent of the respondents who had retired had some other paid employment, half of those obtaining their jobs after age 55. Eighty percent of these senior citizens live in detached single-family houses and another ten percent live in rental homes.

Since 27 percent of the respondents heat their homes with fuel oil, the high cost of this commodity was a major concern. Over one-fourth of those interviewed indicated that their homes were in need of repair involving considerable work such as painting, structural repairs and insulation. They indicated that necessary repairs were not being made because of the high cost of materials and labor.

Forty-six percent of those surveyed said that they lived in the country or on a farm, which, with the rising transportation costs, means they are more isolated than ever.

Two-thirds of the surveyed seniors indicated that other than immediate members of the household, they interacted most frequently with their friends and children living within a five mile radius. Seventy-five percent indicated that they rely on their children or grandchildren or their spouse for assistance if they are sick or disabled.

On the other hand, six percent said that no one was available to assist them in such a situation. Among those who required some form of medical attention in the previous month, six percent stated they were unable to obtain the necessary care, identifying as the primary reason the cost of medical care.

Since 20 to 25 percent of the senior citizens in northwest Michigan subsist at or below the poverty level, all of the above areas fall into line.

The Northwest Area Agency on Aging is responsible for the planning and administrative support of programs funded through the Older Americans Act, and recently devised a three-year plan to help meet the needs of local senior citizens as they have been identified.

In Charlevoix County, the County Commission on Aging is the administering body of services to the aging. The two major services at this time are the nutrition program, through which meals are served at four different sites throughout the county, and the transportation program, through which bus transportation is provided on a call basis.

Three members of the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging serve on the Area Agency Advisory Council: Thora Kotowich of East Jordan, Marty Paul of Boyne City, and Art Sawerski of Boyne Falls, who is the paid director of the County Commission.

Selling Your House By Gene Stania

FALLING FOR FRILLS

Many people go househunting in a remarkably casual way and sometimes end up making costly mistakes. One of the mistakes a househunter can make is to buy the frill instead of the house. All too often a family will fall in love with an eye-catching feature and buy the wrong house. This mistake happens frequently and in all price ranges.

Families skip over careful consideration of the major factors because something minor has really grabbed them. The lure may be a charming fireplace, a glamorous lighting fixture, a garage door opener, or even a unique tree or shrub in bloom.

Yielding to superficial attractions like these can result in your family winding up with a thoroughly unsuitable house. Bear in mind that these same alluring features can usually be added to another house at a relatively small cost, considering the amount of the overall purchase.

Price of gold on rise, jeweler says

John Reusch of Reusch Jewelry, 427 E. Mitchell, Petoskey says the price of gold is on the rise again, and the upward trend is expected to continue for the immediate future.

Reusch says he's been in close contact with gold dealers in New York City who tell him that as interest rates fall gold prices will continue to rise.

"As of June 15th, when I spoke with Marco Polo, president of Marco Polo International, a major gold dealer, the price of gold had reached the $600 mark again," said Reusch, "and as interest rates continue to fall here foreign governments tend to lose faith in the dollar and buy more gold, driving prices up."

"As the recession deepens, interest rates will continue to fall and the price of gold will continue to rise. Once again we will see families selling off their old gold for ready cash."

Reusch says the best gold prices will be offered by jewellers who deal directly with the New York gold traders, and adds, "I have had a long relationship with Marco Polo International which will benefit the gold sellers in our area."

Unemployment at 16.5% in Charlevoix County

Ripple effects of the dramatic downturn in the auto industry have made their way to Charlevoix and many other northwest Michigan communities that supply parts to downstate manufacturing plants.

Unemployment figures for Charlevoix County hovered between 14.8 and 15 percent during the first quarter of 1980. Since April, however, when the reopening of seasonal businesses should normally cause unemployment to go down in this area, the rate has jumped considerably.

Figures obtained from the Michigan Security Employment Commission in Petoskey reveal that 1,525 workers out of a total labor force of 8825 in Charlevoix County were unemployed this past April for an unusually high rate of 17.3 percent. The most recent figures available for Charlevoix, those for May, 1980, show a slight improvement with the unemployment rate dropping to 16.5 percent.

Data Research Center, Inc., a Traverse City research firm, reported this week that auto-related employment for the Northwest Michigan region in March was approximately 2,500, down 33 percent from the same period last year. The drop accounted for 51 percent of the decrease in all manufacturing employment in the region.

Layoffs at area auto-related industries are attributed to a 22 percent decline in sales of U.S. produced automobiles accompanied by a 22 percent increase in imported automobile sales. Several Charlevoix County firms provide such supplies as fabric, metal, plastic and electronic components for domestic automobile producers.

Jim Hater, manager of Charlevoix Manufacturing, said this week that half of his normal crew of 40 employees has been laid off since early May.

Charlevoix Manufacturing produces a master cylinder brake piston, a safety component, for General Motors. Hater expressed guarded optimism for the coming months saying that things should pick up this fall after the new model year is unveiled.

Bids to be taken

Bids will be taken in Lansing July 16 on paving the east-west runway at the East Jordan City Airport.

It will be one of 38 highway and airport construction and maintenance projects on which bids will be opened at 10:30 a.m. in the Lansing Civic Center.

The project is expected to cost approximately $100,000 and officials are predicting it will be completed by October.

"I'm pleased that the Department of Transportation is able to move this project forward," said Sen. Mitch Irwin. "It is critical to our economic development and job creation effort. It will improve our tourist traffic capabilities."

McGarry, Dinwiddie join forces

James L. McGarry, CPA, has announced his association in practice with E. Darrell Dinwiddie, CPA.

"Darrell and I are enthusiastic about the level of service we are able to provide our northern Michigan clients in financial, tax and management advisory service areas," McGarry said. "I am proud to be associated with one of the foremost professionals in this part of the state."

McGarry and Dinwiddie will have offices at 301 Michigan Avenue.

It is still "go" for starting operation of the Charlevoix County Transit system on July 21, according to Art Saworski, director of the system.

The seven-bus system will be initiated with an opening ceremony at 11 a.m. on that date in the parking lot of the Boyne City City Hall, where the transit system is headquartered.

The following day, July 22, the system will start its regular runs.

Beginning next Monday, persons hired to drive the buses will participate in an orientation and training period at the Senior Center in East Jordan. The sessions will take place Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, with Tuesday being devoted to behind-the-wheel exercises. Reinstate Shade Tree Commission

On a windless afternoon two weeks ago, I was tooling down E. Dixon Avenue on my bicycle when my reveries were interrupted by a crack followed by a resounding thump.

I stopped short as a gigantic tree limb weighing in the neighborhood of 200 pounds fell in the road just in front of me. Fortunately, no one was underneath and as far as I know I was the only witness.

I pulled my bike over to the curb, dismounted and, with a great deal of effort, hoisted the limb onto Florence Uhrick's front lawn so that the next vehicle along wouldn't tangle with it.

The limb obviously had been dead a good many years because the juncture where it joined the tree was wet and pulpy. The rest of the tree — an ash, I believe — appeared to be in generally good health.

I breathed a prayer of thanks that I hadn't left th house two seconds sooner and that I was riding my old reliable one-speed bike which is a trifle slower than the newer multi-speed models.

If I had been a little faster, this column would have been written on a tombstone in Brookside Cemetery.

All of which is prelude to an appeal to the City Council to reinstate the defunct Shade Tree Commission — post haste.

As you may remember, former Councilwoman [illegible] urged her colleagues on the council to reinstate the commission several years ago when it became apparent that steps should be taken immediately to care for Charlevoix's aging shade trees and replace them with younger specimens wherever necessary.

For several years the commission functioned beautifully. A nursery was even established to assure Charlevoix a continuing supply of shade trees at minimum cost to replace those aging giants which posed a hazard to life and limb.

Unfortunately, conservative elements eventually gained the upper hand in city government and the commission was viewed as an unwarranted expense. When the council failed to appropriate money, the commission died.

Too many city fathers seem to think that because Charlevoix has survived for 75 years with expert tree care, none is needed.

Such thinking, of course, is patently wrong. The city founders saw fit to line our streets with stately hardwoods which have provided shade and beauty for the better part of the century without a great deal of maintenance.

These trees today, however, are past their prime and require considerable attention to prevent them from becoming hazardous to passersby. Many of them should be replaced.

City hall reports that Charlevoix's "general liability" insurance policy probably would cover anyone injured by a limb falling from a shade tree on city property.

But insurance is small compensation for injury or death — particularly when the accident could be prevented by prompt action now by the city council.

Many generations of Charlevoixans have enjoyed our shade trees which have more or less taken care of themselves during their prime growing years. Furthermore, I for one would hate to see a wholesale lumbering operation to replace them all at once.

But I do think it is time to call in expert help, prune limbs that appear to be hazardous and replace those trees that are beyond help.

I hate to think what would have happened if a child had been crossing Dixon Avenue when that gigantic limb fell on a windless afternoon.

Charlevoix Yesterday

Souvenir booklets are not uncommon today, but one type that is no longer seen is that commemorating the end of the school year. The cover of one such booklet is shown above. It was distributed in 1912 by Mary M. Dunlop, teacher at the Nowland Public School. The slogan, "Education is Wealth", dominates the front of the souvenir and another slogan, "Wealth may seek us, but Wisdom must be sought" appears in smaller type at the bottom. Inside, there is a message from the teacher, a list of the 16 students and officers of the School Board, and a poem about "The Close of School." (Booklet courtesy of Ruth Crain Russell)

Max Novak re-elected president

At the re-organizational meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night, Max Novak was re-elected president of the board.

Other officers elected were: Charles A. Elzinga, vice president; Kenneth J. Boss, secretary, and Ardeth Wieland, treasurer.

Boss, who was re-elected to the board, and Steven G. Smith who was elected to fill a vacancy, were sworn into office by President Novak prior to the election.

The dates for meetings were set for 7:30 p.m. every first and third Monday at the high school study hall. All changes will be advertised should they become necessary.

Depositories for various accounts were also named. The First State Bank will be the depository for the Title I account, hot lunch account, old debt service account, new debt service account, central office internal account, high school activities account, middle school internal account, culinary arts account and 1979 [illegible].

The Charlevoix County State Bank will be the depository for the public library account, general fund account and the payroll account.

Signatories for the general fund, old and new debt retirement accounts, 1979 construction and Title I accounts shall be the board president, secretary and treasurer; Vane Smith and Joane Grabaugh, high school activities account; Vincent Chew and Virginia Woods, middle school internal account; Gordon W. VanWieren and Lillian Carr, central office internal account; VanWieren, Judy Boss and Eileen Nunemaker, hot lunch account; Vincent Olach, Judy Boss, Mrs. [illegible], culinary arts account.

Approval was given the hiring of Mrs. Mary Seaman as a part-time English teacher in the high school during the 1980-81 school year.

A change order of the middle school renovation project was approved. The changes were related to the deletion of some lighting fixtures, the installation of a master clock and installation of some wiring. The installation did not result in additional costs.

A special meeting of the board will be held at 12 noon at the school business office on July 10 for the purpose of opening bids on tax anticipation notes. The next regular meeting will be July 14.

What would happen in a real disaster?

Letters

Editor:

[illegible] in Michigan testing the Emergency Plan, pertaining to a disaster at Big Rock.

The exercise showed a good show trained people seeming to have knowledge of what to do, in a prearranged disaster. However the total reliance on phone communication and insufficient space for equipment makes the observer wonder how this drill would have come off should we have a for "real" disaster tomorrow.

Most important of all the people were never given the information as required in NUREG 0654, FEMA Rep. 1, page 42 Chvs. PDR. I am very curious as to why this so important part was neglected for it contains the essence of information needed for the public to avoid confusion, misunderstanding and maybe panic.

The whole drill was based upon the assumption that all people would do exactly do as they were being told. This I find very unlikely, especially when you are dealing with a disaster where all natural instincts can not be relied upon. For radiocommunications are a substance which can neither be [illegible].

For that reason I question the reliability of the time in which evacuation was concluded in the exercise. Furthermore an elementary [illegible] the 5 mile evacuation zone. No provisions were made in this exercise as how to remove those children immediately, for there you have a mass of very susceptible persons.

Public information should be of UTMOST priority for it is only with the understanding of the public that a successful evacuation can be [illegible].

We had one of the "Best" exercises in the country, but as a resident living in Charlevoix County and as a mother of four children of whom three go to a different school and one to a babysitter [illegible] an emergency, nor do my friends who work in Petoskey and have children in the elementary school, cut off on US 31.

The drill concluded that we are a mass of sheep and flunked on not informing the public. By 1.1.81 the law says this information needs to be provided. Some utilities care enough about their neighbors to not wait until [illegible].

Another drill is needed to test the plan [illegible] school is on, we have a festival where our population within 5 miles swells to 20,000.00, where shift changes occur to the manpower conducting the exercise, more than one person becomes "radiated" at Big Rock.

A class 9 scenario has to be written that includes the specific dangers that [illegible] spent fuel pool or a foreign element crashes on the not very unprotected control room at Big Rock before I will [illegible].

Another class was called "Riding the Economic Roller Coaster", which covered basic information on family economics. The other class was called "Is Sex a Four Letter Word?". KEEM: I took a class called "Responsibility in Children Ages 8 to 13". There were 12 children of that age group present and we interviewed them on various subjects. It was most enlightening In the class on "Food Costs and You", we covered comparative prices of different foods, using soy beans for protein, and similar subjects. Murray-Mengel

Lou Ann Murray and Kyle Mengel were married Saturday afternoon, June 28, in the Bible Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Murray of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Mengel of Fairport, New York.

The Rev. Jim E. Lugibihl performed the double-ring ceremony before approximately 100 guests.

Arrangements of white spider mums, pompoms, and baby's breath circled the Unity Candle on the altar

Max Murray gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of chiffon and lace fashioned by her maid of honor, Mary P. Wolf. Her veil of bridal netting and lace was fashioned by her bridesmaid, Candy Metzger. The bride's bouquet was made up of white carnations tipped in blue.

In addition to her maid of honor and bridesmaid, the bride was served by Jennifer Metzger as flower girl and Bobby Simpson as ring bearer.

Daniel Murray, brother of the bride, was best man, Mark Simpson was groomsman, and Ron Simpson and Ron Russell were the ushers.

Music for the ceremony was furnished by Mrs. Jim Fiedler, organist, and Nancy Lugibihl, vocalist.

A reception, hosted by parents and friends, followed the wedding ceremony in the church parlors. The rehearsal dinner was held at the home of Elva Simpson.

The young couple will be in Charlevoix for two weeks, after which they will travel to Kodiak, Alaska, where the bridegroom will be stationed in the Coast Guard.

Nurses receive awards

Cynthia Hoeksema and Peggy Meadows, nurses at the Charlevoix Area Hospital, were presented Citizen Awards Tuesday afternoon by Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater.

According to Lasater, the recipients were on their way to work on May 29 when they came upon a personal injury traffic accident [illegible].

"The two nurses stopped to assist the deputy at the scene and render aid to the injured," Lasater reported. "One of the seriously injured was having serious problems in breathing, the nurses without hesitation administered mouth to mouth resuscitation and CPR to the injured subject for approximately 15 minutes until relieved by the ambulance crew

"In the words of the deputy at the scene and the citizens observing the actions of the two nurses, both Cynthia and Peggy acted in a very cool and professional manner without hesitation."

MOUNT ST. HELENS & THE MIRACLE OF GEMSTONES

You can hardly pick up a magazine or a newspaper without reading news about Mount St. Helens, the volcano which recently erupted in Washington state. You've probably heard about the tragedies resulting from it and seen awesome photographs of the eruption and its aftermath.

I don't know whether or not you're aware of it, but such volcanic eruptions have great meaning in the gemstone world. The eruption of Mount St. Helens was an outward manifestation of activity deep within the earth which could be forming gemstones at this very moment. Of course we'd never see these gems in our lifetime. It takes millions of years for gem minerals to form. That's one of the reasons why they're so highly prized.

Most gem minerals form deep within the earth rather than in the lava that is expelled from volcanoes because the heat and pressure below the surface promote slow crystallization. Lava cools rapidly at the surface, so most of it doesn't have a chance to crystallize and forms a glass called obsidian. Whether or not any gemstones are produced at all depends on the chemical composition of the lava.

It is not uncommon to find peridot in the lava from Hawaiian-type volcanic eruptions because the lava (in this case, basalt) is rich in iron and magnesium, which are the basic chemical components of peridot. (I'll talk about peridot in my next article.)

If you're interested in gemstones and would like to know more about them, please come into the store for the free consumer information brochures we have on hand for our [illegible]

SAINT JAMES POST OFFICE

Postmaster Mary Minor

Through ice, snow...

At one time, during the winter months when northern Lake Michigan waters turned to ice, two men would travel by horse and sleigh between Beaver Island and Cross Village to deliver and pick up mail.

The adventurous undertakings of the mail carriers earned them a special place in the hearts of the Islanders.

According to Phil Gregg, who authored "Beaver Tales! The Mail Contracts" in The Journal of Beaver Island History, the average trip to Cross Village took the better part of a day - which included a stop at Hog Island to rest and feed the horses.

"Many trips were uneventful and pleasant, with many a good time in Cross Village before returning the next day," Gregg wrote. "There were occasions when the trip was left entirely up to the horse, since the carriers had met so many friends the night before they merely covered themselves up in the sleigh and went to sleep, oftentimes not waking until the horse stopped at the Post Office in St. James."

One carrier, Dan Cornstalk, disregarded the horse and sleigh. On several occasions, Gregg said, he picked up mail at Beaver Island and headed out over the ice on foot to Mackinaw City - returning the same day.

His endurance is still considered "unbelievable" by many of the history buffs on the Island.

Now a days, when the lake freezes, mail is delivered and picked up by plane.

Although the delivery method has changed, the St. James Post Office still swirls with activity. Founded in 1849, the Post Office has an interesting history, serving at various times Michilimackinac, Emmet, Manitou and Charlevoix counties.

Since 1973, Mary Minor has been postmaster. She started working at the Post Office in 1969, succeeding Frank Nackerman, who served as postmaster for over 20 years.

Mary was born and raised on the Island. She graduated from the community school in 1950, and then left the Island to find work.

"Money was scarce and not many could afford to go to college," Mary said in a recent interview. "A lot of us left the Island to find jobs in the big cities - Detroit, Grand Rapids and Chicago."

Mary found employment in Chicago, first in a bank then a factory. While in Chicago, she met Archie Minor, whom she later married.

Mary did not spend a great deal of time in Chicago. She returned to Beaver Island and worked at the Shamrock, McDonough's and then Beaver Lodge before settling in at the Post Office.

Mary lives about a half mile from the Post Office with her mother, Elizabeth LaFreniere. Archie works on an iron ore carrier - the Cason J. Calloway - whose homeport is Duluth, Minn.

When she's not at the Post Office, Mary likes to do needlework, read and raise flowers. She's also active in the Holy Cross Altar Society and the Beaver Island Historical Society.

There is a possibility that the Class of '50 will be reunited this summer - along with the Classes of '60 and '70.

Of the seven who graduated in 1950, only Mary and Joy Green still reside on the Island.

CHARLEVOIX CHURCH DIRECTORY

The founding fathers, though vastly different in background and temperament, were all equal to the tremendous task of making the decisions which would affect the future of our country and the lives and freedom of its citizens. What enabled them to face this awesome responsibility was the assurance born of their faith and religious training that they could do nothing by themselves, and so they relied on the wisdom of God for the right answers. Being endowed by the Almighty with the ability to act as His instruments, they were willing to place the future of the nation in His hands. If the greatest men in our history saw fit to go to Church and pray for God's guidance as their best source of advice we would all do well to follow their example.

but there were some men. We did a lot of sharing and hearing from others about their problems. We plan to use the information we gained in our family lives and in Extension meetings.

COURIER: What Extension Club do you belong to?

HOADLEY: It's called "Too Few". There are about 12 members and we all live in the Bay Shore area. Most of us are all about the same age. We meet once a month and usually have a program or lesson for each meeting. Recently we had a class in cardio-pulmonary resuscitation. Last fall, we had a Halloween party in the township hall for the area children. We've provided food for a needy family, and at Easter we give fruit to some of the elderly people in the area. One time we made a quilt and raffled it off to raise funds for the club. Shirlene Tripp, Hayes Township treasurer, has been a member of our club for years. She's kind of an advisor. She's also a former officer of the Michigan Association of Extension Homemakers.

COURIER: Did you grow up in the Charlevoix area?

HOADLEY: No, I grew up in northwest Ohio. I met my husband, Paul, at Ohio State. We've lived here about six years. We're both Registered Nurses. He works full time at Little Traverse Hospital in the dialysis unit and I work part time. We have two children, Daniel, six and Lisa, three.

KEEM: I grew up in southern Ontario. I met my husband, Mike, while he was working nearby in the summer. He's from the Detroit area. He's a plant inspector (nursery stock) for the Department of Agriculture Plant Division with offices in Traverse City. We also have two children. Bryan is seven and Michelle is five.

COURIER: What other interests do you have?

HOADLEY: I like to garden and can and sew. Both of our husbands are sailors – I guess that's why we're up here. We have sailboats and belong to the Yacht Club.

KEEM: We're both members of the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix. We're also both room mothers and active in the Parents' Council at the Elementary School.

COURIER: Do you have offices in the Extension Club?

HOADLEY: I'm the new president of Too Few

KEEM: I'm going to be Charlevoix County chairman of the Extension Service. I'll be working with Marlene Cassatt in organizing programs for all the groups in our area – Kalkaska, Antrim, and Charlevoix Counties.

COURIER: What would you like to talk about that we haven't [illegible]?

KEEM: I'd like to thank the ladies of Charlevoix County for paying for my scholarship. It was fun to get away and to have good meals without cooking and cleaning up.

HOADLEY: The Week was so well planned. The instructors were of the highest quality. There were 55 subjects to choose from. The other thing I would like to say is that I wish we could have an Extension Home Economist just for Charlevoix County. We could do so much.

District game Tuesday

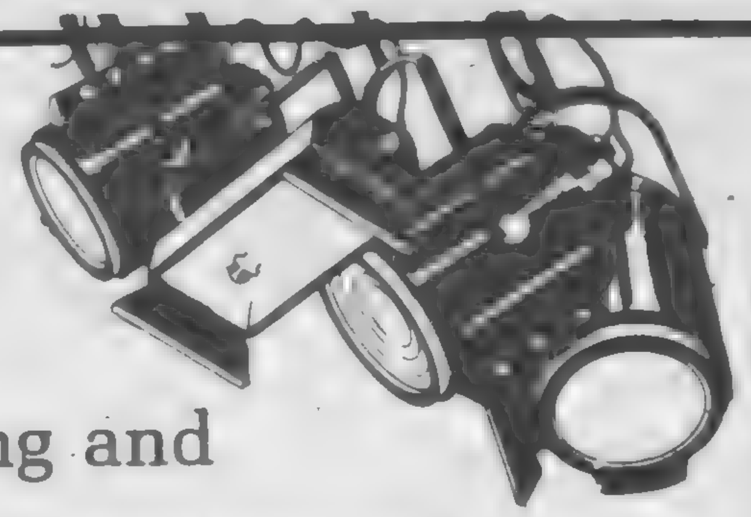
Charlevoix will play E-K Hydraulics Tuesday in the Girls Intermediate Softball District at Petoskey.

Charlevoix is 1-1 in the double elimination tournament. On Thursday, Charlevoix bested E-K Hydraulics 18-4 behind the pitching of Rhonda Buchanan. Buchanan helped her own cause with four hits. Charlevoix lost on Saturday to Sunrise 6-1 as Monica Malec held the Charlevoix squad to just three hits.

If Charlevoix should defeat E-K Hydraulics a second time, they would face Sunrise on Wednesday. Sunrise is undefeated. If Charlevoix wins on Wednesday night the championship game would be played on Friday.

In regular season play last week, Charlevoix remained unbeaten with a doubleheader sweep of Alanson 16-3 and 18-1. In the opener Colleen LaBlance tossed a one hitter. Kim Bolduc led the hitting parade for Charlevoix with two hits. In the nightcap, Buchanan pitched a two hitter. LaBlance had a three run homer while Bolduc had three hits and Buchanan, Bridget Neirat, Jennifer Joy and Linda Cook had two each.

SPOTLIGHT



String Quartet to perform

The New World String Quartet will perform the second in their series of four concerts in the National Music Camp's Interlochen Arts Festival. The concert will take place at 8 p.m. July 11 in Corson Auditorium.

Named the official quartet of Michigan, the New World String Quartet originated in Grand Rapids when four members of the Grand Rapids Symphony formed a string quartet in 1975. Since that time, they have become one of Michigan's favorite performing ensembles.

The program features Haydn's "The Emperor, Op. 76, No. 2 in D minor," Stravinsky's "Trois Pieces," and Brahm's "Quartet No. 2 in A minor, Op. 51."

Pianist Steven De Groote will perform in the Van Cliburn Benefit Concert to be held at 8 p.m. July 19 in Kresge Auditorium, as part of the National Music Camp's (NMC) Interlochen Festival of the Arts. He will be accompanied by the World Youth Symphony Orchestra, conducted by George C. Wilson.

For his piano solo performance, De Groote has chosen the Russian composer Prokofieff's "Piano Concerto No. 3." Also featured on the program will be the "Euryanthe Overture" of Weber, Respighi's "Symphonic Poem, Fountains of Rome," and "Alborada del Gracioso" of Ravel.

"It's a well-balanced program," says conductor George C. Wilson, former ICA director and long-term member of the NMC faculty and conducting staff

A change in life-style for all American citizens is inevitable. Lets return to the basic type of law enforcement, eliminate the waste, give equal protection to all.

Where our present type law enforcement training and technology has failed the citizens and increased the cost, there is no reason to believe it will work in the future. Because of this, I believe that the position of sheriff should be held by a man with administrative background.

Huber's experiment will test windpower

Courier Feature
By Dave Knight

Towering 40 feet over the hilltop [illegible] in Hayes Township is a monument to independence. Energy independence, that is.

"It's totally experimental," Huber says of the windmill generator he raised last week after three years of planning. "I'm not even sure it will work. But with me it's the principle involved."

Principle or no, Huber stands a good chance of whittling down his already meager electric bill even farther if everything works as planned. Last year he and his wife, Mary Lee, heated their home almost entirely with wood, diminishing their dependence on electric power substantially. The Hubers now use an average of 250 [illegible].

According to pages of formulas Bill has meticulously worked out, the windmill could produce anywhere from 125 to [illegible] a month and thus has the potential, if it works, to provide all the power the Hubers need.

Huber's windmill is completely his own design. He conceived the project about three years ago when gas lines were lengthening and the energy shortage was becoming an important issue. One particular power blackout in the winter of 1977 got Huber thinking very seriously about how dependent he and other people had become on the power company. Since then, he has moved to the northern reaches of Michigan from downstate and is even more concerned about how much people rely upon outside sources to live the way they want.

"It's my philosophy that REA among other things has eroded the spirit of independence that people had when this area was first settled," said Huber. "I believe that many rural households would like to get that independence back."

To prove that such independence is within reach of an average family, Huber set out to design and build a system to generate electric power from the wind requiring minimal expense, yielding maximum efficiency and [illegible].

The result is a free standing 40-foot structure with a frame of 2" by 2" steel angle irons supported by eight guy wires anchored in concrete. The whole thing had been taking shape in Huber's garage over the past year until Sunday, July 6 when a hardy crew of friends and Bernard Schwartzfisher's tractor pulled it up into position.

In most people's minds, windmills conjure visions of graceful, airplane-type propeller blades, whirling atop a tapered tower. Huber's design is [illegible] different.

Three sheet metal blades, each about [illegible] long are mounted vertically one atop the other. From an end view, each blade is formed into a mathematically developed "sine curve" which is, more simply, an "S" with an axle running precisely down the mid-point between the two curves. The blades are not in perfect alignment but are positioned about 60 degrees apart so that one is always directly facing the wind.

Why the vertical design instead of a propeller?

"One reason is that, theoretically, the vertical shape will work with the wind coming from any direction," said Huber. "The propeller type of design uses up some of the wind's energy just to turn it the right direction. I also wanted to come up with a design that the average person could construct in his own shop and these vertical blades could be made by anyone with a minimum of equipment and mechanical ability."

Indeed, Huber's is as simple a workshop as they come. All he needed to build the windmill, he claims, was a small drill press, a hand drill and a [illegible].

Other components of the system include (automotive) disk brakes to slow the blades in high winds and a hydraulic brake line to apply them. When everything is hooked up, Huber hopes to run the power from the generator to an electric water pre-heater and an inverter to change the voltage into a 110-volt household current. He also plans to hook up a "moderately" sized bank of auto batteries to store power.

Total cost of the project: about $1,000 in materials. Man-hours totalled by Huber, a friend, John Kmiec, and Huber's father have run into the hundreds but most of those were spent building prototypes and making experimental drawings.

"The planning could've gone on for years," laughed Huber, "I finally had to say 'Let's build the thing and see if it works.'"

To work, according to Huber's figures, the wind will have to maintain a velocity of from eight to ten miles per hour. One thing in his favor is the government's finding that this area in Michigan is one of the top five locations in the country in which power generation by windmills is feasible.

Huber could have gotten more from the government than assistance if he had wanted. Grants are available for people with original energy saving ideas such as his. In keeping with his philosophy of independence, however, Huber wanted no financial help from Uncle Sam.

"People are looking to the government for help too often," said Huber, who should know by virtue of his occupation as district representative for Congressman Robert Davis. "Part of the point of this is to show that one person can do something like this on his own."

Without even churning out a single volt, Bill Huber's windmill has already made a point; that the spirit of independence lives on in the north country and may well pave the way to a more energy-conscious way of life for [illegible].

Wild weekend looming with Cooper, Festival

Courier Coverage
By Sara Gay [illegible]

Can a small resort community with a summer population of an estimated 5,500 cope with a sudden influx of 40 to 50,000 people, bent on having a good time?

That's the question of the moment in Charlevoix.

On July 26 Charlevoix will celebrate its 50th Annual Venetian Festival, predicted to draw up to 30,000 persons, according to Chamber of Commerce director Jacqui Merta.

At the same time, Castle Farms Music Theater, just west of town on Highway M 66, is holding an Alice Cooper concert, predicted to add another 20,000 persons.

The Venetian Festival, which runs from the 24th through the 27th is highlighted on the 26th with a daytime street parade, carnival, musical and acrobatic performances in the parking overlooking Round Lake Harbor. That night in Round Lake the decorated boat parade is followed by fireworks.

Castle Farms, meanwhile, will be opening its gates, in the late afternoon, to admit the expected throngs of Alice Cooper fans.

The Charlevoix Sheriff's department, with a maximum force of 10 officers, is taxed to the limit, according to Sheriff George Lasater.

While property owners adjacent to the Music Theater and officials in Melrose Township, are reacting with frustration and fear, merchants – take out beer and wine stores, grocers, gas station owners, and restauranteurs – [illegible].

Township Supervisor Robert Potter, a dairy farmer, said some concert goers are "worse than a bunch of hogs – that's the element they draw."

But Potter said the township is frustrated in efforts to control the [illegible].

"All last year they operated without a permit. Now we don't plan to take action because they are basically in compliance with our ordinance."

"I'm frustrated by the whole deal," the supervisor continued. "You'd think they'd have respect for the rest of the community and not have a concert on Venetian weekend."

Lasater said his concern for the ability of local law enforcement to handle crowds of the two events is based on this summer's two previous Castle Farms concerts – the Doobie Brothers, July 4, and the Marshall Tucker Band, June 22.

The July 4 concert spawned 10 complaints from larceny to disturbing the peace, trespassing and illegal camping; 13 accidents; and 12 arrests for alcohol, disorderly conduct and one hit and run accident.

After the June 22 concert, there were 4 complaints, 3 accidents and 16 arrests ranging from drunk driving to marijuana and cocaine possession.

Most complaints come from nearby neighbors, many of whom, while speaking bitterly, refused to allow their names to be used.

One woman said she and her family simply leave town during concerts. She blames a heart attack on the stress created by the behavior of the mobs of people parking around her property.

Another property owner, who also refused to let her name be used said, "This is like Three Mile Island. What can we do? We are helpless. The house next to us has sold [illegible] since the concerts began and property values are down."

Mrs. Lionel McClanaghan, another neighbor, said, "This has been upsetting ever since it started. There's too much traffic and these people don't care what they do or where they do it."

Residents on nearby Loeb Point have hired a security guard for concert nights and complain about people using their beach to come to the concerts by boat.

NRC deliberating over local request to shut down Big Rock Plant

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) is studying a request to shut down the Big Rock Point Nuclear Power Plant and will announce what it intends to do within six weeks, it was learned last week.

The request was contained in a telegram sent to President Jimmy Carter April 1, by Christa-Maria, a member of the Concerned Citizens for the Charlevoix Area.

The telegram demanded that the plant be shut down immediately because "the unshielded steel containment" at the plant "is insufficient to contain radiation" and is in violation of NRC minimum safety requirements.

In a response, dated June 26, Harold R. Denton, Director Office of Nuclear Reactor Regulation in Washington, wrote that "appropriate action will be taken on your petition within a reasonable time."

In a telephone interview Walter Paulson, Washington, D.C. NRC Project Manager in the Division of Licensing for Big Rock said "the matter is being reviewed and a decision on whether or not to hold a public hearing will be forthcoming within six weeks."

However, on June 26, the NRC filed notice for publication in the Federal Register, announcing that the petition is being treated as a request for action. This is a prerequisite for a hearing.

Meanwhile, while attempting to comply with another NRC order, officials at the Consumers Power Co., Big Rock facility are still unsure whether they will have to shut down the plant for testing following an incident at an Alabama nuclear plant late last month.

The utility received a bulletin from the NRC July 3, indicating some testing would have to be done within three days, and a plant shutdown would be necessary within 30 days of additional tests.

Some of the testing has been completed already, according to Geoffrey Wright, NRC senior resident inspector, but how and when to complete the tests is still under study.

The bulletin was prompted by an incident at the Brown's Ferry Plant near Decatur, Ala., where 76 out of 185 control rods failed to properly insert [illegible].

The rods control nuclear reaction in the reactor [illegible] a quick plant shut down in the event of an accident.

The Concerned Citizens for the Charlevoix Area have intervened before the NRC licensing board to prevent the issuance of a permit to Consumers Power Co., to double the number of spent fuel rods that may be stored in Big Rock's spent fuel pool.

Hearings on this are expected to be held in Petoskey in late summer or early fall.

Charlevoix Yesterday

A week from this coming Saturday evening, July 26, will bring the highlight of the Charlevoix Venetian Festival, the parade of decorated boats. Through the years, the boats have been decorated in many ways, and sometimes have depicted timely themes. This entry of a few years ago is still timely.

Area families sought to host foreign students

Charlevoix area families are needed to act as hosts for foreign exchange students arriving this summer from Europe and Latin America.

The students, under the Youth for Understanding program (YFU), will attend the local high school and share daily life with host families, participating as family members, not as guests.

YFU program fees and students' personal expenses are provided by the students' natural families, and host families provide "room, board, and love", according to Diana Follebout, Regional Director for the program.

YFU was founded in 1951 and since then has arranged for more than 70,000 student exchanges in 24 countries. Students are carefully selected and matched with host families, and area-wide regional volunteers provide support services and guidance throughout the exchange experience.

For further information, interested persons may contact Ms. Follebout, 6264 Dixie Highway, Bridgeport, MI. 48722, phone (517) 777-4420, or Marce Ball in Petoskey, phone 347-2270.

Price re-elected president of Charlevoix Hist. Society

Weldon W. Price was re-elected president of the Charlevoix Historical Society at the Society's annual meeting held last week.

Other officers elected to serve for the coming year are Robert C. Miles, first vice-president; Robert Morgridge, second vice-president; Mrs. Mary M. Geiken, secretary; and Ralph S. [illegible], treasurer.

Directors elected for three-year terms are Mrs. Carl Kohler and Dale Boss. Continuing directors are Mrs. Edward Shanahan, Mrs. Arthur Stoel, Mrs. Myrtle Fulton, William H. Ohle, and [illegible].

Mrs. Hilda Gibson is assistant to the treasurer and chairman of the membership committee.

The next activity of the Charlevoix Historical Society is the Open House, to be held at Society headquarters, the Harsha House at 103 State St., on Saturday, July 19, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The public is invited to view the first stage of museum development and learn of future plans. A special invitation has been extended to the Charlevoix High School graduating classes of [illegible] and [illegible] which are holding re-unions on that date.

The following week, on Friday, July 25, the Historical Society will hold its Second Annual Heritage Day Luncheon at the Grey Gables Inn. At that time, a member or members of the Society will be honored for contributing importantly to historical research and preservation of the Charlevoix area.

Tickets for the luncheon are available from officers of the Society, and members are urged to obtain them as soon as possible since reservations are limited.

Que Pasa plans rock concert

Que Pasa Coffee House is having a rock concert on July 26 at 8 p.m. in Charlevoix's East Park, located downtown at the waterfront. "First Saved", a five-piece contemporary rock group will be playing.

Sight tests offered

The Charlevoix Lions Club will sponsor a Sightmobile offering free eye tests on July 21 through 24. Tests will be offered from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on those days. The Sightmobile will be located in downtown Charlevoix opposite the [illegible].

Selling Your House by Gene Steele

OVER OR UNDER-SPENDING

Some people spend more than they can afford when buying a house. Equally painful is the mistake of buying the cheapest possible house and then suffering through its shortcomings.

I have no intention of stating how much anyone can afford for a house. This is a very personal decision. There are guidelines of monthly averages that lending institutions use for housing expenses. But like the "height/weight" charts printed on scales, these are only averages.

Don't hold back if you feel you exceed the guidelines. When you are willing and sufficiently disciplined to economize on other expenses, you can get a better house than the average calls for. A good house may seem costly, but the rewards are well worth it. Investing in a house that's a little more expensive gives you an excellent inflation hedge while your whole family enjoys a better place to live. And often, the resale opportunity is brighter.

County gains, city loses in census figures just released

Preliminary 1980 census figures for Charlevoix County show an increase of 17.6 percent in population since 1970.

However, figures for the City of Charlevoix indicate a decrease in population of nine percent, the only political unit in the county showing a loss.

Since this loss in population midst heavy increases in surrounding areas does not seem reasonable, the City of Charlevoix is contesting the figures.

City Manager James Brinker has filed a complaint with the Traverse City branch of the Census Bureau, through which the figures were compiled, and the matter was to be discussed at City Council this past Monday night.

Figures for Charlevoix County indicate a population of 19,400 in 1980, compared with 16,541 in 1970. The number of housing units increased from 7,687 in 1970 to 11,053 in 1980, up 46.1 percent. Population per household was calculated at 3.27 in 1970 and 2.80 in 1980.

The fact that the percentage increase in housing units is much higher than the increase in population is due in part to the large number of seasonal homes in the area which were unoccupied at census-taking time, census experts point out.

Figures for the City of Charlevoix put the population at 3,203 in 1980. In 1970, it was listed as 3,519. On the other hand, housing units in the City of Charlevoix increased from 1,486 in 1970 to 1,776 in 1980, up 19.5 percent. It was during this time that the condominium boom came to Charlevoix.

Comparative figures for nearby townships show the following population and housing unit changes:

Charlevoix Township, population increase from 720 in 1970 to 971 in 1980, 34.9 percent. Housing unit increase from 337 in 1970 to 476 in 1980, 41.2 percent.

Hayes Township, population increase from 706 in 1970 to 1,310 in 1980, 85.6 percent. THIS IS THE GREATEST POPULATION INCREASE OF ANY POLITICAL UNIT IN THE COUNTY. Housing unit increase from 349 in 1970 to 650 in 1980, 86.2 percent.

Marion Township, population increase from 694 in 1970 to 960 in 1980, 38.9 percent. Housing unit increase from 222 in 1970 to 391 in 1980, 76.1 percent.

Norwood Township, population increase from 325 in 1970 to 530 in 1980, 63.1 percent. Housing unit increase from 130 in 1970 to 253 in 1980, 94.6 percent.

Peaine Township, population increase from 58 in 1970 to 79 in 1980, 36.2 percent. Housing unit increase from 149 in 1970 to 231 in 1980, 55 percent.

St. James Township, population increase from 161 in 1970 to 231 in 1980, 43.5 percent. Housing unit increase from 149 in 1970 to 215 in 1980, 44.3 percent.

There are two cities in Charlevoix County in addition to the City of Charlevoix. They both showed increases in population. East Jordan increased from 2,041 in 1970 to 2,128 in 1980, 4.3 percent. Boyne City increased from 2,969 in 1970 to 3,165 in 1980, 6.6 percent.

Townships in other parts of the county increased in population as folllows: Bay, 36.6 percent; Boyne Valley, 6 percent; Chandler, 42.7 percent; Evangeline, 36.6 percent; Eveline, 24.7 percent; Hudson, 56.6 percent, Melrose, 11.8 percent; South Arm, 21.5 percent, and Wilson, 82.2 percent.

Local church plans annual bazaar

It's Country Fair time again ... where the women of the First Congregational Church are sponsoring their annual bazaar, bake sale and salad luncheon on Wednesday, July [illegible].

Mrs. Robert Riggle, right, co-chairman and Mrs. Harold Dutcher, left, luncheon chairman, are in the process of pricing items to be sold at the bazaar. Mrs. David Fowler, who was out of town when this picture was taken, is chairman of the event.

The bazaar and bake sale will begin at 10 a.m. The luncheon will be held from 11 a.m. until 1:30 p.m.

Workshops have been held every Monday during the winter months to make the many hand-crafted articles that will be featured at the bazaar.

Among the wide variety of items are patchwork quilts and pillows, a variety of hand-made Christmas ornaments, some needlepoint and crewel pieces, aprons, tiles, plaques, draft dodgers, unusual international handcrafted items from all over the world, stuffed toys and dolls and luscious homemade strawberry jam.

The cooks of the church will provide their specialties for the bake sale which will continue until sold out.

The salad luncheon will include a variety of salads, homemade muffins and rolls and desserts. Tickets for the luncheon are $2.75 for adults; $2.50 Senior Citizens, and $1.25 for children under 12 years.

Erosion control for city park beach to start soon

City officials are hoping to start work next month on an erosion control project at the city's Lake Michigan Beach park.

The project - part of which will be federally funded - is aimed at preserving the land resource base, improving water quality, enhancing the environment and improving recreational opportunities and the aesthetic quality of the park.

Erosion - caused by wind, water, foot and vehicular traffic - is occurring at an "accelerated rate" at the park, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service. One area in particular that is in bad shape, the Soil Conservation Service says, is adjacent to the picnic and bathing area where foot traffic is "destroying" vegetation and causing "slumping" along the beach.

To control erosion, the city plans to install:

1) Approximately 150 feet of rock riprap on the bank adjacent to the picnic area.

2) 385 feet of walkways in steep areas where trails descend from the lake bench to the beach.

3) Rustic wood fencing along approximately 1,170 feet of trails to prevent foot traffic from entering eroded areas.

4) Wooden barriers consisting of posts with cross bars along the north boundary of the parking lot for a distance of 385 feet to keep vehicular traffic from entering the dune area and doing further damage to ground cover.

5) Barrier posts along approximately 650 feet of the access road to prevent further damage of vegetation by vehicular traffic.

6) Approximately three inches of wood chip cover on 2,500 feet of trails leading to the bathing and picnic sites to prevent further erosion by foot traffic.

7) Vegetation on approximately 2.5 acres of bare, critically eroded areas in various locations of the park.

City employees or CETA personnel will do the work, according to City Manager Jim Brinker. The city will be responsible for the operation and maintenance of the improvements for a minimum of 15 years.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture is presently doing the engineering work on the project.

No parking, no Montessori

By a decisive margin, the Charlevoix City Council-Board of Appeals voted last week to refuse a special use permit that would have enabled a Montessori school to be established in the former Bergman Center. Certain aspects of that action were somewhat puzzling

Many people who live in the neighborhood of the Bergman Center and who have organized to oppose the issuance of the special use permit appeared at the meeting. They were represented by an attorney, Michael Gibbons, who took the opportunity to aggressively cross examine others participating in the public hearing and call witnesses in his favor. Those appearing in favor of the Montessori school, while equal in number, were not prepared to do such battle since their case had been fully presented to the Plan Commission at an earlier date

The result was a lopsided vote of 5-1 denying the permit with at least one council member saying openly that he was simply "overwhelmed" by the opposition to the school. Gibbons and company obviously out-organized Montessori school operator Katie Donovan and her supporters at this crucial hearing

Residents of a neighborhood have every right under the sun to fight the establishment in their area of an operation they feel is detrimental to their way of life. Indeed, it is when people don't care about their neighborhood that we had all better worry. But it is unusual to see such hostility exhibited toward a day care center

The Montessori program involves children ages two through six. Of the 23 students now enrolled in Donovan's present facility at the Congregational Church, about half are there because their mothers have jobs. The Montessori system is rather new in the United States. It offers more than the average day care center in that children receive special guidance in learning to deal with adults, other children and their own personalities

What is there about a Montessori school that has prompted such vociferous reaction?

The noise? The occasional sounds of children playing may bother some people but it is hard to consider such noise disruptive to the neighborhood

The traffic? With the carpooling and staggered pick-up and let-off times, this would seem to be a surmountable problem and certainly no more of a problem than the traffic caused by the high school nearby.

Lack of parking? This was the main reason given by more than one council member for their negative vote and appeared to be the core of Gibbons' case. Perhaps the site plan presented by Donovan at the hearing did not respond to that point adequately enough. Had she known that the way cars were to be parked at the school would determine whether she could open or not, she might have spent more time on that problem. Now she may not get a chance

If people in that neighborhood feel strongly about extra cars parked at 201 E. Garfield, it is their right and privilege to see that it doesn't happen But it is a shame to deny the neighborhood and the entire community the benefits of a Montessori day care program in a safe, convenient location such as the Bergman Center

Mike Kitely, a young farmer said, "You can buy anything at the concerts I've had people try to sell me speed, marijuana, cocaine. I walk around our property to protect our crops during concerts. I've even come across people engaged in sex

"I'd join any effort to see the concerts closed. But if they are going to continue, they should limit the people and add security," Kitely commented.

Township Supervisor Potter said that while the concerts are operating according to the township ordinance, there has been no accounting of numbers of people, as required

Potter said the ordinance calls for 12,000 maximum attendance, while estimates of crowd size range from 15 [illegible]

Arthur Reibel, owner of the theater, said, it is policy not to reveal audience size

I'm frustrated," Potter said. "They operated last year without a permit. They set off fireworks this year without permits

Reibel commented on the criticisms, acknowledging problems of nearby neighbors but said, "By and large the community has accepted us. We see children at the concerts whose parents said they'd never allow their kids to come"

Reibel also said, "We've settled our difference with the township and have a good relationship with the sheriff

Reibel, who said the concerts are managed in association with Pyramid Production, explained that a security force of about 150 people is responsible for keeping drugs out of concerts, protecting parking lots, maintaining security at the fences and checking for [illegible]

"A tremendous amount of work goes into these concerts," Reibel said. "We meet with our security and the sheriff and we do not have serious problems."

Speaking about Alice Cooper, famous for bizarre and macabre acts, Reibel said the act has changed to a more middle of the road show

"We do not expect people will go bananas."

While some residents agree with a county official who said, but requested anonymity, "This changes the character of this town and creates a dangerous law enforcement situation, where a bunch of people could literally take over the town," many businessmen look forward to July 26th

"I love 'em," said John Antaya, of the Ironton Jiffy Mart, where sales of take-out beer and wine spiral on concert [illegible]

Antaya's sentiments were echoes by Glen's manager Ray Gilmore who said, "It picks our business up and the crowds have been good;" Charlevoix's Fireside Restaurant owner Dick Kopecki who added, "We're happy to have them, it's definitely good for business;" and Dave Juillert, restaurant owner, who stated, "We're very pleased with it"

Meanwhile Lasater made two proposals in a written statement given to the Courier

Lasater proposed that concerts be limited to 6,000 persons, "In order to adequately provide public safety services for the concert goers and the residents of the area"

He also suggested that a tax "be placed on each ticket sold, such as a head tax, and the revenue from the ticket tax be turned over to the township and county to help defray the cost not only of public safety but also the road commission, public health and township officials that must monitor, issue permits etc. for the concerts."

Lasater said he recognized the economic value of the concerts to the whole community, "as well as the negative side," and suggested the county and township should work together to "make the concerts structured so everyone can benefit without a large number of people being inconvenienced"

Knight on the Town

A Letter Home

Dear Mom

It's July so I must be in Charlevoix. I know I am somewhere close to the big lake because lately there has been more sand in my bed than Oreo crumbs. Other than that the transition has been smooth so far and the people here have been wonderfully [illegible].

You will be interested to know that Charlevoix is named for a priest who apparently vacationed in the area a few hundred years ago. I think the town is very fortunate to have been founded by someone with such a melodic name. Had it been discovered by some other traveler, who knows what it might have been called.

"Drobnitz the Beautiful?" Not quite the same ring.

Don't worry about me getting into much trouble here. When you buy cans of beer in Michigan, you buy the cans. The beer just sort of comes along with the deal. The result is that you pay a little more and that is enough incentive to keep me at the Kool-Aid rack instead of the beer cooler when I go shopping.

The only casualty of the move so far has been our dog Swifty. We really didn't expect to find a rental unit that would allow a 75-pound golden retriever but our landlord did go along with him for a week as an experiment. That was plenty of time for Swifty to start re-landscaping the back yard which led to his getting walking papers in short order.

Oh well. We've still got the tropical fish. Don't think they'll be much good for duck hunting, though.

I understand that when the snow flies around here (someone told me that should be any day now but I think he was kidding) the skiing is very good. So far, however, I've only spoken with one person who actually skis and she has just gotten out of a cast from last winter. Not to worry. She says the medical facilities are outstanding here also and crutches rent cheaply.

By the way, when I called home the other night and said the water on the lake looked so good that I thought I would go out for a sail, I meant SAIL, not SALE. Therefore I am returning your check and advise you to check the bottled water counter at the grocery store if you really want to buy some lake water.

Haven't seen too many people wearing big W's or red and white athletic jerseys around here. There seems to be a general preference for either blue and yellow or green and white with M's on everything. If I was color blind and could stand on my head all the time, I would feel right at home.

We have Eastern time here and cable TV. Cable TV costs about eight bucks a month but we haven't found out what Eastern time costs yet. It's kind of nice though so I think we will keep it.

We are simply awed by the physical beauty of the Charlevoix area and, frankly, I find it difficult to describe it to you. Try to take all the good things about Wisconsin, substitute lighthouses [illegible] and you have a fairly accurate picture.

If it sounds as if we like it here, you're reading me right.

Kindest regards,

Your son

P.S. Don't send any more socks. They [illegible].

Comment on Municipal Golf Course

Letters

To the Editor

The tax payers of "Charlevoix - the Beautiful" should be very proud of their Municipal Golf Course! The former Chicago Club Course, built approximately 85 years ago, is dear to us because of its rich historical charm It is still a test of skills for some of the top-flight golfers regardless of its age

This year, under the management of Bill Graves and his fine young staff, the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course has been developed into a most enjoyable and sporty nine holes. The fairways are healthily green and mowed to perfection. The greens with their tricky, newly groomed sand traps are plus carpets for precision putting. No, the course is not a difficult championship-type layout, but to the average player it will challenge his consistency, accuracy and general play ability

Like other municipal golf courses it is not perfect. A few improvements could be made, consequently I offer the following constructive comments.

1. The green painted plywood weather shelters (total of four) constructed this year by the City of Charlevoix are a sorry disgrace to this beautiful and well maintained golf course. When we have something nice in the city, why ruin it with a pile of junk! If a half moon had been cut in the side of them they could have served a better purpose. There are, no doubt, well qualified design people in Charlevoix who would gladly advise on such a project. All the city has to do is ask!

2. In the future, provide some additional landscape screening at the greens and tees along highway US-31 and other busy areas.

3. Provide improved or more effective warning signs or caution signals for safety of players crossing US-31.

So, thanks to Bill Graves and his team for a golf course we all all be very proud of and enjoy.

[illegible]

More on Permit

To the Editor:

Re: Action of the City Council & Michael Gibbons on Special Use Permit for Charlevoix Montessori Children's House.

Outraged, disgusted, disappointed...but not surprised!

Sincerely,

Katie Donovan

A Clarification

In last week's Courier a letter entitled "What would happen in a real disaster?" by Christa Maria was published. In the fourth paragraph the word "radiocommunications" was not the term intended by the author. The correct word to be used in the sentence is "radionuclides".

Gas Rationing not the answer

Bob Davis

Gasoline rationing is something I have consistently opposed since becoming your Congressman

The entire concept of gasoline rationing in this day and age is completely impractical and inequitable for several reasons. The Administration's latest proposal is especially ridiculous. The plan calls for allocating approximately 40 gallons of gasoline per registered vehicle per month (The average driver uses 60 gallons per month.)

While an urban driver may be able to survive by combining his driving with the use of the extensive public transportation systems operating in most cities, a driver in an area such as ours may very well not even be able to get to work and back on 40 gallons a month. Such a program also favors [illegible] car

The Department of Energy itself has branded the program a "bureaucratic nightmare." There are approximately 140 million registered vehicles in this country today. The largest federal distribution system in operation now is the Social Security system which distributes about 30 million checks per month. This rationing program would propose instituting a program SEVEN [illegible]

Size isn't the only managability problem. Nowhere does there exist any national file of vehicles or vehicle owners. Even if one could be compiled, experts contend that it would be only 30 percent accurate

Initial start-up costs would run several hundred million dollars, and actual operation of the plan would cost about $2 billion annually, according to the Department of Energy. The department also estimates that tens of thousands of new employees would be required to administer the program.

I have co-sponsored House Joint Resolution 575 which would disapprove the President's latest plan. I am hopeful that there will be enough support for this resolution to kill the President's plan soon. However, I don't [illegible] the plan hinges on a 20 percent shortfall of crude oil, and we're a long way from that point. Nevertheless, this gas rationing plan is something Congress should halt before it ever gets off the ground

A Senate committee recently proposed a rather foolish way to deal with the problem of quality recruits in our armed forces. They said by cutting the personnel ceiling by 25,000, we would have a higher quality Army.

It's hard to believe such a plan could be seriously recommended considering the current world situation and the status of our military. I am pleased that the full Senate saw fit to reject the plan.

It is true that figures show our Army does have personnel problems. Little more than half of the soldiers are high school graduates, and the attrition rate among non-graduates is twice as high as that for graduates, for example. However, cutting the personnel ceiling [illegible]

I have supported measures to increase pay and benefits for enlisted men, and legislation was recently passed to provide funds for this. It is imperative that we do not give other world powers the impression that our defense is weakening. I think we should do everything possible to raise the ceiling AND improve the quality. I think it can be accomplished.

Bob Clock

Kudos for the Concerts

I wonder who enjoys the city's summer band concerts the most:

— The steely-eyed music critic with pointed ears who sits back in his lawn chair awaiting the perfect flute vibrato?

— The bone-weary housewife who collapses on a beach towel in East Park after a 15-hour marathon of domestic duties? Or — Those little urchins in cut-offs and T-shirts who march and pirouette around the fish pond in rhythm to the music?

My vote would have to go to the little urchins. They may lack skills in music appreciation and they wouldn't know John P. Sousa from John L. Lewis. But [illegible] enjoy band music with animal [illegible].

Oh, I know the old complaint from band directors and musicians alike that kids twirling on the lawn and somersaulting down the park's grassy knolls in time to "The Stars and Stripes Forever" pose somewhat of a distraction to serious concert-goers. And they have a good point.

But I, for one, enjoy watching the kids as much as I do listening to the music. There was one little fellow out there Thursday night who sort of led the pack. He marched up the hill, then struted back down, arms flailing in time to the music. Sometimes he would make believe he was playing a trumpet or trombone.

If that kid doesn't become a fine musician — or at least a drum major — I miss my guess.

I think it is a high compliment to city bandsmen that they are able to trigger such outbursts of exuberant energy in young, musically unsophisticated listeners.

If the kids sat on the grass like toadstools, I'd wonder what I was doing wrong.

I won't pretend to be even vaguely familiar with the complicated chemical and mechanical linkages which translate rhythmic sound waves into kinetic energy. But they certainly must by-pass those corners of the brain where shyness, restraint, self-doubt, inhibitions and fear of public disapprobation dwell.

Wouldn't it be nice if we could all enjoy the band concerts with the same primordial zest as the young?

When was the last time you somersaulted down a hill?

Speaking of the city band, last Thursday's concert was something of an historical event

In the past 34 years, the band has had only three directors: Clarence Odmark, Gary Stutzman and Michael Filkens, [illegible]

All three were on the bandstand during the last concert — Odie on the drums, Stutzman on the bass and Filkens conducting

In case you are wondering how the extreme right-wing of the Republican Party gained the ascendancy this election year — join the club

Ronald Reagan's meteoric rise to the highest pinnacle of party leadership leaves more moderate Republicans almost speechless. We are haunted by the old days when John Birch Society was a force to be reckoned with in local politics, since many members of the new Republican hierarchy draw nourishment from the wellsprings of the JBS philosophy

Furthermore, the Republican platform is enough to give even moderate Republicans the willies, with its watered-down stand on women's rights, its ban on abortion, its weakened handgun controls and — perhaps worst of all — its abolition of the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit

I can't imagine any sane American voting to remove the speed limit — a step which has done more to conserve lives and fuel than any law presently on the books.

Building permits jump during June

Building permits issued by the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection jumped to 76 during the month of June, bringing the total figure to date to 238.

June figures are especially significant because they include 14 permits for new residences, two permits for new commercial buildings, and 11 permits for mobile homes, perhaps indicating the effect of lower interest rates on the building industry

June figures also include 16 permits for residential additions and remodeling, 12 permits for residential garages, five permits for decks and porches, and five permits for residential outbuildings. In the commercial category, five permits were issued for additions and remodeling and three permits for outbuildings.

Eveline Township led all political units in number of permits issued – 11, all in the residential category. The City of Charlevoix, Hayes Township, and East Jordan were next in line, each with six permits.

They were followed by Bay Township, five; Charlevoix Township, five; Melrose Township, five; South Arm Township, five; Wilson Township, five; St. James Township, four; East Jordan, four; Hudson Township, three; Marion Township, three; Peaine Township, three; Boyne Valley Township, two; Evangeline Township, one; and Norwood Township, one. No permits were issued for construction in either Chandler Township or the Village of Boyne Falls.

The cost of construction of projects covered by June permits is estimated at $748,428. Permit fees amounted to $2,995.

The 238 permits issued so far this year have been for construction estimated at $4,920,260. Total fees collected have amounted to $14,048.

Charlevoix On Film

Throngs of buyers and browsers crowded East Park in Charlevoix Saturday for the annual Hobbycraft Fair. Artists and craftsmen from a wide radius, many of whom return to Charlevoix every year for the fair, enjoyed pleasant weather conditions and many interested people. Sights of the Hobbycraft Fair included the carved wooden seagull, above, by Bill Poole of Grand Rapids, customers looking over the sparkling prisms, upper right, offered by Margo Deetjen (left in the photo) also of Grand Rapids, the metal work shown by Norman Slocum, far right, of Petoskey and Archie Boda of Petoskey, right, giving Jacob Smith of Charlevoix a close-up demonstration of one of his furry creations.

Real Estate Is A People Business And Ski & Shore Wants You To Know It's People

Mary Potter is the newest sales associate in the Charlevoix office of Ski & Shore Realty. Although Mary has only recently moved to the area on a full time basis, she is very familiar with Charlevoix having spent many childhood summers here.

A lifelong resident of East Lansing, Mary and her husband bought a home at Pine Point a couple years ago. She was so anxious to set up housekeeping in the new home, Mary moved here this summer while her husband, Joe, a junior high teacher and coach in East Lansing, is commuting.

As of the first of this month, Mary has embarked on her new position with Ski & Shore. For the past nine years, she worked as an administrative assistant for the East Lansing Board of Education. Over the past year, however, she has also been taking several courses and seminars in real estate. Why the switch from education administration to real estate?

"My dad was in real estate," says Mary, "But at the time he was giving up his brokerage, I was not ready to get involved because we still had three young children at home. Now one, my daughter, is married, one son is 20 and the youngest son is 18 and has graduated from high school so I feel I am ready to devote my time to the real estate business."

In addition to the obvious recreational assets of the Charlevoix area, Mary has been very favorably impressed with the friendliness of the people here.

"It is not like the city where few if any people will greet you on the street," she said. "Here everyone seems to be more open and outgoing. So many people I have passed on the sidewalk have just said 'hi' and it really makes me feel more comfortable."

With Mary Potter, Ski & Shore has an exceptionally energetic new sales association who is anxious to serve the community's needs. "The most fulfilling part of the business for me," said Mary, "Is being able to seek out the type of properties our customers are looking for and help them make their own dreams come true."

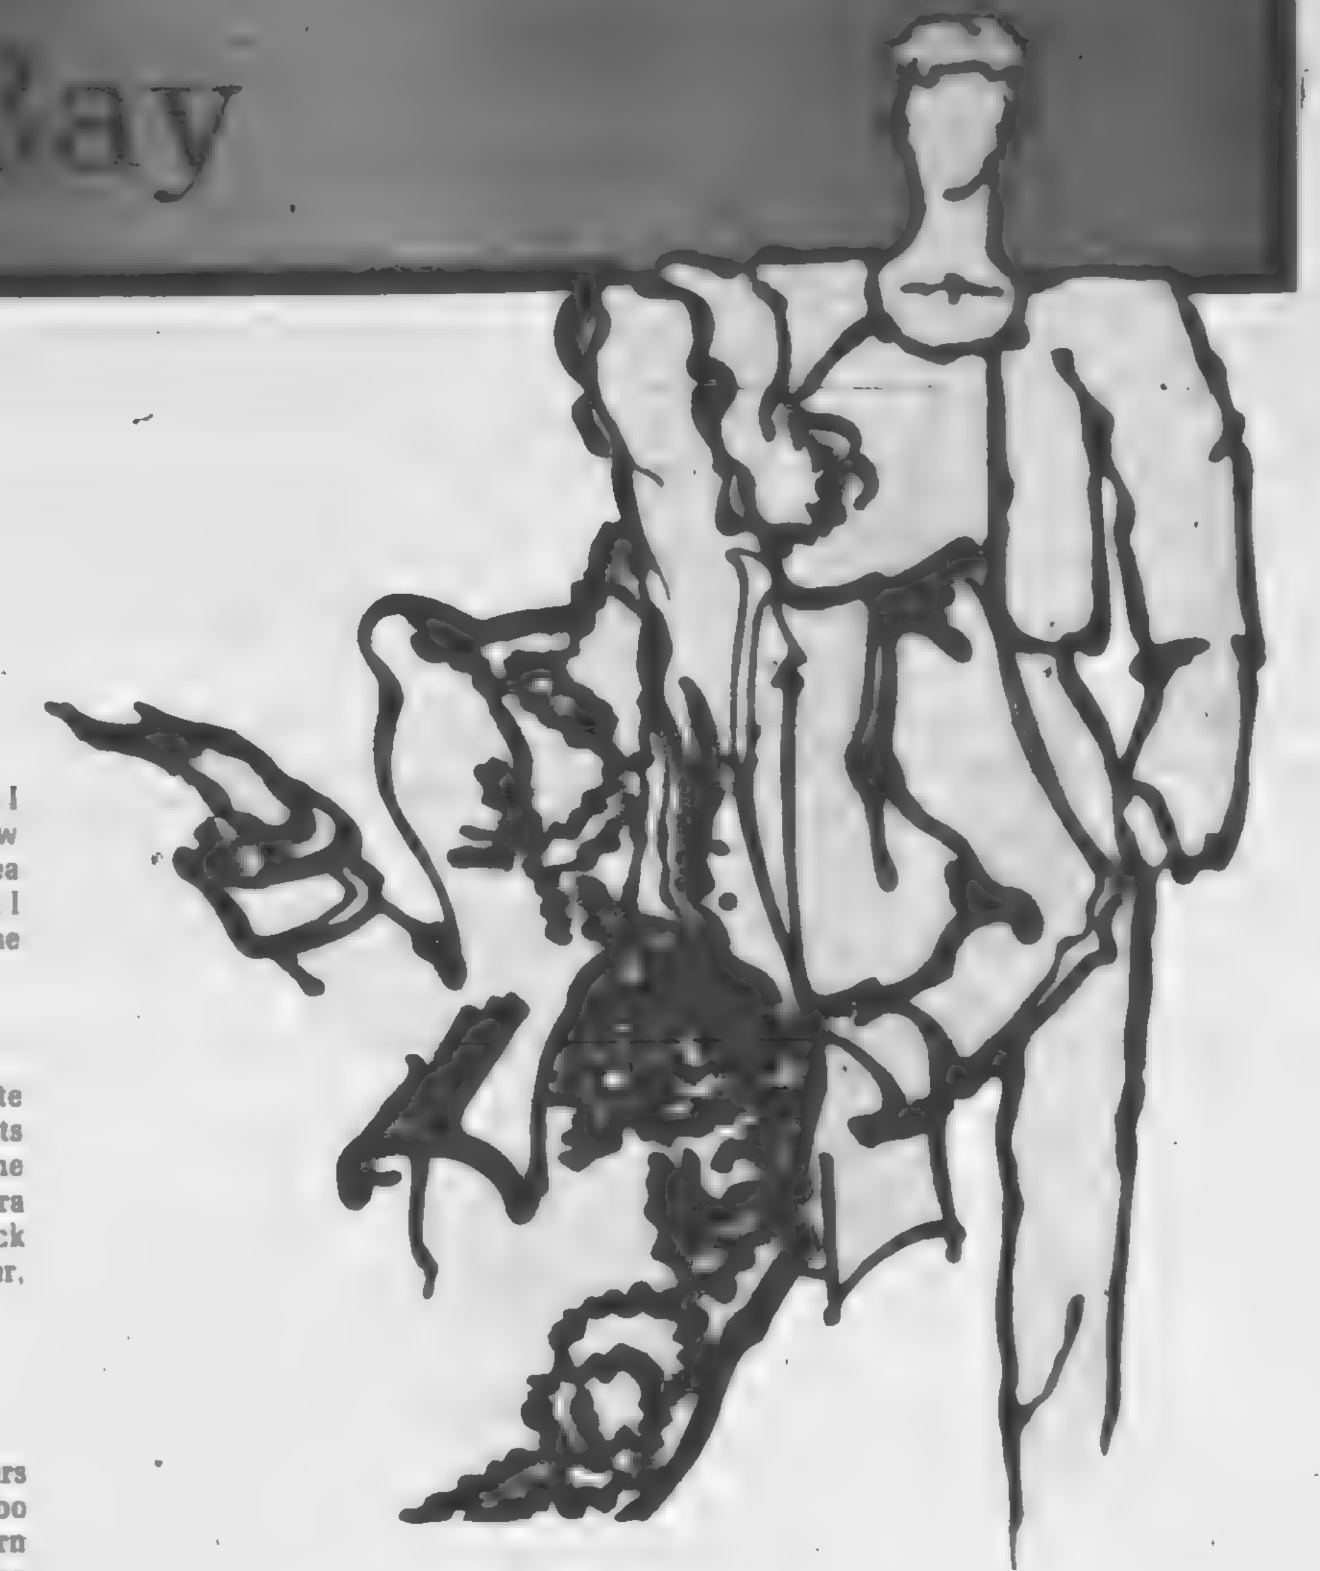
Decked Out......

By Trish Wright



The first time I was asked to go sailing, I was perplexed. The only thing that I knew about sailing was that a rope was not a rope, it was a line. Little did I know of halyards, booms and sheets. What should I wear and where did I sit? I was sea sick with nervousness even before I went aboard. Throwing fashion to the wind; I packed in layers of wool sweaters, socks and old tennis shoes. They served me well but I realized that there is a nautical dress code.

A casual preppy look gets a star-on-board glance. Cotton duck shorts in white or khaki crew with boldly striped rugby shirts. Button down oxford cloth shirts are worn under wool crew neck sweaters. This summer hooded sweat shirts come in pretty prism colors. Pull them over polos or print cotton turtlenecks for an extra layer of warmth. D-ring ribbon belts add a dash of color to denims. Step on deck in either rope soled canvas, sneakers or what the young and old salts prefer, Topsiders, a mocassin that weathers well season after season.

Duffle Stuffers.....
Sailcloth canvas duffle bags should be packed for a change in weather. Two hours of sun on the water is the equivalent of four on land. Protect yourself from too much sun by adding a camp hat. They're space savers and nose savers. Western bandannas can lasso up a loose ponytail or be bow tied around your neck. To top off a perfect sail, stash a spray of perfume. It cools and tingles on land and makes a splash at sea.

Southwick has combined Chinese silk, Irish linen and Falkland Island wool in a Scottish mill for the American gentleman. The result is a luxuriant, all-natural, exceptionally comfortable summer fabric, tailored in the classical natural-shoulder John Horan tradition.

EYE

The Story's Still the Same

by Lizette Belanger

At 7:30 a.m. I unglue my eyes from a deep sleep, have my usual three cups of coffee, whole wheat toast and half of a melon. In the winter when melon season is over, I go for something more interesting like yogurt with granola in it. In another twenty minutes I'm dressed and almost ready to speak. Although I had a choice, I'd rather not carry on a conversation with anyone in the morning.

I get into my car. It warns me with a couple of shakes and a few coughs but starts anyway. I don't care for using the highways so I take the back roads around Walloon Lake on my way to Charlevoix. [illegible] that I give away my secret short cuts. I reach Charlevoix just before the highway bridge, somewhere around three minutes [illegible] down and hear that familiar ring which tells me that I am once again late for work. The bridge yawns and stretches its arms slowly to the sky welcoming early morning fishermen to Round Lake and wishing a good day to the fishing boats that are questing out to Lake Michigan. I'm noticing how long it takes for the bridge to open and close because it's a main factor in my habitual lateness for work. While so waiting I'm interested in the stream of transient boaters that come and go everyday. I'm engaged in a thought about this [illegible] as I nervously wait for the bridge to fold its arms and let me through. I'm late.

After the light turns green I jump across the bridge, buzz through the town waving to the people I know, make a sharp turn on Mason street and throw the car in park behind the Market Mall. I don't even concentrate on what to take up to the office. I grab anything that looks like business. I just have to make my first appearance soon. I leap up the flight of stairs to the office and casually slide in past my boss to my desk hoping to go unnoticed. Good mornings are spoken with a smile and she asks me if I want a cup of coffee. Ah, I'm in the clear. I spend a couple hours making contacts on the phone with potential advertisers.

At 11:00 a.m. it's a peppery 80 degree outside and still rising. I grab the camera and head down to the docks to find out what it is that attracts these visitors who would just as soon live their lives walking on water rather than solid ground. I'm quick to learn that this area represents a melting pot of people with one prevalent interest: a love of the water and a uniqueness for Charlevoix.

Although a rivalry still exists between sailors and power boaters, small and big boats, there are no apparent prejudices in these waters. Round Lake is usually meek and simmered for the smaller Hoby Cats, Sunfishes and yes, even canoes. Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix stimulate the bigger sloops and yachts with its wicked winds and engulfing waves. Some of the sailors join in the fun Wednesday evening with thirty or more boats from the area and race a set course around Lake Charlevoix. A few captains journey out to Beaver Island, Garden Island, Traverse City or just mess around in Lake Michigan for the day and then return to Charlevoix to nest for the night. Other skippers are content to stay in the harbor polishing their teak, scrubbing their decks and making minor repairs.

John Oakley Jr., captain of the CHOY LEE, was preparing his ketch for an extravagant winter trip to the Carribean. More fortunate voyagers aboard the 42 ft. sloop, OUTWARD BOUND would be off very shortly for a European delight. John Roehrig of Ludington, owner of the ALL R.S., has been coming to Charlevoix for 15 years. What brings John and his wife back year after year? "The main thing is the convenience. The shops are right here and I also like the clean park and boat area." The Bartlevs from Birmingham think that Charlevoix is charming. They've been chartering a sailboat for the last couple of years and really enjoy the interesting shops and attractive harbor. Mack Liggett of Lansing is the owner of the yacht FOR THE GOOD TIMES. This is his third year in Charlevoix and he likes all the good times he's had in Charlevoix. Mack says, "The park is always well maintained and pleasant to look at. Jim, the harbor master, does a terrific job accommodating the number of transient boaters that pass through."

In addition to the variety of boaters Charlevoix captivates it [illegible] which belong to ship carpenters of every ability, from the refinishers to the journeymen.

Charlevoix is a boating metropolis bewitching its patrons with interesting shops, warm friendly smiles, a pleasant waterfront and snug harbor.

Up for a couple of weeks from Illinois, Donna Campbell keeps with the mood of her boat, Serenity.

"Shimmer me down," it's the Choy Lee!

Refinishing's my game. Steve Church is the name.

From here to Port Huron. Aries is ready to take on its contenders in the Port Huron to Mackinac race.

Jeff Russell (at the rear) and Mike Fischer from Charlevoix have a little fun canoeing in Round Lake.

Bubbling Away Aboard the Beaver Islander on the Champagne Cruise

by Lizette Belanger

Local residents and tourists alike boarded the Beaver Islander and cast off for a bubbling adventure to Boyne City to celebrate the annual July Fourth Champagne Cruise.

Some were content to just relax and enjoy the fresh air and picturesque shoreline bound in by Lake Charlevoix. Others excitedly sipped bottles of champagne, anticipating the display of fireworks that would greet them in the Boyne City harbor.

On the journey home, "Summer Storm" a new contemporary band in the area, kept the effervescent spirits alive with reggae & rock and then quietly slipped into Round Lake with some soft jazz syncronizing their beat to the slow, mellow landing in beautiful Charlevoix.

"Water, water everywhere; but not a drop to drink." Except champagne!

Pat Hillman renewed a special friendship with someone she met on the cruise last year.

Kathy Bricker enjoyed the panoramic view aboard the Beaver Islander.

Charlevoix Yatch Club Celebrates it's 10th Birthday

On Saturday July 12th The Charlevoix Yacht Club celebrated its 10th birthday with a party at its six year residence. The Charlevoix Yacht Club building Originally known as The Pierre Marquette depot where the Pierre Marquette railroad shipped "downstate resorters" north to some of the best fishing waters.

Homer and Kate Brady were among the couples that decided ten years ago a Yacht Club was needed in Charlevoix. Especially in a town that boasts so many water activities.

The club has grown over the 10 year span and now has enrolled 300 members.

One of the most interesting activities that the Yacht Club organizes is the NA-40. These are races held over a three day period in Lake Charlevoix, that occurs after the Port Huron to Mackinac and Chicago to Mackinac races. This year the NA-40 will be held the weekend of August 1, 2, 3.

The boats that participate are built in St. Petersburg, Florida and are considered a racing-cruising ship. Yatchsmen come from all over the United States to participate in this olympic course race.

"It's a race testing the skill of each crew," says "Pokey" Wheeler, "because the boats are measured to insure identical dimensions. After three days of racing the winner is described as one of the best yatchsmen & crews nationwide."

Commodore Jacquie Merta says the "NA-40" is one of the many regattas hosted each year by the club. And that if you are interested in becoming a member of The Charlevoix Yacht Club you need not necessarily own a boat. However an interest in boating is a purequisite.

Wedding

Klooster-Sippel

Roberta Ann Klooster and Robert H. Sippel exchanged wedding vows before 200 guests at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church Saturday, July 5.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Klooster of Charlevoix and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Sippel of Petoskey.

Rev. Fred Spring performed the double ring ceremony. Traditional wedding music was offered by organist, Terry Vander Slik. She also accompanied the soloist, Lori Barnhart, who sang "Wedding Song", "Wedding Prayer" and "The Bond of Love."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a dacron polyester gown with a high neckline and long sheer Bishop sleeves with Chantilly lace cuffs. The sheer yoke and neckline were accented with ruffles of Chantilly lace and the full A-line skirt with a double flounce at the hemline and a chapel length train, was accented with matching lace. Layered flounces on the back of the skirt gave an apron affect. The bride's double tiered fingertip veil was trimmed with Chantilly lace and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses, baby's breath and [illegible].

The bride was attended by her sisters, Andrea Klooster as maid of honor and Brenda and Melinda Klooster as bridesmaids. They wore full length matching gowns of silk organza with cape sleeves, oval necklines, fitted waists and [illegible] skirts in shades of pale yellow, [illegible] rose and apricot. They each carried a bouquet of cushion mums, and carnations dyed to match their gowns, with accents of baby's breath.

Mark Poquette was the best man and groomsmen were [illegible] Sippel, brother of the groom, and [illegible].

Ushers were Ted Brill and the groom's cousin, Pat [illegible].

A reception followed in the church Fellowship Hall, given by the parents of the bride.

For the ceremony, the mother of the bride wore a street length dress of raspberry silk chiffon and the groom's mother wore a street length green silk print gown.

The newly weds will make their home in [illegible], Ill. The groom is presently serving in the U.S. Navy.

Mr. and Mrs. Sippel hosted a rehearsal dinner at their Petoskey home.

Hammond-Winchester

Arrangements of yellow and white spider mums graced the altar of the First Congregational Church in Jackson for the July 5 wedding of Lisa Marie Hammond of Rives Junction and [illegible] Winchester of Charlevoix.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Hammond of Rives Junction and Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Winchester of Charlevoix.

The Rev. [illegible] officiated at the double ring service in the presence of 150 guests. Karen Annebelle, at the organ, played a program of traditional music and the wedding march. Robert [illegible] accompanied himself on the guitar and sang "Wedding Song", "One Hand, One Heart" and "My Cup Runneth Over."

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory satin with an organza and lace overlay. Fashioned with a tucked bodice and empire waist, the gown featured a jewel neckline and long sleeves trimmed with lace and an A-line skirt. A band of matching lace held her fingertip veil of bridal illusion. She carried a bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids, white [illegible] and ivy.

Dana Ludington of Bloomfield Hills assisted the bridegroom as best man. Tom Higgons of Eaton Rapids, Wesley Dilworth of Charlevoix and Randy Winchester of Ann Arbor, brother of the bridegroom, were groomsmen.

The Cascade Club House, Jackson, was the site of the reception hosted by the bride's parents. Karen Meyer of [illegible] attended the guest book.

After a wedding trip to the East Coast, the couple will be at home in Charlevoix.

The bridegroom will be associated with the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

GEMWISE

John Reusch

In this article, I would like to share with you a bit of mythology about the pearl.

The story passed down over the ages tell us that the God Vishnu searched the depths of the sea for a pearl to adorn his daughter on her wedding day. Pearls, even then, were considered the bearers of love, happiness and good fortune. Vishnu's gift to his daughter was considered a most thoughtful wedding gift. The pearl is still considered a most appropriate adornment for our modern brides.

Of course, even without magical powers, pearls are the perfect choice for a bride. A woman's wedding day is very special and one on which she wants to look her most radiant - there is nothing as flattering to the complexion as the pearl's unique glow.

Stop in at Reusch Jewelers and let our experts show you our collection of nature's lustrous gift - the pearl.

Historic Beaver Island

The Beaver Island Historical Society Museum

Come to the Block Party!

An old fashioned block party — featuring a box supper and square dance — will be held in St. James on Saturday, Aug. 2.

The party will climax a week of activities sponsored by the Beaver Island Historical Society, which is celebrating its 25th anniversary. The society dedicated to preserving the island's past, collects and exhibits in its museum, the former Mormon Print Shop, the artifacts of the three cultures which dominated the island: Indian, Mormon and Irish.

"Our aim is to interpret what has happened on this island," Curator Shirley Gladish told the Courier. "The island has enough history of its own to be exciting."

This past spring, the society opened a Marine Museum on the harbor in a renovated net shed to exhibit its collection of marine lore, primarily from the once thriving fishing industry of the Beaver Islands. The Marine Museum was started as a Bicentennial project by the Bicentennial Committee. It was then turned over to the Beaver Island Historical Society.

Museum Week will start on Monday, July 28. It will highlight not only the island's past, but also will show the present day activities of the Beaver Islanders. Of special interest, will be a photograph exhibit entitled "What Do You Do On Beaver Island?"

Each day on the porch of the Print Shop, one of the island's craftsmen will demonstrate his/her craft - from stone craft to cake and cookie decoration. On Wednesday evening, Professor R.V. Dietrich, a geologist and summer resident, will lecture on the stones to be found on Beaver. Thursday evening the island's authors will be honored at an autograph party, which will feature the debut of the second volume of Beaver Island History. Among the authors to be honored include: Helen Collar, Wayne Cashman, David Gladish, Phil Gregg, Margaret Hanley, Doyle Fitzpatrick, Antje Price, Al Montague, Matt Flohn and Dietrich.

For the children, island story tellers will entertain on the porch each day from 1-2 p.m., folk dancers will teach them simple steps, and on Thursday afternoon, the society will sponsor a dog show with prizes for such categories as dog-with-the-longest-ears to dog-who-sits-up-the-longest.

Beaver Island can be reached by ferry boat from Charlevoix or plane from Traverse City, Harbor Springs, Pellston or Charlevoix.

* * * *

The Beaver Island Historical Society was incorporated in 1957. A.J. Roy served as president of the society from its inception to 1977. When Roy retired, it was uncertain which direction the society would go. But a group of hard working individuals has kept the society in business. Society members are hoping Museum Week will encourage others on the island to take a more active interest in the island's heritage. The Board of Directors for the Historical Society include: [illegible] Langford, president, Alice Dorian, secretary, Dick Burris, Grace Cole, Phil Gregg, Ed [illegible], and Curt Petrak.

BOARD OF APPEALS

The Board of Appeals convened with Councilmen Porter, Timms Councilwoman Roloff, and Councilmen Wood, Muma, and Whitley present Absent None

The Board discussed the Special Use Permit for a Montessori Children's House at 201 E. Garfield as approved by the City Planning Commission. Michael Gibbons, an attorney representing those residents opposed to the Permit, stated that the Planning Commission issued the Permit contingent upon a suitable Site Plan for parking being submitted to the City Council. Mr. Gibbons further stated that he had just seen the Site Plan and would need some time to study it. Ms Katie Donovan, applicant for the Permit, stated that the matter had been thoroughly discussed and pointed out that the Ordinance does not give residents the right to decide who their neighbors are. She also pointed out that she had proven herself to be a good neighbor at the present Montessori location and had received no complaints. Clem Olach, representing the City Planning Commission, stated that the majority of the Commission's members felt the Permit could not legally be denied. The City Attorney advised the Board and the General Public present that a motion to approve the Permit would require four affirmative votes and asked that those Board members voting in the negative be required to state their reasons for doing so. Mr. Gibbons stated several areas in which he felt the parking plan presented would not be suitable and that the Board would create a hazard if the Plan were approved by overloading the [redacted]

Moved by Councilman Whitley and supported by Councilman Porter to approve a Special Use Permit as granted by the City Planning Commission for a Montessori Children's House at 201 E. Garfield St., as requested by Katie Donovan, subject to final Site Plan approval of a plan for parking

Yeas. Councilman Porter Nays. Councilmen Timms Councilwoman Roloff, and Councilmen Wood, Muma, and Whitley Absent None

Following a brief recess, Mayor Supernaw directed the City Clerk to poll those Board members voting in the negative for their [redacted] The following reasons [redacted]

Councilman Timms. Would [redacted] much traffic in the residential area and parking plan inadequate

Councilwoman Roloff: Too much traffic, inadequate parking disturbing to the neighbors property value fails to equal other properties in the area [redacted] area to pick up the children, and anticipated problems with snow [redacted]

Councilman Wood Inadequate parking

Councilman Muma Inadequate parking with no consideration of the neighbors

Councilman Whitley Overwhelming opposition by the [redacted]

Councilman Porter stated [redacted] his reasons for voting yes were because he felt that granting the Permit would not contribute significantly to the traffic or parking problem on the street, that the issue was overblown, that the Children's house had no complaints from the neighbors at their present location, and that the neighbors fears are basically unfounded.

[redacted] request by Michael Walker of 310 Lewis Street to construct a 5 sideyard fence, 18" in excess of the allowable height. Mrs Walker [redacted] care and wants the fence for [redacted] She further stated that the fence is already in place and was erected without a permit as she was [redacted]

Moved by Councilwoman Roloff and supported by Councilman Porter to approve a variance as requested by Michael Walker of 310 Lewis Street to construct a 5 foot side yard fence.

Motion was denied by the following yea and nay vote

Yeas Councilmen Porter Timms and Councilwoman Roloff Nays Councilmen Wood Muma, [redacted] Whitley Absent [redacted]

Dale Boss, representing the Charlevoix Historical Society, appeared before the Board to discuss the Society's request for two variances at their building at 103 State Street. Mr Boss stated that approval of the variances would allow construction of an addition that would house items people wished to donate to the Society. It was pointed out that the City Planning Commission had approved issuance of the variances provided the Society present a Site Plan showing twelve parking spaces to the City Council. Mr Boss stated that visitors to the building could park on the City street or in the First State Bank parking lot and that it would be necessary to remove trees from the lot if they have to provide twelve on site parking places

Moved by Councilman Muma and supported by Councilman Timms to approve two variances as requested by the Charlevoix Historical Society of 103 State Street, to reduce the required rear yard setback from 25 feet to 16 feet 9 inches, and the north side yard setback from 10 feet to 6 feet 4 inches, as the Society is a benefit to the City.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote

Yeas: Councilmen Timms, Councilwoman Roloff, and Councilmen Wood, Muma, and Whitley Nays Councilman Porter. Absent None

Meet Charlevoix

By Peg Ohle

Dave Knight this week assumed his dutries as editor of the Charlevoix Courier, so we thought a "Meet Charlevoix" interview would be a good way to introduce him to our readers.

COURIER: When did you first think you might like to be a newspaper editor

KNIGHT: I felt an affection for journalism and thought of it as a possible career when I was in grade school. I liked to write creatively, and observe and record things. I received more direction in high school when I became involved with the high school paper and began writing for the town newspaper, mainly [redacted].

COURIER: What bit of writing do you remember most from those early days

KNIGHT: There was one thing that got a lot of attention. We have a summer home in South Haven that my great grandfather built in 1900. When I was about 11, four cousins and I hiked to Saugatuck and I kept a log and wrote a feature story aboutr the trip. My grandfather had it copied and distributed it all over. That was probably my first published work.

COURIER: What did you do after you finished high school

KNIGHT: I wanted to explore a different part of the country (I was living in Reedsburg in southern Wisconsin), so I went to Syracuse University in New York state

Syracuse was in a part of the country I wanted to know more about. I took a general studies course at Syracuse. It was a good place for me to develop journalistic instincts because people from the east were fascinating to me. I observed them and became acquainted with their backgrounds. Such observation is important in a journalistic career.

COURIER: And later you transferred to the University of [redacted]

KNIGHT: Yes. By the time I finished my second year at Syracuse, the University of Wisconsin had finished its new journalism complex. It is one of the best journalism schools in the country and I could go there for less tuition, so I started my journalism studies there.

COURIER: What kind of a curriculum did you follow

KNIGHT: It was a program integrating wildlife ecology with journalism called an "environmental communications sequence". My advisor and I put it together, and it contained a broad range of journalism courses — broacast, editing, advertising, etc. — with biology courses.

COURIER: Did you find a job where you could put this type of education to work

KNIGHT: Yes. After I graduated, I took a job with the Wisconsin Wildlife Federation, which is equivalent to the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, although they are not as well organized or as big. However, they are both affiliated with the National Wildlife Federation. My job was publishing their magazine. After that I went to the Reedsburg Times-Press as editor and stayed there until coming here. The Reedsburg-Dells area has an economy similar to Charlevoix because it is tourist oriented and seasonal, with some industrial base.

COURIER: What do you think is a weekly newspaper editor's main job

KNIGHT: In Reedsburg, we established a good relationship with our readers in credibility and accessibility. I think that's important for a small town paper. Circulation is important, advertising is important, but I believe that working toward making a more responsible paper will bring in more ads and readers as a by-product.

COURIER: What are your outside interests

KNIGHT: My wife, Krista, and I both enjoy music, and the many opportunities in this area for music experiences made the job as editor of the Courier more attractive. Krista is classically inclined, having graduated from the Lawrence Conservatory of Music in Appleton, Wis. She is a violinist. My inclinations are more toward the folk and blue grass style, so somewhere we have created a new musical idiom caled "country punk". We enjoy getting together with friends and playing informally. We'd like to join a group here. I play the guitar, but my major instrument is the wash tub bass. I consider myself a true virtuoso on that instrument. I have even recorded an educational series for a music publisher.

COURIER: What about sports

KNIGHT: We both enjoy outdoor recreation, including cross country skiing and tennis. We're anxious to learn to sail.

COURIER: Any other hobbies

KNIGHT: I like to make wood-burned etchings, basically of wildlife scenes. They are burned and etched onto rustic wood plaques. I do this mainly for my personal relaxation, although I've participated in some art shows.

COURIER: How long have you and Krista been married

KNIGHT: Sixteen months. I met her when she came to Reedsburg to direct the strings program in the Reedsburg schools.

COURIER: Except for the time you spent at Syracuse University, you've spent all your life in Wisconsin, haven't you

KNIGHT: Yes. I have always lived in the Reedsburg-Dells area. I have five sisters and one brother, all younger. My father is a doctor in Reedsburg. Coming from a family of five girls, I don't mind working in an office full of women such as at the Courier.

COURIER: Do you have any special message for our readers

KNIGHT: Yes, I'm anxious to hear of story ideas from people who have them. I'm always open to suggestions.

Dining and Entertainment SPOTLIGHT

Piano, organ, vocal recitals planned

A program of piano music by [illegible] Klimas, vocal music by Paul Huybrechts, and organ music by Bill Klimas, will be held at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix on Monday, July [illegible].

Patricia Klimas has been playing professionally in the Grand Rapids area for the last 3 years. She is a junior at Grand Valley State Colleges and is a candidate for a Bachelor of Music degree. She is a Performing Member of the St. Cecelia Society of Grand Rapids, and was first runner-up in the 1980 Concerto Competition sponsored by the Women's Committee for the Grand Rapids Symphony. She was also a recitalist in the 1979-80 Young Keyboard Artist Series in Grand Rapids.

Paul Huybrechts, baritone, is a recent graduate from the Grand Valley State Colleges with a B.A. in Music. While at Grand Valley, he performed extensively as a soloist at the school and in the Grand Rapids area. In the Petoskey area, he has performed as a soloist in Handel's "Messiah" along with performing several solo recitals. Paul has studied with Waldie Anderson at Interlochen, William Beidler at Grand Valley and is presently studying with Gene Allen at Bay View. Monday, he will perform works by Duparc, Quilter and Brahms.

Bill Klimas is from Grand Rapids, and received his B.A. at Grand Valley State Colleges in 1978 where he studied organ with George Shirley, and piano with Julianne Vanden Wyngaard. He was the assistant organist and choirmaster at Park Congregational Church in Grand Rapids for 3 years and organist-choirmaster at Holy Redeemer Parish in Jenison for one year. Recently he has been the organist at First Congregational Church in Charlevoix for several summers, and has given several recitals here.

Bill is presently working on his Master of Music degree at Westminster Choir College, majoring in organ performance and church music. He is studying organ with William Hayes, and conducting with John Kemp and Joseph Flummerfelt. Mr Kemp is the head of the Church Music Department, and Mr. Flummerfelt is head of choral activities at Westminster. At present Bill is the organist-choirmaster at the Jamesburg United Presbyterian Church in Jamesburg, New Jersey. He will be playing a program of music by Saint Saev, Hindemith, & others.

DR. ELLEN ARVILLA, formerly of Charlevoix, is keeping quite busy as Michigan's 4-H Handicapper Program [illegible].

Recently, 21 counties in the state received a special grant to implement mainstreaming pilot projects, to help handicappers and temporarily able-bodied (TAB) persons better understand one another and work together more effectively

"Most people tend to think about handicappers as a group with limited potential," Arvilla said. "That's not true Handicappers can achieve as many things as TABs. They just need special tools to accomplish the task."

According to Arvilla, almost everyone is handicapped in some way but overcomes his-her difficulties with the aid of various tools.

"If you wear glasses, you're handicapped. You can't read the paper without them, or drive your car. But with glasses you are able to carry out your daily routine," she explained. "Everyone in some way or another must learn to live with his or her handicaps. Through the mainstreaming program, we aim to show others that handicaps don't limit someone's potential or desirability. Being handicapped only means those persons have a choice of how their mental or physical characteristics might direct their life's activities."

Arvilla says that each county staff will determine how it wishes to integrate handicappers and TABs in its 4-H programs. Many are training volunteers to become 4-H leaders, and others are involving handicapped youth in regular 4-H programs and activities. These range from arts and crafts to wilderness adventure.

"For many years, handicappers were denied the opportunity to function as normal human beings and participate in activities TABs of their age were participating in," Arvilla said. "Through the 4-H mainstreaming program any person, regardless of physical or mental characteristics, will have a chance to benefit from the 4-H program's successful learn-by-doing philosophy."

Weekend attire

Tami Noirot models a commemorative T-shirt specially designed for this weekend's 50th annual Venetian Festival. The stylish logo was designed by local artist Ken Swan. The shirts, sky blue in color, are available in childrens and adults sizes. They will be sold for $4.95 and $5.95 respectively, at a Chamber of Commerce booth downtown this Friday and Saturday.

Council hears final preparations for weekend, lets carnival stay downtown

The council chambers on the second floor of City Hall resembled a war room before D-Day Monday night as final briefings on Venetian Weekend and the Alice Cooper concert were given to council members.

Charlevoix Police Chief Jack Mol told the council that two Michigan State Patrol squad cars and ten troopers have been assigned to the area for the weekend to help local law enforcement personnel deal with the expected crowds.

Some predictions are for as many 50,000 people coming into Charlevoix over the weekend to attend either the 50th Venetian Festival or the Alice Cooper concert at Castle Farms.

Mol said that his department had contacted the highway office in charge of opening and closing the Pine River bridge downtown and received assurances that the bridge would stay down during the peak traffic periods unless an emergency situation developed.

Parking restrictions on Bridge Street were "physically impossible" to enforce, said Mol but he agreed to bag [illegible] of Bridge from Antrim to Clinton for the parade. Parade coordinator Bill Supernaw stressed that the extra width was needed to accomodate the three drum and bugle corps participating this year courtesy of the Medusa Cement Company

Confusion over the site of the carnival [illegible] downtown parking lot adjacent to East Park as the most logical site.

Charlevoix Housing Commission President Ralph McRae appeared before the council to request that sewer and water installation fees be waived for the elderly housing project for which construction is set to begin next month. The fees amount to approximately $18,000 and, according to McRae, would be unacceptable to the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) which is funding the project

No other city in the state with a similar HUD project has imposed such fees, he said, and to fail to waive them may cause further delay of construction.

Council member Jeff Porter moved to waive the fees except for the city's time and material, and the rest of the council approved

In other action, the council:

-Approved, in principle, the accessory use of the Woodland Oil gasoline bulk storage site on Charlevoix's north side for a retail gas outlet. A site plan has yet to be approved by the Plan Commission and the council.

-Set a public hearing on August 4 for the extension of the mayor's and city clerk's terms from one year to two years.

-Approved a preliminary site plan for [illegible] project

-Resoved to petition the County Drain Commissioner to set up a drainage district in hopes of solving a drainage problem with the May St. apartments.

-Agreed to a reciprocal fire and rescue aid pact with all other fire departments in Charlevoix County.

-Approved a request to close East Garfield Street on August 2 for a [illegible].

Settlement ends court fight between city, LBJ

Attorneys for the City of Charlevoix and LBJ Investments reached a mutually agreed upon settlement Friday ending a 15-month dispute over zoning restrictions on a Bridge St. building project.

Circuit Court Judge Martin B Breighner approved the settlement in which the city will cease criminal prosecution of LBJ Investments and LBJ will, in turn, drop its counter suit against the city

The matter stems from a building permit issued to LBJ Investments by the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection in April of 1979 for an addition planned to the structure at 100 Bridge St. The city later tried to revoke the permit on grounds that zoning requirements for parking were not met and that the addition was not accurately described in the permit

Attorney Donald G Berlage, representing LBJ and one of three investors in the firm, John Haggard, argued that parking requirements demanded of LBJ had not been equally enforced for other building projects in the central business district.

Berlage also maintained that a master plan had never been adopted by the city thus invalidating its zoning code.

Judge Breighner pointed out in his remarks that although City Attorney Frank G. Hoffman's agreement to dismiss charges against LBJ was proper, the city's zoning codes are still in effect and enforceable.

Halt to Cooper concert sought

At their Monday night meeting, the Marion Township board voted 4-0 to deny a permit for the Alice Cooper concert slated for this Saturday night at Castle Farms.

Supervisor Robert Potter said the township will seek an injunction this week in Charlevoix County Circuit Court to prevent the concert.

A similar measure taken to stop a Castle Farms concert last year was unsuccessful.

Among the reasons for the injunction, according to Potter, was potential damage to personal property of residents living near the concert site.

You know when summer arrives in Charlevoix. It hides behind sunglasses and wears the lingering fragrance of tanning lotion. It swarms one weekend - swelling sidewalks, populating shops and restaurants, and raising the bridge on the half-hour. Then, somewhere behind a white packet fence on the north end of town, wooden shutters are unlatched and thrown back for another summer season.

Chicago Club is one of a number of summer resort associations located in northern Michigan. Nestled among spreading shade trees on the far end of E. Dixon Street near the Depot, the Club provides a picturesque backdrop for this little corner of town.

The Association has a history of its own, like a subculture of sorts, dating back to its founding in 1889. At that time, and for some number of years thereafter, membership was exclusively from the Chicago area. Today, however, members come from Detroit, Grand Rapids and Cincinnati as well. Some, families in the Association have been summering in Charlevoix for generations.

Current president, W.R. Dickinson, Jr., for example reminisced that he first arrived at the Depot in 1913 at the ripe old age of two months. He assumed his position as president in the '50's, succeeding an uncle. Today, his family, along with grandchildren, come to spend time in Charlevoix.

There are presently thirteen members on the Board of the Association, chosen from the different towns and age groups so as to represent the needs of all the families who belong to Chicago Club. How does one become a member of this prestigious association?

Sheriff candidates respond to Courier questions

By PEG OHLE

There aren't many choices on the primary ballot for voters in Charlevoix County except for the office of Sheriff.

Not two, not three – but five men – all Republicans, are seeking the job that goes back to medieval days when the Sheriff of Nottingham was doing his bit in Merrie Olde England.

Incumbent George T. Lasater is running for re-election and is being opposed by three former members of the Sheriff's Department and one candidate who has had no previous law enforcement experience.

They are Wallace G. Brown, Wayne D. Chapman, Leonard H. Fuller, and James D. McCallum. In order to help voters make up their minds about whom to vote for, the Courier asked all five candidates to answer a set of five questions.

Their replies, question by question, appear as they were returned to us:

QUESTION: What background do you have that qualifies you for the job of Sheriff

LASATER: Completion of first term of office as Sheriff of Charlevoix County. In addition: Six years as Deputy Sheriff, six years as Chief Probation Officer, eight years as college instructor in law enforcement, associate degree in law enforcement, bachelor degree and current master degree program in law enforcement, 402 hours in training within the last four years to keep abreast of new laws, methods, and procedures.

BROWN: Joined the Highland Park Police Department in 1947 Served as beat-auto and motorcyle officer. Promoted to detective in 1965. Elevated to detective sergeant in 1969. Retired as detective sergeant in 1973. Joined the Region [illegible] North Detective Unit for Charlevoix and Emmett Counties in 1973 and served until 197[illegible].

CHAPMAN: Thirty years in business administration covering organization, productivity, and employer-employee relations. Over three years direct contact with the law, fighting for equal protection the hard way. Approximately eight years as a corporation vice-president, approximately nine years as a corporation president (non-profit). Since the Sheriff's job is an administrative one, I feel I am the most qualified and experienced.

FULLER: For the last nine years, my administrative performance has been closely analyzed, resulting in my placement in several managerial positions. During this time, I held personal responsibilities for the welfare of over [illegible] employees. I was the Sheriff's Posse Commander in the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department for two and a half years and experienced [illegible] hours of extra law enforcement training

In California, I attended U.C.L.A. in the field of business management for two years and in Michigan experienced seven months training in business security systems. Charlevoix County has been my home and the home of my family for over nine years. I have given my time freely coaching, sponsoring, and organizing sports oriented youth groups in our county and have become very aware of the problems and pressures that face our young people daily

McCALLUM: I served as a Deputy Sheriff under Sheriff Glenn Rose, served as a Deputy Sheriff under Philo Sumner. I also served as Under Sheriff of this County from 1971 until 1977. Of the five candidates running for Sheriff, only the present Sheriff and myself has ever run this Sheriff's Department.

QUESTION: How do you think the Sheriff's Department budget should be spent.

LASATER: In consideration of the current crime rate and population of our county, I feel that our budget is adequate and if administered properly can provide our citizens with continued professional and agressive law enforcement that is responsible to the needs of our citizens.

BROWN: A balanced working budget, staying within division guidelines.

CHAPMAN: For what it was intended – equal protection for all the citizens. I propose crime prevention at no extra cost to the taxpayer.

FULLER: Utilizing any large budget to its fullest potential is not an easy job, but one of the things uppermost in my mind would be the possible procurement of some of the several federal and state grants that are made available for just this kind of aid. Also, a solid program for personal re-assessment of physical and mental health should be established within the department to combat job-related stress problems. A central dispatch system should be promoted to increase response time to complaints.

McCALLUM: The Department budget should be spent for law enforcement and other statutory requirements of the Sheriff's Department. It should not be spent on pet projects of the Sheriff, or to duplicate programs offered by other agencies, both public and private, such as placing blue stickers on homes or businesses to inform thieves the Sheriff is protecting that building. I'm sure the thieves are aware of that fact. The taxpayers pay for that [illegible].

Names In The News

DR. ELLEN ARVILLA, formerly of Charlevoix, is keeping quite busy as Michigan's 4-H Handicapper Program Coordinator.

Recently, 21 counties in the state received a special grant to implement mainstreaming pilot projects, to help handicappers and temporarily able-bodied (TAB) persons better understand one another and work together more effectively.

"Most people tend to think about handicappers as a group with limited potential," Arvilla said. "That's not true. Handicappers can achieve as many things as TABs. They just need special tools to accomplish the task."

According to Arvilla, almost everyone is handicapped in some way but overcomes his-her difficulties with the aid of various tools.

"If you wear glasses, you're handicapped. You can't read the paper without them, or drive your car. But with glasses you are able to carry out your daily routine," she explained. "Everyone in some way or another must learn to live with his or her handicaps. Through the mainstreaming program, we aim to show others that handicaps don't limit someone's potential or desirability. Being handicapped only means those persons have a choice of how their mental or physical characteristics might direct their life's activities."

Arvilla says that each county staff will determine how it wishes to integrate handicappers and TABs in its 4-H programs. Many are training volunteers to become 4-H leaders, and others are involving handicapped youth in regular 4-H programs and activities. These range from arts and crafts to wilderness adventure.

"For many years, handicappers were denied the opportunity to function as normal human beings and participate in activities TABs of their age were participating in," Arvilla said. "Through the 4-H mainstreaming program any person, regardless of physical or mental characteristics, will have a chance to benefit from the 4-H program's successful learn-by-doing philosophy."

Weekend attire

Tami Noirot models a commemorative T-shirt specially designed for this weekend's 50th annual Venetian Festival. The stylish logo was designed by local artist Ken Swan. The shirts, sky blue in color, are available in childrens and adults sizes. They will be sold for $4.95 and $5.95 respectively, at a Chamber of Commerce booth downtown this Friday and Saturday.

Council hears final preparations for weekend, lets carnival stay downtown

The council chambers on the second floor of City Hall resembled a war room before D-Day Monday night as final briefings on Venetian Weekend and the Alice Cooper concert were given to council members.

Charlevoix Police Chief Jack Mol told the council that two Michigan State Patrol squad cars and ten troopers have been assigned to the area for the weekend to help local law enforcement personnel deal with the expected crowds.

Some predictions are for as many 50,000 people coming into Charlevoix over the weekend to attend either the 50th Venetian Festival or the Alice Cooper concert at Castle Farms.

Mol said that his department had contacted the highway office in charge of opening and closing the Pine River bridge downtown and received assurances that the bridge would stay down during the peak traffic periods unless an emergency situation developed.

Parking restrictions on Bridge Street were "physically impossible" to enforce, said Mol but he agreed to bag meters and ban parking on the east side of Bridge from Antrim to Clinton for the parade. Parade coordinator Bill Supernaw stressed that the extra width was needed to accomodate the three drum and bugle corps participating this year courtesy of the Medusa Cement Company.

Confusion over the site of the carnival [illegible] downtown parking lot adjacent to East Park as the most logical site.

Charlevoix Housing Commission President Ralph McRae appeared before the council to request that sewer and water installation fees be waived for the elderly housing project for which construction is set to begin next month. The fees amount to approximately $18,000 and, according to McRae, would be unacceptable to the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) which is funding the project.

No other city in the state with a similar HUD project has imposed such fees, he said, and to fail to waive them may cause further delay of construction.

Council member Jeff Porter moved to waive the fees, except for the city's time and material, and the rest of the council approved.

In other action, the council:

-Approved, in principle, the accessory use of the Woodland Oil gasoline bulk storage site on Charlevoix's north side for a retail gas outlet. A site plan has yet to be approved by the Plan Commission and the council.

-Set a public hearing on August 4 for the extension of the mayor's and city clerk's terms from one year to two years.

-Approved a preliminary site plan for the Michigan Beach Erosion Control project.

-Resoved to petition the County Drain Commissioner to set up a drainage district in hopes of solving a drainage problem with the May St. [illegible]

-Agreed to a reciprocal fire and rescue aid pact with all other fire departments in Charlevoix County.

-Approved a request to close East Garfield Street on August 2 for a neighborhood festival.

Settlement ends court fight between city, LBJ

Attorneys for the City of Charlevoix and LBJ Investments reached a mutually agreed upon settlement Friday ending a 15-month dispute over zoning restrictions on a Bridge St. building project.

Circuit Court Judge Martin B. Breighner approved the settlement in which the city will cease criminal prosecution of LBJ Investments and LBJ will, in turn, drop its counter suit against the city.

The matter stems from a building permit issued to LBJ Investments by the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection in April of 1979 for an addition planned to the structure at 100 Bridge St. The city later tried to revoke the permit on grounds that zoning requirements for parking were not met and that the addition was not accurately described in the permit.

Attorney Donald G. Berlage, representing LBJ and one of three investors in the firm, John Haggard, argued that parking requirements demanded of LBJ had not been equally enforced for other building projects in the [illegible].

Berlage also [illegible] a master plan had never been adopted by the city thus invalidating its zoning code.

Judge Breighner pointed out in his remarks that although City Attorney Frank G. Hoffman's agreement to dismiss charges against LBJ was proper, the city's zoning codes are still in effect and enforceable.

Halt to Cooper concert sought

At their Monday night meeting, the Marion Township board voted 4-0 to deny a permit for the Alice Cooper concert slated for this Saturday night at Castle Farms.

Supervisor Robert Potter said the township will seek an injunction this week in Charlevoix County Circuit Court to prevent the concert.

A similar measure taken to stop a Castle Farms concert last year was unsuccessful.

Among the reasons for the injunction, according to Potter, was potential damage to personal property of residents living near the concert site.

Selling Your House by Gene Steele

UNSEEN FACTORS

When you consider buying a home in a new locality, you'll want to know as much about the town and neighborhood as possible. Much of this information you can get from "eyeballing" the area, but there are important factors which the eye cannot see.

For example, local property taxes, public services, public transportation, hospitals, churches, community facilities and the zoning restrictions? Are there any unusual deed restrictions common to the area on how you might later alter or expand your property? What are the future prospects for the neighborhood?

A good, local Realtor can be a quarry of such information. He should have a feeling born of the familiarity for the specific neighborhoods in his territory. Level with him at the outset about what you want and he'll do his darndest to help you find it. That's what he's there for.

Statler Bros. suit against Castle Farms dismissed

A suit filed nearly two years ago in Charlevoix Circuit Court by the Statler Brothers against Castle Farms has been dismissed.

The suit stemmed from a concert the Statler Brothers were to give at Castle Farms on Aug. 19, 1978. The concert was cancelled, however, because of poor ticket sales.

The Statler Brothers argued that they were not notified of the cancellation until Aug. 17, two days prior to the proposed concert date. Because of the late notice, they claimed, they were unable to make alternative plans.

The Statler Brothers showed up at Castle Farms on Aug. 19 "prepared to play" anyway. They asked to be paid but were refused. The Statler Brothers claimed they were guaranteed $15,000 or 60 percent of the gross ticket sales, whichever greater, to be paid the night of the performance.

Art Reibel, owner of Castle Farms, said that he agreed to compensation only in the event the concert was "accomplished." Reibel added that he had the "sole and exclusive right to cancel the concert in the event ticket sales did not warrant the concert."

"The parties agreed that in no event was a talent fee guaranteed," Reibel said.

Furthermore, Patty Muma, who worked at Castle Farms at the time, testified that the Statler Brothers were not ready to perform when they arrived at Castle Farms. She said they had no instruments or supporting cast with them and that the opening act was not even in the state. She said she notified an agent for the Statler Brothers of the lagging ticket sales in early August.

The Statlers asked for $15,000 plus six percent interest, costs and attorney fees.

In dismissing the suit with prejudice, Circuit Court Judge Martin Breighner awarded costs to the defendants (Castle Farms).

New marina is planned

A 30 slip marina on Lake Charlevoix is on the drafting board and could - if state and federal permits are approved - be a reality by next summer.

Barry Boone, who once owned a sail boat shop in Charlevoix, is proposing to construct the marina on property off Ferry Avenue near Irish Marina. Boone has already received local approval. He is hoping to get the DNR and Army Corps of Engineer stamp of approval by fall. The marina would be 170 feet by 330 feet (water [illegible]).

In addition to the 30 slips, Boone is proposing a bath house and pump-out facility.

According to Pat Yoder, who is securing the permits for Boone, a recent survey taken in Charlevoix (by the developers) indicated that more slip space is needed.

Bids are opened for elderly housing

Contractors and Housing Commission members gathered for bid opening ceremonies Wednesday

Charlevoix's Elderly Housing project took a step closer to reality Wednesday, July 16, when bids for construction and landscaping of the project were opened at City Hall.

"This is a big day for Charlevoix," said Ralph McRae, president of the Charlevoix Housing Commission.

The Housing Commission opened sealed bids from three firms for the landscaping of the 3.7 acre plot on West Garfield and from eleven building contractors for general construction.

Although no bids were officially accepted, West Shore Builders of Ludington came in with the lowest figure of $1,598,000 for construction of the 62-unit facility. An apparent low bid of $29,777.75 was submitted by Green Side Up, a Traverse City company, for the landscaping.

Bids averaged $1,812,724 for construction and $32,507 for landscaping.

All bids have been forwarded to the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), the agency proving the funding for the project. Contract awards will be made after HUD approves of the bids. The approval process is expected to take about two weeks.

McRae set a tentative groundbreaking date of Wednesday, August 6 providing there are no delays in the bid process. Construction is expected to take about one year.

Other bids for construction of the project included $1,789,327 from Omega Construction of Grandville, $1,890,000 from McDonald Construction of Sault Ste Marie, $2,130,000 from Tom Shaw of Cheboygan, $1,848,000 from Tempo, Inc. of Grand Rapids, $1,792,044 from Comstock Construction Company of Traverse City, $1,734,000 from Grand Traverse Construction of Traverse City, $1,875,000 from Chain-of-Lakes Construction of Bellaire, $1,789,600 from Lerner-Linden of Novi, $1,934,000 from Sin/Bar Construction Company of Petoskey and $1,780,000 from Tezak Construction Company of Traverse City.

Other landscape bids were $34,569 from the C.H. Smith Company of Charlevoix and $33,175 from Katerberg-Verhage of Grand Rapids.

School Board names new teacher

The Charlevoix Board of Education, at its regular meeting Monday, approved the hiring of a Home Economics-English teacher, and discussed goals for the coming year. In addition Max Novak, president of the board, appointed committees for the coming year.

Sally Kahlo, who graduated from Western Michigan University in August with a major in Home Economics and a minor in Communicative Arts and Sciences, was offered a probationary contract for the 1980-81 school year. Mrs. Kahlo, of Muskegon, did her practice teaching at Fruitport Middle School. She is married. Her husband will accompany her here.

President Novak appointed the following committees for the 1980-81 school year; (the

Big Rock will shut down for tests

Automatic and manual test scrams will be conducted at the Big Rock Point Nuclear Power Plant this week following the decision by Consumers Power Company to comply with a request by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to run the tests.

Testing will require a shutdown of the plant for at least two days. Findings of any further maintenance work to be done while the reactor is shut down, however, may extend that period according to Consumers Power spokesman, Phil Loomis.

The NRC requested the shutdown in a July 3 communique sent to 24 nuclear power plants using boiling water reactors. The action followed a June 28 incident at the Browns Ferry Unit 3 nuclear plant in Alabama in which a number of control rods, used to halt the nuclear reaction process, did not insert correctly.

Testing at Big Rock will consist of a manual scram in which operators initiate the insertion of control rods and an automatic scram in which conditions are simulated that would normally cause insertion of the control rods without operator intervention.

The shutdown will come on the thirteenth day of a 20-day period designated by the NRC during which the test scrams were to be conducted. Other associated tests directed by the NRC have been completed at Big Rock.

The shutdown is the first at the plant since January 15 when a small reactor leak prompted a 7½ hour shutdown. This week's testing will require Consumers Power to purchase power from another source for the duration of the shutdown. No resulting effects on delivery of power to users by the company is expected.

Charlevoix Outdoors...

Alewives back in force this summer

...by Burford

Starting this week the Courier will feature a semi-regular column on the outdoors. Subject matter will range as widely as the great outdoors itself but will concentrate primarily on the Charlevoix area. Pertinent news items, announcements and other material - including personal opinions on what is said here - are welcome. Send them to Burford, care of the Courier, 405 Bridge St., Charlevoix, 49720.

Remember the song that said something about "By the light of the silvery moon"? A 1980 version written for Charlevoix might replace that lyric with "By the light of the silvery beach."

Not since the big die-off of 1967 have so many alewives littered the beaches of Lake Michigan. That monumental mess 13 years ago was one of the major factors behind the successful restocking of the lake's trout and salmon population.

And that program in turn became one of the sport fishing success stories of all time.

But the delicate balance created when the introduced predatory species held the alewife population in check has been upset.

Myrl Keller, director of the Great Lakes Fisheries Station in Charlevoix, describes the die-off as a classic example of nature's way of doing things. Earlier this spring when alewives started washing up in unusually large numbers, samples of the dead fish were sent to Genoa, Wisconsin for analysis. According to Keller, no toxic substances or parasites were detected, food was in the fishes' stomachs and the only bacterial growth found was that which had occurred after death.

In other words, the studies revealed no physiological cause of death.

Since then it has been theorized that a greatly diminished predator population allowed the alewives to multiply faster than their storied cousins on Mount Sinai. Unregulated gill netting, says Keller, has reduced salmonoid populations in the lake thus negating the only limiting factor to the alewife numbers.

Other factors may well be involved. Alewives have exhibited some degree of sensitivity to change in water temperature and Keller believes that the resulting stress may have something to do with the mass die-offs.

Whatever the specific biological reason, though, the bottom line is that nature has its ways of correcting imbalances, man-made or otherwise. As an example one need only count deer carcasses in the North Woods during a harsh winter that had been preceded by one or two mild ones in which the deer herd thrived to the point of overcrowding.

The short term outlook is a good one in that the worst of this year's alewife die-off is believed to be over. Late spawning, induced by cold weather this spring, lengthened the alewife cycle a bit but Keller thinks that [illegible] on the beaches as the summer progresses.

We can expect mass die-offs of similar or greater magnitude in the future, however, if the predatory species are not built up again, says Keller. A total of $24 million is being pumped into the renovation of fish stocking facilities in Michigan and most of that work should be completed within about two years.

And the gill netting? That'll be a topic for another day.

Leave the car at home

Tickets are sold, floats are being built and the fireworks are ready to be lit. Alice Cooper is coming to town this weekend for a Castle Farms concert at the same time the Venetian Festival will be observing its 50th year.

Organizers of the two events are hoping for turnouts of 20,000 and 30,000 respectively. If their expectations are fulfilled, the resulting confusion will be massive indeed.

One must sympathize with the concerns of Sheriff Lasater that the community's law enforcement personnel are facing an unmanageable situation and that steps should be taken to prevent such unwise planning in the future.

But that does not help matters this weekend. The events are set to go and we are just going to have to work together to make the weekend a good experience for everyone.

Vehicular traffic will be perhaps the biggest problem, especially on Saturday when most out-of-town visitors will be arriving. There are a few things local residents might do to help ease the confusion.

If locals have family or friends coming into town, they should advise them now to arrive before the weekend and, if possible, stay through Monday. It would also be a good idea to direct them to back roads and alternate routes since the main arteries into and out of Charlevoix will be jammed.

Charlevoix residents should plan to keep their cars in their driveways during the thick of the festivities. That means stocking up on groceries and other supplies for the weekend early in the week.

People should rely on bicycles and legs to get around town this weekend. Chances are that no matter where you live in town, you'll be able to get downtown faster by walking than driving and having to find a place to park.

The key to making the weekend a success for all parties involved is cooperation. We have plenty of time to think about next year but this weekend is almost upon us and there is no reason why we cannot make the best of it and have a good time regardless of the crowds and traffic.

Let's all be careful, be helpful and have fun!

Knight on the Town

The Bikes of Bridge Street

Sidewalks are for feet and roadways are for wheels. Right? Not on Bridge Street.

How familiar is the following scenario? You are leisurely strolling downtown, window shopping perhaps or gazing across East Park at the boats, when suddenly one or more puntsized, two-wheeled speedsters shoot past you from behind, passing close enough to brush a few arm hairs on their way by.

Know what I'm talking about?

Get one thing straight, now. I've got nothing against bicycles. Have one myself and should be using it more often. I'll be happy to give up my car for one as soon as they design a bicycle seat that doesn't feel like you're sitting on a fence rail.

But the Bikes of Bridge Street are time-warped mutants of the classic design that made Grandfather Schwinn rich and famous.

These bikes are built for hot dogging and explosive speed. Generally, they are constructed on a 45-inch frame, have knobbies for tires and butterfly handlebars. Some are custom jobs, others right out of the K-Mart basement. Many have big racing numerals on the frame as if we all had programs to look up the name of someone who does a nice wheel stand in front of the drug store.

The Bikes of Bridge Street are not designed to transport their riders from point A to point B. They are designed to take their riders from point A into a fantasy land where glistening wheel spokes turn in the sun to the slow motion beat of a Chuck Mangione tune as the bike gracefully soars over a dusty California hilltop.

Getting to point B is strictly secondary.

The average age of the Bridge Street biker is eleven. Most of them roam the sidewalks by two's or three's though it is not uncommon to see packs of up to five and, occasionally, loners. They are a territorial breed who rarely wander from the downtown environs. They can often be observed en masse near arcades and pop machines.

Without hillsides or banked curves to stimulate these urban dirt racers, they make do with the challenges at hand. That's where you and I come in.

Pedestrians walking along a downtown sidewalk comprise a moving slalom course for the Bridge Street bikers. Their object is to weave among the crowds with optimum speed and daring. No points deducted if the fat lady's sun hat is jostled but woe be unto the dude who knocks a Popsicle out of a kid's hand.

Style points are the name of the game. One of the best and most punctual shows in town occurs every time the bridge opens downtown. There is about fifty feet of roadway between where the gates stop traffic and the edge of the bridge. It is in this area that the Bridge Street bikers, under the pretense of waiting for the bridge to close, do ten minutes of their best freestyle maneuvers for a captive audience of impatient motorists.

The best shows are around midday when the traffic lines are longest.

Unknowingly, the city has contributed to the Bridge Street bikers' sport by eliminating the bicyclist's oldest nemesis. The curb. As a wonderful convenience to the handicapped, downtown sidewalks now come to a gentle slope at the end of each block instead of a curb.

This allows a kid to glide from King's to the Weathervane virtually nonstop on the sidewalk. With the Clinton St. lights in his favor, he can push 30 to 40 miles an hour under good track conditions. One of these days some poor fellow is going to step out of the Town House and find himself cruising toward the river on a set of handlebars before he knows what hit him.

All we can hope is that the Bikes of Bridge Street are but a passing fancy. Perhaps next year hoola hoops or yo-yos will come back and the sidewalks will be safe again.

Until then, hang onto your Popsicles.

Time for a change

Every four years when the national political conventions roll around I have the distinct feeling that there must be a better way to select leaders for the world's oldest democratic republic — The United States of America.

The party hats, the tin horns, the bunting, the placards thrust skyward by tipsy delegates: What do they have to do with the serious business of running the country?

Convention folderol makes a mockery of the hundreds of thousands of men who have laid down their lives over the past 204 years to keep the country free and unfettered.

Mind you, I have nothing against partying it up. If all the Democrats and all the Republicans in the nation decided to get together every four years and throw a gigantic party, that's OK with me — just so long as they don't attempt to do any serious business while they are three sheets to the wind.

The party convention, as you well know, was not a part of our government to begin with. The Constitution mentions neither parties nor conventions. In fact its silence on nominating procedures is probably its greatest weakness.

However I think it is significant that some of our founding fathers, notably Thomas Jefferson, feared that the nation might degenerate into a party system — if we weren't careful.

But before we make any changes, perhaps we should ask ourselves if the party system as we know it today really works.

The answer is a resounding "No."

If it did, we would not come up with such political opponents as Barry Goldwater and Lyndon Johnson. Or Ronald Reagan or Jimmy Carter.

The party-convention system is so clumsy, so costly, so poorly organized and so unwieldy that it is almost inevitable that we end up with candidates so alien to the mainstream of American political thinking that the idea of going to the polls to choose one above the other is anathema to many of us.

Is it any wonder our percentage of voter turnout is so low?

When the new Congress convenes in January, one of its first tasks should be the naming of a joint House-Senate committee to draft an amendment to the Constitution establishing an orderly system for the nomination of presidential and vice presidential candidates.

At very least, the system should include:

1. A specific — and greatly foreshortened — period of time for the election process. Canada, as you'll recall, conducted a national election in about two months last winter — which is just about right. The election campaigns currently under way in the United States were old news 12 months ago — and they are still far from over.

2. Qualifications. I believe that candidates should have some background in either state or federal government. Candidates should either have served in Congress blank number of years, as governor of their home state for blank number of years, or in some judicial capacity blank number of years before being allowed to petition (more rules needed here) to take a crack at the presidency.

Of course, there should be some provision for the man-on-the-street to run, but this again could be handled by hefty petition requirements from a specified number of states.

3. Exposure. The amendment should make provision for a specified number of federally funded public debates by the finalists sometime between the primary (the first Tuesday in October?) and the general election (the first Tuesday in November).

4. Expenses. Republican candidate John Connally spent $10 million dollars to secure the nomination and ended up with one delegate. The amendment should establish a rigid ceiling on campaign expenses to curb such obvious waste.

Raising school millage will not affect taxes for elderly

Ralph Ostling

If you are 65 or older, additional school millage will not cost you an extra penny. A special property tax law designed to protect seniors from having to pay a higher percentage of their incomes to keep their homes is on the books in Michigan. The law limits property taxes to a fixed percent of a person's yearly income. Since many seniors live on a fixed income, this law plays a large role in allowing many seniors to keep their homes without having to pay prohibitively high property taxes.

As a result, even if a school millage increases, a senior's property taxes won't increase if their yearly income remains the same. Generally, this law places the burden of supporting schools on those citizens most likely to have children in school, and those most able to pay for that service. It relieves the burden on those over 65.

A new bill is currently being proposed in the Legislature that would make this property tax credit even more convenient. The legislation would allow citizens to receive their property tax credit before the date they must pay their property taxes without having to pay interest or penalty charges.

If you would like more information on tax breaks for senior citizens, please feel free to contact my Lansing office by mail, or by calling (517) 373-[illegible].

Disposal site far from decided

There have been reports that the Upper Peninsula is being studied as a possible nuclear disposal site. While this is certainly cause for concern, it is not yet cause for great alarm.

The studies being conducted now are very preliminary. Sites all over the nation - not just in Northern Michigan - are under consideration.

The Department of Energy (DOE) is leading the search for the disposal site. It has shown some interest in a strip of land called the Canadian Shield that includes parts of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Northern Michigan.

DOE officials met with representatives from these Canadian Shield states recently in Madison, Wis. Wisconsin Gov. Dreyfus stressed a need to develop an "open and clear partnership" between the states and the federal government, and I agree. So far the rumors have outnumbered the facts.

There is another reason I believe nuclear waste will not be stored in the Upper Peninsula. Michigan has a state law that bans nuclear waste disposal within its boundaries. I authored that bill while I was in the Senate, and I will do everything I can to keep it intact.

Recently the Governor's Committee on Nuclear Waste recommended that the ban be reconsidered. I would be shocked and disappointed if the state legislature followed that recommendation. To repeal a law that has only been on the state books for three years makes no sense.

The thought of nuclear waste being stored in Michigan's U.P. or anyplace in the state worries me a great deal. Because of Michigan's water table and the surrounding Great Lakes, it is inconceivable to me that our area could be considered for storage. I resent using Northern Michigan as a dumping site for any kind of waste.

Another important point on this issue is that Congress is now considering giving veto power to the states. Although this issue has not been finalized, it is still under serious consideration.

Right now there are too many ifs. A means for federal, state and local participation has yet to be established. This was one of the main recommendations [illegible] during the Madison meeting.

I will continue to closely monitor the situation. I firmly oppose any form of nuclear waste disposal in Northern Michigan, the Upper Peninsula or any other part of the Great Lakes Region, and will take whatever steps I can to stop the disposal of nuclear waste in our area.

AUTO INDUSTRY RESCUE PLAN

President Carter recently announced his assistance package for the auto industry. It's a step in the right direction, but it doesn't go far enough.

The Michigan news media has done a thorough job of covering the many points of the President's plan because it is so important to the welfare of our state. One positive point is that the plan would provide for Small Business Administration loans for dealers having trouble receiving loans from banks, and this may be helpful in Northern Michigan. One negative point is that the tax measures don't do a good job providing reinvestment incentives for the industry.

I was particularly disappointed that the plan did not do more to discourage imports of foreign vehicles. These imports have done severe damage to the American auto industry, and I wish the President would have addressed this problem in his assistance plan.

Objects to Montessori editorial

Letters

Dear Editor Knight:

Over one hundred (100) residents and their attorney, Michael A. Gibbons, resent being criticized in last week's editorial for asserting their right to be heard. The exercise of this right is fundamental to insuring a decision based on fact and [illegible] merit.

Case in point: The Charlevoix Planning Commission at an initial meeting held without benefit of a public hearing voted unanimously to approve the Montessori Children's House Special Use Permit. The City Manager, however, pointed out to the Planning Commission that the City of Charlevoix Zoning Ordinance first required a public hearing. After rescheduling the permit request, and holding the public hearing those same Planning Commission members then split their vote 3 to 3.

The neighborhood residents asserted their rights to be heard by filing with the City Council-Board of Appeals a written statement citing as reasons for their objections the following:

1. Traffic congestion.
2. Inadequate parking.
3. Number of children.
4. Noise
5. Snow removal
6. Property value.
7. Improper setback allowance.
8. Building should be converted to single family.

as well as pointing out that to approve the permit the Zoning Board of Appeals would thereby sanction some five separate zoning violations.

At no time was the Montessori Children's House, its operation or its program ever criticized, nor the program's benefits questioned. The neighborhood residents did, however, interpose reasoned objections and refused to waive their right to be heard in stating those objections in the community forum called a public hearing.

Sincerely,
Michael A. Gibbons

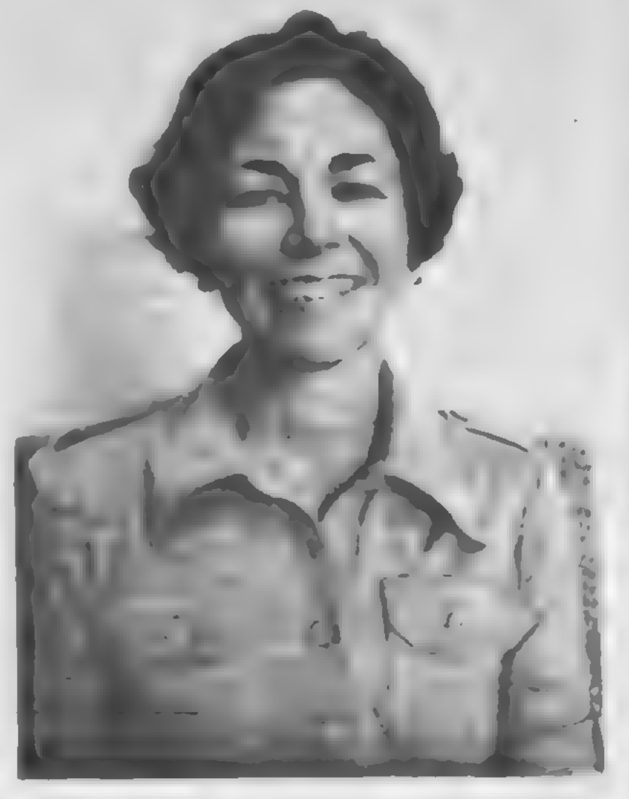
New President of Crooked Tree

Meet Charlevoix

By PEG OHLE

Mrs. Gordon (Joyce) Boydston last week was elected president of the Crooked Tree Arts Council. This week the Courier talks with her about this growing cultural organization which is in the process of raising funds for a permanent home.



Mrs. Gordon Boydston

COURIER: How long has the Crooked Tree Arts Council been in existence

BOYDSTON: We are celebrating our tenth birthday this summer

COURIER: What is the purpose of the Arts Council

BOYDSTON: We strive to bring to the area a wide variety of cultural experiences which normally are available only in the large metropolitan areas. Our little brochure lists some of our presentations as the Atlanta Ballet, Grand Rapids Philharmonic Orchestra, Michigan Opera Theatre, Northwood Symphonette, Amahl and the Night Visitors, Summer Concerts in the Park, and the Artrain.

COURIER: You also have a program for school children, don't you

BOYDSTON: Yes. The Arts Council provides a full yearly program to schools in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties in an effort to enable the children to develop an understanding and appreciation of the arts. We have presented the Prince Street Players of New York to children in Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City, and Petoskey. Their productions of "Cinderella" and "Pinnochio" enthralled the children. We have an annual Youth Art Show which allows children from kindergarten through high school to receive recognition for their creative efforts. We have taken groups of students to Flint to tour the art museum there. We have an "Artists in Residence" program, by which we bring artists like pianist James Dick and Poet Stephen Legget to local classrooms to teach students first hand about their work. We have yearly competitions for music scholarships so students can attend Interlochen Academy of Music or the Bay View School of Music. We have an "Arts in Education" program, in which talented local artists such as Tom Webster, Todd Warner, Sue and Russ Bolt, and Doug Melvin have taught students of all ages, as well as senior citizens, about their crafts and their careers. We have made filmstrips of the artists at work for further classroom and community use.

COURIER: You seem to act as a clearing house for all cultural events in the area.

BOYDSTON: That's true. Our monthly "Newsletter and Calendar" lists all the upcoming shows, lectures, and classes. Our "Top of the Mitt Artists and Craftsmen's Conference" gives us all a chance to meet many of the fine local artists and craftsmen and watch them demonstrate their work. Together with North Central Michigan College, the Council sponsors children's arts and craft classes on Saturdays and adult evening classes.

COURIER: What is the Northern Michigan Community Concert Association, and how is the Arts Council connected with it

BOYDSTON: The Concert Association has been active for 34 years, with Virginia McCune of Petoskey serving as campaign chairman and welcoming hostess through all those years. Outstanding musicians from Europe and the United States have played to almost 900 patrons each year, including such well-known artists as Rise Stevens, pianist Alec Templeton, contralto Dorothy Maynor, and cellist William Primrose, along with many important groups – the Boston Pops, Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, Vienna Boys Choir, the Guard Republic from Paris, and the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, to name a few. This year, the concert series needed help to continue its program so the Crooked Tree Arts Council offered assistance to make sure the concerts would be continued.

COURIER: So now the Arts Council is raising funds to purchase a building which will be named for Virginia McCune

BOYDSTON: Yes. It is to be called "The Virginia M. McCune Community Arts Center". We plan to purchase the United Methodist Church of Petoskey and convert it into an Arts Center. The church was built in 1890, in an era when fine woodworkers, metalsmiths, and stained glass artisans flourished. We believe that this monument to northern Michigan's lumbering era deserves to exist as an art form in itself. It is also located in downtown Petoskey, within easy reach of all our patrons.

COURIER: Exactly what would you use the building for BOYDSTON: For the Community Concerts, for traveling art exhibitions, for a theater in which to show productions of the Little Traverse Civic Theater, for smaller concerts and recitals, for lectures, for creative cooking workshops, for classrooms, for Arts Council offices – for many, many, things. In fact, we hope the public will make suggestions to us about how the building should be used.

COURIER: What will it cost to purchase the church and convert it into an arts center.

BOYDSTON: About $200,000. We will need $125,000 by Sept. 1, and as of last week we had $109,000 in cash and pledges. We are working very hard to raise the remaining amount by the first of September.

COURIER: Where may interested persons send their contributions or obtain additional information

BOYDSTON: To the Crooked Tree Arts Council, North Central Michigan College, Petoskey, Mi., 49770, phone 347-3973, ext. 371.

COURIER: We know there have been several fund raising events this summer. Are others coming up

BOYDSTON: Yes. This coming Saturday and Sunday there will be a "Racquets for the Arts" event. Mixed double games will be played on local courts in Charlevoix, Petoskey, and Harbor Springs on Saturday, with the finals at the Little Traverse Racquet Club on Sunday. A party and the awarding of prizes will follow the final game. Then on August 7 there will be an Art Auction. It will begin at 8:30 in the evening at the Perry-Davis Hotel in Petoskey. We will auction off works of local artists as well as contributions from artists in other parts of the country. We expect Celeste Holm to be there that evening as an added attraction.

COURIER: You are certainly busy with the Crooked Tree Arts Council. How did you become interested in it

BOYDSTON: We moved here in January of 1978 and somebody invited me to an Arts Council tea. I went and later became active in the group. Last year I joined the Board. I just feel that if we are going to have these cultural advantages in northern Michigan, we have to work for them.

COURIER: Do you have time for any other outside activities

BOYDSTON: Oh, yes. I'm a Brownie leader and active in the Congregational Church. I take piano lessons and play golf and tennis.

COURIER: Where did you live before moving to Charlevoix

BOYDSTON: In Northbrook, Ill. I grew up in Winnetka. We moved here when my husband became involved with Conrad Kloester's farm implement business. He was a management consultant in Chicago.

COURIER: How old are your children

BOYDSTON: J. D. is ten and Cynthia is eight.

COURIER: You seem to like living in Charlevoix.

BOYDSTON: I like it very much, especially the freedom we have in coming and going.

County Normal Sets Reunion

The Charlevoix County Normal School will hold its 10th reunion at March's Lodge at Walloon Lake at noon on Wednesday, July 30.

The event will mark the golden anniversary of the class of 1930 according to Mrs. Hazel Hair of Charlevoix.

Those attending are asked to bring a dish to pass and own table service. The meat and beverage will be furnished. An offering to help defray expenses will be accepted.

In announcing the reunion, Mrs. Hair urged everyone who could attend to make an effort to be present.

The Charlevoix County Normal School was operated by the Charlevoix Public Schools from 1894 until it was disbanded in 1953.

This week's fashion show report

Charlevoix County Dems give nod to Dorrity

The Charlevoix County Democrats have gone on record as supporting Dan Dorrity of Sault Ste. Marie as the Democratic candidate for Congressman from the 11th Congressional District.

Presently an Associate Professor of History at Lake Superior State College in Sault Ste. Marie, Dorrity was born in Ireland in 1932 and emigrated to the United States in 1946. A bricklayer by trade, he eventually came to the Soo where he was employed until 1966 when he entered Lake Superior State College. He went on to earn a Bachelor and Master's degree from Wayne State University and a Doctorate in History from the University of Michigan. He returned to Lake Superior State as an instructor and within four years was appointed chairman of the Department of History and Political Science and later Associate Professor

In 1976 he entered public life and was elected to the Chippewa County Board of Commissioners and was elected chairman, a position he still holds.

He was instrumental in organizing the Kincheloe Base Conversion Authority and was elected chairman. This group was instrumental in bringing industry into the area to compensate for the loss of employment opportunities [illegible].

Dorrity is also with the Commission on Aging, Chippewa County Economic Development Corporation, Eastern Upper Peninsula Regional Planning and Development Commission, and numerous other organizations related to development and betterment of the area.

He is married to the former [illegible] of Sault Ste. Marie.

At the business meeting of county Democrats held at the City Hall in Charlevoix, the group planned a fund-raising project to be headed by Mrs. [illegible].

GEMWISE
JEWELRY FASHIONS FACTS AND FICTION

By John Reusch

Today there is a barage of mail throughout the country urging investments in gems. Most of these are on the a par with Arizona "retirement city" land deals. Oh, the gems are real alright, but the investment isn't

Nothing will make you a profit until it is sold and the majority of the mail order stones can't be sold. They are either an inferior grade of stone or are cut to odd sizes that manufacturers don't use, or both. Generally, a few good stones are a better buy than pounds of inferior stones. Even then the buyer should wait 2 to 3 years before selling. Our own investment sales, whether a parcel or a single stone, are handled on a 10% basis. We deal with colored stones constantly. Even if you don't make your purchase from us, we may be able to help you obtain a better return on your dollar in the future

Woodbury Ransom Nature Preserve will dedicate new trail this weekend

The Little Traverse Conservancy will open a self-guiding nature trail on the Woodbury Ransom Nature Preserve on Saturday July 26. Following a dedication ceremony at 10:00 a.m.; area naturalists will lead guided hikes along the trail at 10:15 a.m. The 1.5-mile trail winds through a diverse hardwood forest and meadows filled with songbirds, and is accompanied by a trail guide pamphlet to help visitors learn about the natural history of the preserve.

Located on Maple Grove Road 7 miles northeast of Charlevoix the preserve totals 80 acres. It was donated to the Conservancy in 1976 by Woodbury and Christiana Ransom of the Belvedere Club and Arizona. In addition to the beautiful woods and rolling open meadow, the preserve offers one of the best views in the northland. From its highest elevation of 320 feet above Lake Michigan, visitors can see most of western Charlevoix County and, on the lake horizon, Beaver, Fox and even North Manitou Islands.

"We extend a hearty welcome for all to help us celebrate the opening of the Ransom nature trail," says Susanne Dye, Executive Director of the Conservancy. "This trail will allow people to better enjoy and appreciate this beautiful parcel which was so graciously donated by the Ransoms. And families are welcome to bring a picnic basket and blanket to enjoy lunch overlooking Lake Michigan before they head for the afternoon Venetian festivities in Charlevoix. We'll have natural history exhibits on display and refreshments for visitors throughout the day."

Founded in 1972, the Little Traverse Conservancy is a private, non-profit organization working to protect unique, important natural lands in Northern Michigan for the general public benefit. The Conservancy currently owns 8 nature preserves totaling 260 acres. In addition, the Conservancy helps landowners protect their land by various means ranging from state programs to conservation easements. Anyone interested in learning more about the Conservancy is invited to contact the office at Room 150, North Central Michigan College, Petoskey.

To her right is an aluminum plaque showing visitors where to look for familiar sights.

At left is woodland residence probably used by porcupines and below is the Japanese style caretaker's home.

At far right are two of the many varieties of wildflowers to be found on the preserve.

"Ship ahoy" will ring through the air here during the weekend of July [illegible] as boats of all makes and sizes arrive for the 50th Annual venetian Festival.

The highlight of the Festival will be the boat parade in the Round Lake Yacht Basin at 8:30 p.m. July 26th.

This year's Boat Parade promises to be a great tribute to the 50th year tradition we have followed in Charlevoix," [illegible] Donaldson, chairman of the Boat Parade Committee, said. "We already have received entries from throughout the state."

The Boat Parade will be divided into five divisions this year: classical yachts, sailboats, small boats, cruisers, and boats with generators. Boats in all of the divisions except the classic yacht group will be decorated with lights for the Parade through the Yacht Basin. The winners in each division will be awarded "Venetian Cups" and will make a victory cruise across Round Lake following the parade.

The first Charlevoix Venetian Festival dates back to 1930. Yachts and cruisers from across the state gathered in Round Lake for the celebration decorated with candles in glass lanterns. The boat Parade was cancelled during World War II, but became one of the most widely-attended summer events in the state when it was resumed.

Today, the Venetian Festival includes a street parade and carnival rides, but it is the Boat Parade and its events which make the festival so memorable.

Entry forms for the boat Parade may be obtained at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce 408 Bridge St. Charlevoix, MI 49720 616-547-2101.

Belgian girls enjoy it here

Charlevoix is being treated to a visit by two attractive young ladies from Belgium.

Claire Van Der Hofstadt and Chantal Hocquet are here visiting the Bruce McArthur family and enjoying the fun of a vacation in northern Michigan.

Claire and the McArthurs became acquainted when the McArthur's daughter, Nancy, lived with Claire and her family in Antwerp last year as an exchange student. Unfortunately for the girls, Nancy is not at home at the present time. She is in Holland performing with a Hope College musical group.

Both Claire and Chantal are recent high school graduates. Their major course of study was in "Tourism and Leisure", which qualifies them for work in hotels, travel agencies, cultural agencies and similar related fields.

Unlike American young people, they have been schooled in several languages. Claire studied English for seven years and Chantal studied our language for six years. They also speak Flemish and French, the languages of Belgium, as well as German.

"Your country is so big," exclaimed Claire, when asked her impression of the United States.

"And everything goes so fast, especially in the big towns – and the cars – they are everywhere."

Gasoline is between $3 and $4 a gallon in Belgium, Claire explained, so everyone drives small cars. "We're glad we have them," she said.

The girls flew to Detroit and have visited in Flint and Holland as well as in Charlevoix. They have also spent time in Petoskey, Harbor Springs, and Mackinac Island.

The water has been the main attraction for Claire and Chantal in Charlevoix. They have been sailing, swimming, and water skiing. And they have also had a chance to do something a lot of American girls have dreamed of doing – model. They wore items from the Bahnhof Shop in a fashion show in Charlevoix last week.

In Belgium, the girls sail and play tennis and do the things that American girls do. They listen to American music and watch American movies, both of which get to their country shortly after release in the United States. The movies are sometimes equipped with a sound track using the Flemish or French language, but more often the original English sound track is used, with the dialogue printed in the native language on each scene as it appears.

Blue jeans are a popular item of dress in Belgium, Claire said, but dresses are much preferred for school wear.

What items of clothing have the girls bought in Charlevoix.. T-shirts and sweat shirts, especially the striped shirts with wide collars, they happily reported.

Neither Claire nor Chantal are strangers to foreign travel. They have visited England, Jersey, France, Spain, Italy, Switzerland, Austria, The Netherlands, and Germany, but it is the United States that really impresses them.

"We wish we could take a trip all across your country," Claire lamented, "but it would take too long."

When she returns home, Claire will be greeted by her parents and three brothers and four sisters, for whose care she shares some responsibilities. Chantal will be re-united with her parents and her married sister, who is expecting a baby in December. "I'm going to be a godmother," she reflected with enthusiasm.

Claire and Chantal are leaving Charlevoix Saturday, but they will take with them many happy memories.

"We've enjoyed our stay here so much," Claire said, "and we've met so many nice people. Our English is improved, too. We would like to thank Mr. and Mrs. McArthur and Nancy for everything they've done for us."

Claire Van Der Hofstadt and Chantal Hocquet.

Chicago Club

summer residents? Apparently the only qualifications are that one must have either rented or have been a guest of a member for several years, have proven congenial to the general population, and of course, be able to afford it! "We're not exclusively [illegible] like some other resort associations," Dickinson pointed out. "We have doctors, lawyers, real estate experts, industrialists – we come from all walks of life."

And it's the good life at Chicago Club. Beautiful tree-lined lawns, quiet walkways to the beach, tennis courts, library and ballroom and of course, the gracious "cottages" of which there are 25 in all. Some of the homes are winterized and utilized during the ski season. But summer is prime time at Chicago Club.

"It [illegible] an ideal place for children to come and enjoy the summer," Dickinson commented. The agenda circulated among members by the sports staff, introduces three new staff members, hired to assure a good time for all, adults as well as children. There is a qualified lifeguard on duty six days a week providing swimming lessons and tests, a tennis instructor available for private lessons and clinics, and a head counselor who oversees sailing and plans interesting and enjoyable activities and trips including campouts, concerts and sunrise breakfasts at the beach.

When I left Dickinson, he and his wife, along with several members of the family including grandchildren, were casting off for a picnic from the dock at the end of Prospect Street. A once-impressive craft, the boat has now been stripped of its masts and sails to provide a motorized picnic shuttle for around the lake. I had seen a glass encased model of the boat the day before in the foyer of the Dickinson home on E. Dixon. I couldn't help but reflect on the fact that the little grandchildren were the fifth generation of this family to be enjoying the pleasures of summer at Charlevoix's Chicago Club.

Visiting gliders will offer rides to area people this weekend

Two or three gliders from the Northwest Soaring Club in Frankfort will be in Charlevoix this weekend to offer rides to persons interested in the sport of soaring

Skip Heimbecker, Charlevoix business man who is a member of the Soaring Club, says the gliders will be at the airport on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. "We will be giving 20 minute rides over the City of Charlevoix, Round Lake, and Lake Charlevoix for $20," he explained

"We are interested in getting new members for our club, which is one reason the gliders will be here," Heimbecker added, "but anyone who is just interested in seeing the area from the air will enjoy a ride. They can take pictures of their house or cottage or anything else from about 500 feet."

One of the gliders on hand this weekend will be a three-place glider which will accomodate the pilot and two passengers. Such gliders are unique, according to Heimbecker

Marine Museum

One of the first questions a visitor to Beaver Island asks is "What is there [illegible]"

Of special interest in 1980 is the Marine Museum. Started four years ago as a Bicentennial project, the museum houses exhibits of marine lore from the island's past. It opened this summer under the guidance of Phil Gregg

The museum comes under the auspices of the Beaver Island Historical Society The society is urging islanders who "have things to offer which have a connection to the harbor area" to consider donating to the museum so the "treasures can be viewed and appreciated, and best of all stay in the harbor [illegible]"

[illegible]

The society also operates a museum at the Print Shop. Society members had a scare this past winter when a fire raced through a residence across the [illegible]

According to the society's newsletter, "local volunteers manned the fire equipment most valiantly and a watch was set on our historic building. Nevertheless, strong winds from the harbor whipped the burning debris [illegible] the porch and started a fire near the old log walls. Flames were licking through the [illegible] Print Shop was within minutes of bursting into [illegible] It is hard to imagine how the volunteers managed to quell the fire, but they did. We are immensely grateful to them - and for the fact that we lost no historic materials except some floor boards. Most of the damage was in the area of the front door. The structural damage has been repaired; insurance helped with some problems. But we are still quaking with the thoughts of what might have been

QUESTION: Are offenders being prosecuted and punished adequately

LASATER: Statistically, the Sheriff's Department has increased its arrests of felony offenders by 248 percent in the last four years. This has partially resulted in returning $143,673 of stolen property to the citizens of our county. As your Sheriff, I feel that we have one of the best criminal justice systems in Michigan. I can't say enough good things about our prosecuting attorney Scott Beatty, District Judge David Fershee, and Circuit Judge Breighner, along with their staffs and the staff of Juvenile Court. This, along with professional and agressive law enforcement from the Sheriff's office and the city police departments results in an efficient system.

BROWN: This question is not appropriate for a candidate for Sheriff questionnaire. It is not in the Sheriff's power to define the decisions of the prosecutor or the court system.

CHAPMAN: No. Without the proper investigation and prosecution, citizens of Charlevoix County are the losers, with an increase in crime and waste of taxpayers' dollars. Did you ever go to the Sheriff's Department and make a complaint against a Deputy and be told "not to harass my Department". If I am your new Sheriff, I will personally welcome your complaints.

FULLER: There are all kinds of views on punishment to fit the crime. During my two and a half years with the Department, there were times when I felt that the punishment administered was certainly not adequate, but I feel that a better working relationship with available crime deterrent programs, such as the Youth Diversionary program, would prevent a percentage of these crimes before they happened.

McCALLUM: In reading the Court Docket in the newspaper, there seems to be little activity except in traffic. I don't know whether this fault lies with the Sheriff or the Prosecutor, but I am been told that several victims have been informed by the Sheriff's Department to check and see what their insurance companies would pay, and they (the Sheriff's Department) would see that the culprit would make up the balance.

QUESTION: What is your philosophy of dealing with personnel under your command

BROWN: Fairly, with understanding, with compassion for their failures and praise for their good work. Honest and open

CHAPMAN: Honest, fair, but firm leadership will be essential. Suggestions to better serve all citizens will be requested. I will not allow any officer to harass, threaten, intimidate, or use his authority for any reason other than what it is intended. My philosophy will be common sense. First construct a firm base of citizen respect and confidence. The end results will be high morale and an efficient organization.

FULLER: I will always remain open to advice from my deputies and co-workers because, in the final analysis, the measure of successful management of this Sheriff's Department is to improve productivity of its people, combined with their maximum growth. Without these ingredients, we cannot achieve our potential.

McCALLUM: I don't feel that the doors in the Jail should be left unlocked. I don't feel prisoners should be able to watch TV until 11 p.m. I don't feel prisoners should be allowed to play catch in the back driveway – that's why you build an exercise yard. I don't feel prisoners should be allowed to lift weights on the Jail roof. Maybe that's why we need a new roof, after nine years. Most prisoners placed in the county jail are these for less than 10 days, for punishment, not recreation.

QUESTION: What is the most important issue of this election, in your estimation.

LASATER: The bottom line issue comes down to whether the citizens of Charlevoix County want to continue the following programs that I have established within the last four years: The Sheriff's Sub Station in the Boyne City and East Jordan areas...We can now give better coverage to the citizens in the respective areas. The Explorer Scout Law Enforcement Cadet Program...This was established to help high school students who feel that they would like to start a career in law enforcement. Community Rehabilitation Program...As Sheriff, I must hold prisoners in the county jail, and I feel I have a moral obligation to try and change their behavior patterns so they can stop the "revolving door" complex of continually being in and out of trouble. And there are all the other programs: Officer Friendly, Sheriff's Auxiliary, Bicycle Safety, Driver's Ed, Lifeline for Senior Citizens, among them. Then there are the programs we have indicated as future goals: Operation Identification, Neighborhood Watch, Junior Deputy, Good Driver Award, and trying to hire a femaled Deputy Sheriff

BROWN: To lead a fair and efficient department, which responds rapidly to the needs of the people.

CHAPMAN: Citizens' confidence, respect, no protection, and waste of taxpayers' dollars. We as citizens are requested to economize and tighten our belts. It is not unreasonable to expect the Sheriff's Department to do the same. There is a better way

FULLER: Actually, I feel there are two important issues here. The rewards that good avenues of communication can bring, and strong leadership. I will add to this by saying that strong leadership is important, but leadership without creativity cannot make a confident advancement into the future law enforcement programs of this county

McCALLUM: The Sheriff's Department personnel are professionals and should be allowed to perform their jobs without interference of the Sheriff. He should guide and assist them, when needed. If they do a good job, he should commend them. If they do a bad job, he should reproach them. He should back his offers if right. You do not ask for an eight percent raise for your personnel and a 12 percent raise for yourself and expect respect. A Department is only as good as its personnel, and they, in turn, are only as good as the leadership provided by the Sheriff

The mismanagement of the Sheriff's Department and its budget over the last three and a half years. The morale and performance of the Department is lower than it has ever been. Four years ago, this same Department with different leadership ranked within the top five in the State in arrests and convictions. The present Sheriff has asked for a budget increase over the last two years of 23 percent per year, or a total of $122,212.78. At the Boyne Falls and East Jordan mini posts, he has an officer and a car. They both work the same shift. This means the eastern half of the county is being covered by two men and two cars the same 40 hours. Why not combine them and cover 80 hours a week with one car. The Sheriff promised to live at the jail. He failed to do so, so you purchased a car for him to drive to and from work, and any place else. He is using your car to campaign in. I worked for two prior Sheriffs and they never did this. They had respect for tax dollars. I feel, after working six years with the Sheriff's Department budgets, I have a good working knowledge of them, and having checked the last three and a half years, I have [illegible] you an extra $100,000. I don't think you can afford four more years of this type of operation, can you.

"It may look good now, you may realize additional benefits for a brief time but there is a chance you may lose future benefits if you sign without first receiving advice from a Service Officer, Veterans Counselor or some other competent person - Geer warned

Know the soil erosion and sediment laws pertaining to agriculture

As of January 1, 1979, "ALL FARMING OPERATIONS, EXCEPT LAND PREPARATION FOR CROP PRODUCTION & HARVESTING" became law under Act 347 (Erosion & Sediment Control Law). However, land use changes disturbing more than one acre within 500 feet of a lake or stream requires a permit.

The rules of Act 347 provide that a person engaged in farming has an option to obtain a permit from the county erosion control office or enter into an erosion control agreement with the local Soil Conservation District.

Agricultural practices other than normal tillage operations require a permit from the Charlevoix County Erosion Control Office or an agreement from the Charlevoix Soil & Water Conservation District.

EXAMPLES of proposed farming operations requiring an agreement or permit, but not limited to, are:

Construction or improvement of surface & subsurface drains or tiles

Land preparation for buildings, structures, roads

Removal of woodlots, fencerows & windbreaks

Diversions which direct surface water runoff

Construction of ponds & impoundments

Streambank stabilization

Water control or sediment retention structures

Land re-shaping & leveling

Animal waste storage facilities

Agricultural facilities, on-site waste disposal systems

Land re-shaping for cherry sites

Cherry cooling pads

If an agricultural agreement is requested, the Charlevoix Soil & Water Conservation District will provide technical assistance for preliminary investigation of the project.

A Charlevoix Soil & Water Conservation District representative shall approve all agricultural erosion control agreements prior to construction. This means the landowner will have to allow enough time for investigations prior to time of construction.

Standards & Specifications for erosion control, if requested, will be furnished by the Charlevoix Soil & Water Conservation District.

Charlevoix Soil & Water Conservation District Directors reserve the right to assign priorities and determine a time allotment for each agreement and if landowner does not abide by terms of the agreement, the SCD will withdraw assistance by letter and send copy to the County Erosion Control Office where appropriate action will be taken.

Erosion control permits will be issued by the Charlevoix County Erosion Control Officer for applicants not wishing an agricultural erosion control agreement from the Charlevoix Soil & Water Conservation District.

If you have any questions concerning Act 347 Erosion Control Agricultural Permits or Agreements, contact the Charlevoix County Cooperative Extension Service, 319 B., North Lake Street, Boyne City–PHONE 582-6232 or the Charlevoix County Soil Erosion Control Officer, Courthouse Annex, Charlevoix, Michigan PHONE 547-4410.

Land clearing of agricultural land is a good example where either a Charlevoix County Soil Erosion Permit or Charlevoix Soil & Water Conservation District Agricultural Agreement is required.

We are interested in your future.

Drainage increases

Agricultural tile drainage continues to increase in Antrim, Charlevoix & Emmet counties. Because of demand, Drenth Brothers of Ellsworth, Michigan, have purchased a tile machine and will be providing tile drainage services along with Bill Brandt of Hillman, Michigan.

Tile drainage makes more efficient field operations for farmers as well as eliminating those aggravating wet areas in cropland & hayland areas and will also reduce soil erosion potential.

Rain holds, concert goes; a full weekend for all

By most accounts, Charlevoix's Eleventh Venetian Weekend celebration lived up to expectations as one of the biggest and best ever staged.

The three-day affair was highlighted by Saturday's parades, one on Bridge Street and the other in the yacht basin of Round Lake, capped off by a spectacular fireworks display.

Thousands of people lined the downtown parade route Saturday noon to watch about 75 units make their way through town. Included in the parade were three drum and bugle corps which also performed at the high school football field Friday night before heavy showers cut that night's activities short.

The threat of rain hung over the festival in the form of heavily overcast skies for most of the weekend but did not hamper any of the major events.

Chamber of Commerce administrator Jaquie Mertz said that because of the many different events of the festival, it was impossible to tell how many people participated. She did say, however, that the turnouts for the Bridge Street parade on Saturday and the boat parade Saturday night were the largest in her memory.

Mertz also said that individuals who had been involved with the Venetian Weekend for many years backed up her claim of unusually large crowds.

From the standpoint of local law enforcement personnel, the weekend went as smoothly as could have been expected.

Despite an eleventh hour attempt by the Marion Township board to prevent the Alice Cooper concert at Castle Farms, the concert went on as planned. The board denied a permit to hold the concert the previous Monday but as of this week, it was unclear as to what action, if any, would be taken against the management of Castle Farms.

Marion Township Supervisor Robert Potter said Monday that, in his opinion, Castle Farms was in violation of township ordinance by holding the concert without a permit. He declined to say whether the township would pursue any action but did say that the township board would be taking up the matter at their next meeting.

Sheriff George Lasater estimated Saturday night's crowd at Castle Farms at between 9,000 and 10,000, well under earlier projections of 20,000. Lasater said that his officers had fewer problems with the crowd than anticipated but that the violators were more "hard core" than usual.

Lasater cited as examples two arrests he made in which the subjects resisted and took off running before handcuffs could be put on. The individuals were eventually apprehended after a foot race with deputies, he said.

Included in the arrests made in the Castle Farms vicinity Saturday night were four for disorderly persons, two for resisting arrest and one each for assault and battery, a stolen car and indecent exposure. There were at least 22 complaints logged with the Sheriff's Department including seven for trespassing. Four accidents resulting in property damage were recorded and the city ambulance was kept busy with a total of six runs to the hospital, one of which involved a woman five months pregnant who had allegedly been kicked in the stomach.

Charlevoix Police Chief Jack Mol had nothing but praise for the eleven state patrol officers who assisted his personnel Saturday in traffic and crowd control. With the added men, Mol had a total of 19 officers on the street during the busiest times Saturday.

Although the crowds were as large as he expected, Mol said that he experienced no major problems in the city and that traffic seemed to flow well during peak periods when traffic officers overroad the signals and directed traffic through the downtown district manually.

One of Charlevoix County's newest buses

Bus system is on the road

Public transit service began in Charlevoix County this week sponsored by the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT).

It is Michigan's first "county incentive" project authorized by the Legislature in 1978 to provide buses and operating funds for countywide small-bus transportation services.

Charlevoix is the first county to apply and receive approval for state support.

The demand/response service will operate seven days a week – 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday; and 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday and by reservation on Sunday.

It will cover the entire county with seven vehicles, three of them accessible to seniors and handicappers. Service will be divided into three zones centered around Boyne City, East Jordan and Charlevoix. Connections between county buses and intercity buses will be developed to provide access to Petoskey and Traverse City.

Charlevoix County has been providing transit service for seniors and handicappers with two buses operated by the local Commission on Aging. The system expands the service into countywide public transportation.

The State Transportation Commission grant provides $205,500 for set-up expenditures and for vehicles and other needs, and $658,900 for operating expenditures. State funding covers 100 percent of the operating costs not covered by revenues for the first and second year and 75 percent of the total operating costs for the third year.

Spent fuel: Is increased storage hazard or harmless?

Editor's Note: The Consumers Power Company is currently seeking approval for expansion of spent nuclear fuel storage capacity at its Big Rock plant near Charlevoix. Recently, the Courier received correspondence from Chuck Will of Williamston in which Will strongly opposes such expansion. Below is the complete text of Will's argument accompanied by a response to his charges compiled by Big Rock personnel.

The Charge: fuel may explode

What safeguards are there to prevent spent nuclear fuel ponds (nuclear waste storage facilities) at nuclear power plants from exploding like an atomic bomb?

We have been told for years and years that a major accident could not happen at a nuclear power plant. Obviously we were lied to. Certainly we have been told a nuclear power plant could not explode like a nuclear bomb. But what about the nuclear waste dumps?

Three recent studies confirm that a nuclear spent fuel pool could indeed meltdown, that the consequences of a fuel pool meltdown would be far worse than a reactor meltdown, and that the likelihood of such an accident happening is significant.

Dr. Richard E. Webb in his February 1979 study entitled "Contentions Regarding the Accident Hazards of Spent Fuel Storage at the Salem Nuclear Power Plant, Salem, New Jersey," states, "...the plutonium in the molten uranium dioxide could separate and stratify ... or at least a mass of fuel material could form which is rich in plutonium - and create as a result a nuclear fuel mass capable of generating the same kind of atomic reaction which takes place in an atomic bomb [illegible] which could produce a strong nuclear explosion that would increase the dispersal of the radioactivity, into the environment, especially the plutonium ... (This nuclear explosion possibly similar to the mechanism which has been speculated to have caused the 'nuclear disaster' in the Soviet Union, namely the concentration of plutonium in a nuclear waste burial trench.)"

A spent fuel pool meltdown is likely to have far more disastrous consequences than a reactor meltdown not just because of the potential of an atomic explosion, but because the spent fuel pool contains far more toxic radioactive material than does the reactor.

According to Dr. Webb "there existes

The Response: it could not happen

In 1690, John Locke, in An Essay Concerning Human Understanding, wrote, "It is one thing to show a man he is in error, and another to put him in possession of the truth."

The following is intended to serve that purpose.

A spent fuel pool at a nuclear power plant could no more "blow up like an atomic bomb" than could the reactor itself. The pool, after all, contains the same fuel elements which even before they were used up, did not contain enough fissionable material for an atomic bomb. The nuclear reactor's fuel is a uranium dioxide ceramic material containing only about two to five percent fissionable material, whereas an atomic bomb requires a solid mass of nearly pure uranium 235 or plutonium-239. Mr. Will, by the way, asserts "Big Rock uses as part of its fuel uranium dioxide." So does every other nuclear plant in the country. That's the natural makeup of commercial reactor fuel.

A fuel pool "meltdown" is an equally impossible situation. The reason the fuel is "spent" and placed in the pool is that it has undergone fission and has thus given up its useful energy. Because the isotopes produced during a chain reaction gradually accumulate, they slow down the process that produces power and heat. These "spent fuel" rods are of no more use to the reactor in their present form and need to be replaced with "fresh" fuel to keep the nuclear reactor producing power.

Thus, it is much harder to sustain a chain reaction with spent fuel. The safeguards enacted for a power plant's spent fuel make a "catastrophe" a remote circumstance. For one thing, the pool is doublelined, first, with a stainless steel liner and, second, with a three and one-half to five-foot nine inch thick concrete shield, both to prevent leaking of the irradiated water. In addition, cool water is continually pumped into the pool to maintain the water well below the boiling point because of the heat radiated by the

Charlevoix historians honored by Society

By [illegible]

[illegible] of the Charlevoix Historical Society, most of them long-time Charlevoixans, gathered for the Society's Second Annual Heritage Day luncheon last Friday at the Grey Gables Inn.

The luncheon is scheduled at this time of year, when many former residents are in town on vacation so that they may join in honoring members of the Society who have in some special way contributed to the preservation of local history.

This year for the first time, a member received the Founder's Award, a special award conceived by the charter members to recognize those who are instrumental in building up the financial and energy of the Society.

The Founder's Award went to William H. Ohle, who, in 1976, conceived the idea of publishing in book form Bob Miles' collection of pictures of old Charlevoix. The result was "Bob Miles' Charlevoix – a Century in Pictures". To date, approximately 1,600 of the 2,000 printed copies have been sold, netting the Historical Society around $22,000.

Another award, called the "Bob Miles' Award", is given each year to one or more members of the Society for their extraordinary service to the Society. This year, three members were so honored.

Edward Beutner, a past president of the Society, was honored for his many years of service, especially in handling the sales of the Miles book.

The husband and wife team of Dale and Marilyn Boss received an award for their work in turning the Harsha House into a museum. The Historical Society was willed the house that year, and the Boss' have spent much time remodeling and renovating it.

Last year's recipients of the Miles Award – Mrs. Arthur Wexstaff, Mrs. Carl Kohler, and Ralph Hamilton – were all present to help honor this year's group.

DANGER OF WRONG PRICING

Since human nature is predictable, there is a better than even chance that you'll put the wrong selling price on your home if you arrive at it yourself.

You may price it far above its fair market value because of sentimental attachment, expenditures you have made, or by heeding well meaning friends' advice. A home remaining on the market for months due to over pricing frequently becomes a "White Elephant" - it eventually sells for a much lower figure than it would have brought originally -- had it been priced [illegible]

On the other hand, you might under price it because of unfamiliarity with the local market. This would [illegible] folly. Your safest bet is to list your home with a Realtor who will help you price it correctly from the start and sell it [illegible]

Candidates' quotes clarified

In our story about candidates for the Sheriff's job last week, we neglected to print Sheriff Lasater's answer to one question. The [illegible].

"What is your philosophy of dealing with personnel under your [illegible]"

Lasater's reply was:

"I will continue to operate in a fashion of seeking the best officers possible for the Sheriff's Department, and train these officers with the best methods of law enforcement possible. The residents of Charlevoix County deserve the best, and I will continue to make every effort to provide that service.

"I do not have all the answers and have adopted an open door policy to encourage officers to bring their ideas and suggestions to me. Consequently, we have established some effective programs and procedures through their suggestions. As Sheriff, I will continue to run a 'tight ship' and expect the utmost professional service from our officers."

Also, candidate Wayne Chapman did not think it was quite fair when we said he was the only candidate without previous law enforcement experience. While that is true, Chapman is campaigning on his administrative experience because he believes that the Sheriff's job is an administrative one. He says that if elected he will take the required law enforcement courses "at my own expense."

The significance of the uniforms is lost in time. Were these young ladies chorus girls in a long-forgotten musical production. Were they cheerleaders for a losing team? Were they students in a young ladies' finishing school? This picture of a group of Charlevoix girls was furnished by Mrs. Kenneth Gerritsen, the former Gloria Taylor, whose mother, Blanche Johnston Taylor, is the fifth young lady from the left in the picture. Final accounting made for county weatherization project

Charlevoix County closed the books on its weatherization project last week.

In all, $113,972.75 was spent to make the county buildings more fuel efficient. Of this amount, 80 percent, or $91,178.20 came from a grant from the Economic Development Agency, and 20 percent, or $22,794.55, came from county funds.

The work included a new roof for the County Building, which was put on by Hunting Roof Company at a cost of $44,985; new storm windows for the County Building and a few for Grandvue, which were installed by Wojan Aluminum Company for $19,866; a new entrance to the Sheriff's Building, which was constructed by R. V. Wood Construction for $9,742.

Also, insulation for the Sheriff's Building and the County Building Annex, which was supplied by Jack Bohne Insulation at a cost of $7,280; and two boilers for the County Building, installed by Haggard Plumbing & Heating for $27,430.

Frank Sander, professional engineer of Traverse City, received $3,692.50 for engineering and designing the boilers and overseeing their installation. It cost $227.25 to advertise for bids in the Petoskey News Review, and $750 for inspections by the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspections.

John Hess, county planner, handled the details of the weatherization project for the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

In a brief ceremony at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department last week, a display honoring the sheriffs who have served Charlevoix County since 1869 when the county was organized was dedicated by the present sheriff, George T. Lasater. Attending the event were the relatives of some of the former sheriffs who were able to attend.

The dedication marked the culmination of three years of research and has resulted in a display of pictures, where available, with a plaque bearing each sheriff's name and the years he served in the [illegible]

Attending the dedication were Mrs. Floyd Ikens, 97, seated under a picture of her late husband who was sheriff from 1933 until 1954. Mrs. Ikens was employed as matron of the jail during his years in office.

With her are (l to r) Max Novak and his sister, Mrs. J.F. Webb whose father, that late Charles Novak, who served served two terms in the office, the former's daughter, Marilyn Novak, George T. Lasater, the present office holder, Mrs. Andrew Fulton, the former Myrtle O'Neill, grand-niece of the late George W. Weaver (1919-22) and Mrs. Casimir Maskowiak of Boyne City, the former Rosemary Cooper, whose great-grandfather, Richard Cooper was the county's first sheriff (1869-71 and 1878-81) and whose grandfather, Henry C. Cooper, served in the office from 1896-1900. Also present was her son, Robert Mackowiak of Boyne City.

Other sheriffs to serve the county are Alanson G. Aldrich (1872-75); Alex J. McLeod (1876-77); Alonzo J. Stroud (1882-88); Willis B. Hurd (1889-92); Frank P. Myers (1893-95); William J. Pearson (1901-05), Frank McWain (1906-10); Ford P. Robinson (1911-14); David Vaugn (1926-32); Glenn E. Rose (1965-66); Philo B. Sumner (1966-76) and Sheriff Lasater (1977-)

The Sheriff's Department is asking for pictures and information on other former sheriffs whose pictures are not available. This includes all those prior to 1915 with the exception of the Coopers and Frank McWain.

Assisting Sheriff Lasater in the research and organization of the display were Chris Henkel, Mrs. King Saunders, William Ohle, Sam King, Oscar Stroud and Mrs. Robert Goodenough.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners underwrote the cost of the display which is mounted on the wall opposite the main entry at the Sheriff's Department.

Coast Guardsmen help battle a minor fire aboard the Double J Five a 52-foot cabin cruiser berthed on Round Lake. The blaze, which was reported at 8.47 a.m. last Wednesday, July 23, was quickly controlled by Charlevoix firemen and the Coast Guard. The boat is owned by John Fritch of Libertyville.

Big Rock passes scram tests; back on line

Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point nuclear power plant has completed its testing of the facility's control rod drive system and associated Scram Discharge Volume.

The tests, ordered by the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, were completed and the plant "back on the line" generating electricity by 8:55 Saturday morning, about nine hours ahead of schedule.

On Thursday, July 23, a manual scram (shutdown) was completed around 6 a.m. An automatic scram was completed about the same time Friday morning. In both cases, the reactor's 32 control rods were inserted within the technically specified two and a-half seconds. And, in both cases, the plants discharge volume drained successfully with no problems detected in either the associated piping or the venting process.

The reactor also shut down on two other occasions. The first came early Thursday evening and was the result of a spurious signal to the reactor system's instrumentation. The second occurred during a scheduled trip test of the turbine which is done each time the plant is started up. The turbine bi-pass valve failed to respond properly. The plant recovered from the trip and was put back on the line Saturday morning.

The NRC and on-site NRC inspector Geoffrey Wright were notified of the completion of the tests and their findings.

The utility had received a bulletin from the NRC on July 3. It was prompted by an incident at the Browns Ferry nuclear plant in Athens, Ala., where 76 of 185 control rods failed to properly insert when the facility was being shut down for routine maintenance. In the NRC bulletin, all 23 boiling water reactors built by General Electric (including Big Rock) were to conduct various tests associated with the control rod drive system.

Control rods control the nuclear reaction within the reactor vessel. When fully inserted the reaction slows and stops.

Spent fuel: hazard or harmless

Fuel could explode

a great number - essentially an infinite number of severe reactor accident possibilities that could result in a loss-of-water incident in the spent fuel storage pool." The spent fuel pool can even go critical by itself without the need for a severe reactor accident.

The U.S. nuclear industry has never adequately studied the hazard of a serious accident at a spent fuel pool. The German industry, however, has. The Institute for Reactor Safety of the Technical Control Association, West Germany, published Report No. 290, "'Working Report, Studies Concerning the Greatest Possible Failure Sequences in Reprocessing and Nuclear Power Plants." The report concludes that, yes, spent fuel pool coolant water can boil off, the fuel self-melt, and lethal doses can be delivered to the public. The report estimates that radiation doses of 47,000 rems or 75 times the lethal dose are possible 62.5 miles from the spent fuel pool. Lethal doses of radiation could be spread even further depending upon the wind.

A third study, of the Prairie Island Nuclear Power Plant in Minnesota done by Dr. Thompson from Princeton University arrives at similar conclusions.

According to the Atlantic Chapter of the Sierra Club in a paper called "The Waste Paper," in the Spring of 1979, "there is an alarming possibility of a reactor meltdown precipitating a fuel pool meltdown ... causing an additional massive release of radioactivity."

What makes a spent fuel pool especially likely to go critical, according to Dr. Webb, is the presence of uranium dioxide. The uranium dioxide could break down and form a mass of fuel material rich in plutonium which could cause a strong nuclear explosion.

The Big Rock Nuclear Power Plant located near Charlevoix, Michigan is the only nuclear power plant in the U.S. which uses plutonium as a fuel. As a result, the spent fuel pool at Big Rock probably has a higher concentration of plutonium than any other nuclear power plant spent fuel pool in the U.S. The spent fuel pool, according to Consumer's Power Co. documents, is 10-15 times more radioactive than it is supposed to be. Also, Big Rock uses as part of its fuel uranium dioxide!

Big Rock has also, according to Consumer's Power Co. documents, been enriching its' fuel rods beyond the legal limit.

Consumer's Power has received an ERDA grant for $15 million dollars to experiment with radioactive fuels. The research is supposed to last another 8 years.

The Big Rock Plant is exempt from minimal safety standards. The plant itself has a grossly inadequate backup water supply. The spent fuel pool heat exchangers have no backup power supply whatsoever. Monitors on the spent fuel pool monitor radioactive levels only. There is no monitoring of water levels in the spent fuel pools.

The containment shielding at Big Rock is so inadequate that if a 3 Mile Island type accident were to occur, most workers inside and outside the plant would be killed by massive radiation exposure. Only the workers in the control room would experience less exposure. But Big Rock is such an antique that many of its controls are manual and are not located in the control room.

The Palisades nuclear power plant was fined hundreds of thousands of dollars for having some valves open which could vent radiation to the atmosphere. At Big Rock essentially the same valves, Containment and Isolation Valves, are open all the time and have never worked. Big Rock has what is called a "Controlled Pathway to the Outside." Not only does Big Rock have inadequate shielding, but it vents directly to the outdoors!

The NRC has exempted the Big Rock Plant from minimal safety standards under what is called the Defense in Depth Exemption Source. In laymen's language, Big Rock is necessary for our defense against the Russians, etc. Yet all that Big Rock really supplies us with is less than 1% of Michigan's electricity, and Michigan has an excess electric capacity of about 20%. Two research groups, the Institute for Policy Studies and the South West Research Group have designated Big Rock as one of the most dangerous nuclear power plants in the U.S.

A few citizens who live near Big Rock, calling themselves The Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix, filed an intervention with the NRC asking that Big Rock be prevented from expanding its spent fuel pool storage, and that it be required to make it's containment structure adequate. The intervention was filed in August of 1979.

The concerned Citizens of Charlevoix have very little money for the intervention. They have had several break-ins during which sensitive documents were stolen. A brake cable on one of their cars appears to have been cut. People who have financially supported the concerned Citizens locally have been blacklisted; one person who owned a business was boycotted and run out of business. People active in Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix have been followed by cars whose license numbers were later traced to Big Rock employees.

The Michigan Attorney General's Office has been asked to join the concerned Citizens of Charlevoix in their intervention; but the office has not done so.

This past January Governor Milliken established a special committee on Nuclear Waste Disposal, all of the members of which freely admit their pro-nuclear biases, and connection; none are public citizens or legislators. In January, also, the Governor's Science Advisor, Dr. Taylor, testified that Michigan has agreed to re-open discussion of nuclear repositories in Michigan. On June 12 the Governor's Committee on Nuclear Waste asked that Michigan's waste law be revoked.

I recently asked the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan's energy director, Ron Wilson, if he had been showing Dr. Beyea's research on the probability and consequences of a nuclear melt down to members of the Michigan Legislature. (Dr. Beyea is an international expert on nuclear power plant melt downs from Princeton University who shows that both the probability and consequences of a meltdown are far greater than the industry is willing to admit.) Ron responded that he had not been presenting Dr. Beyea's research because the legislators simply would not believe it. He went on to say that it is crazy that he had to present himself as a super-rational and somewhat conservative lobbyist in order to make any progress at all with the legislature. It is crazy, he said, that he has to withhold many facts because they are too frightening, and so inconsistent with the peaceful cheap atom that the industry has taught people to believe in for so many years.

"It's Crazy!"

Behind the roses

"And the new Miss Charlevoix is...,"

Emcee Bill Vogel held the tittering crowd in the high school gym in the palm of his hand as he milked the moment for every drop of dramatic suspense.

"Miss Tammy Helms!"

All too often, the story behind the winner of a pageant such as Miss Charlevoix amounts to no more than the paragraph telling where the lucky girl goes to school, her hobbies and the color of her eyes.

This year, seventeen-year-old Tammy Helms wears the venerable Venetian Weekend-Miss Charlevoix crown and her story is a bit longer.

Behind the flashy smile and giggling at Thursday night's pageant, Tammy was fighting a high temperature that almost prompted her to forget the whole thing.

"I wasn't really that scared," she claims. But having to parade around in front of a few hundred people does strange things to one's nerves, subconsciously or otherwise. Deep down, of course, Tammy knew that it would take more than a fever to keep her out of the running.

She was about six years old when her mother took Tammy to her first Venetian Queen pageant. Thoroughly dazzled by the elegant gowns, the applause, the spectacle of the whole thing, young Tammy envisioned herself amid all the splendor. In her mind's eye she saw herself crying with joy as the bejeweled crown was placed on her head and felt the richness of the scarlet cape as it was wrapped around her.

Her fantasy would be repeated each summer thereafter as it is in the minds of hundreds of young girls all over. Everyone dreams of being the queen. As Tammy Helms grew up, however, the dream became more of a goal and that which had been fantasy gradually edged toward the realm of the possible.

Just when her life seemed to be on track, during her sophomore year in high school, tragedy struck in the form of a car accident that suddenly left Tammy and her older sister without their parents.

For the girl who would be queen, the world almost came apart.

"For at least eight months, I couldn't do anything or think about anything. It was terrible," she reminisced, "Every day seemed like a year." It was during those difficult days that the Miss Venetian crown seemed but a trivial childish distraction.

For a year, Tammy and her older sister lived alone. In one year Tammy probably learned more about life and coping than some people ever do.

"After I finally accepted what had happened in my life, I found myself able to handle just about anything. I really see the difference in my attitude when a friend gets upset over a little problem. Before I would have gotten just as upset but now things like that seem so unimportant."

If there are such things as guardian angels, Barry and Gwen Anderson come as close to filling the role for Tammy as possible. She gives them much credit for turning her life around by accepting her into their home as a daughter and friend.

"At least half of my being able to accept the situation and understand what I was going through was directly because of them," she says.

In a day when young women have so many more activities and opportunities than ever before, beauty pageants sometimes find themselves lacking the popularity they enjoyed in simpler times. Tammy, however, offers a hearty endorsement to such competition.

"I think it is a great experience for any girl," she said. "It is a chance to set a goal and work hard toward it. You also make some very close friends in the process. During the Miss Charlevoix contest, all of us who were competing found ourselves leaning on each other for support."

What would she tell other girls who wonder if they should enter the contest some day?

"I'd tell them 'What have you got to lose?'" said Tammy. "I would also tell them that it is a great way to get to like yourself better. It's great for building up confidence."

Tammy will carry the banner of Miss Charlevoix to next year's Cherry Festival at Traverse City and, from there, to the Miss Michigan Competition. If she thought the bleachers at Charlevoix High School held a lot of people, she has seen nothing yet.

Win or lose, one gets the impression that Tammy will come away from the whole experience none the worse for it. She is a survivor and has put this, along with so many other things in her life lately, in its proper perspective.

System has adequate safeguards spent fuel.

But, above all, a catastrophic chain reaction is improbable because the Nuclear Regulatory Commission has strict limits on the number of fuel rods which can be placed in a spent fuel pool in order to avoid overcrowding.

To the best of our knowledge, it has never been absolutely confirmed by any study that the decay heat generated by the spent fuel is great enough to ever cause melting should the fuel become uncovered. There even exists some evidence that natural heat transfer rates to the walls of the Big Rock pool may be great enough to prevent boiling altogether.

But, if it is assumed, for some remote reason, that the pool could boil, there is so much water in the pool (more than 100,000 gallons) that it would take days to begin boiling and weeks before enough had boiled away to uncover the fuel. Therefore, there is plenty of time to take simple corrective action since Lake Michigan is nearby and would provide our normal make-up water supply for this situation. On top of that, there are already multiple sources of water available to the pool in Big Rock. Control room operators know this and are trained to use proper procedures to assure an ample supply of water is available.

The spent fuel pool itself is not radioactive, but the water in the pool contains radioactive species in the soluble and insoluble form. Because of the radioactivity entrained in the water, the radioactive dose rates at waist high level above the surface of the pool was approximately 14 millirems an hour in December, 1979. According to the NRC, this was higher than the two millirems an hour seen at some other plants, but still well within limits set by that agency. The pool has never been "10-15 times more radioactive than it is supposed to be."

The spent fuel pool water was put on recycle through the radioactive waste demineralizer and the dose rate over the spent fuel pool is now six to eight millirems an hour. Continued recycling at the pool may reduce the dose rate even further.

Several weeks before a plant is shut down for refueling, the pool water is recycled through the radioactive waste demineralizer to reduce the radiation dose rate to employees working over the pool during refueling operations.

After the plant is back on the line, the pool is taken off recycle because workmen are no longer working directly over the pool and the recycling process does require additional operator attention.

In 1979, the refueling operation was completed in April. Therefore, the water was not recycled from May to December and, as a result the radiation dose levels increased as expected. The increase is due to insoluble species being dissolved from outside the fuel bundles, hardware, etc.

While on the subject of fuel, Big Rock is not the only nuclear plant in the United States to use plutonium as a source of fuel. Plutonium is a natural result of the process by which power is produced from uranium. At the end of the useful life of a fuel assembly, up to 60 percent of the power being generated by that assembly is a result of plutonium fission. Every nuclear plant uses plutonium as a source of fuel.

All fuel stored or in use at Big Rock is within the technical specifications limits (licensed and approved by the NRC). The statement that we are enriching our fuel rods beyond the legal limit is false.

It is true we, along with the Department of Energy and Exxon Corporation, have had a contract for 15 million dollars not to experiment, but to conduct research and development efforts to study and reduce cladding stresses associated with pellet cladding interaction, which is fuel related research. We are not alone in such research! It is being done and has been done elsewhere in the industry.

Concerning our lack of water supply, that issue was discussed earlier. We do, in fact, have all the water we need. As concerning the fuel pool heat exchangers having no backup power supply whatsoever, there is not a heat exchanger in the industry which has or requires such a supply.

Addressing the statement: "Monitors on the spent fuel pool monitor radioactive levels only." Radiation monitors do indeed monitor "radioactive levels only," since that is their sole design feature. They do not monitor temperature, wind direction and speed, nor anything else for that matter.

As far as "there is no monitoring of water levels in the spent fuel pools," there is a remote water level indicator outside containment which is available to the control room operator and is checked periodically on each shift. Additional remote level indication will be installed in the future as part of the proposed spent fuel pool expansion.

Mr. Will states "that if a 3 Mile Island type accident were to occur, most workers inside and outside the plant would be killed by massive radiation exposure." The statement is completely false.

The NRC estimates that TMI had less than 0.1% of the fuel in the reactor actually melt. If an accident of this magnitude were to occur at the Big Rock Point Plant the plant could be safely shutdown without plant workmen being "killed by massive radiation exposure."

We are presently looking at additional means to further reduce workmen radiation exposure during accident conditions. This includes the addition of localized in-place shielding, reducing operator action outside of the control room, to name a few.

Big Rock's primary controls—those necessary to maintain a safe and operable facility—are in the control room. There are also supplementary (backup/redundant) controls outside the control room that maintain safe and efficient operation of equipment throughout the plant.

While individual valves in the containment ventilation system have occasionally failed to pass leak rate tests, the ventilation valves have always worked. Backup valves in the system have always successfully isolated the containment to prevent release of containment atmosphere when tested in their closed position.

The overall ventilation system has never failed a leak rate test because of the redundant safety systems built within. And these tests are conducted

Being Detroiter feels great

As a native Detroiter, I was filled with foreboding when I first learned that the Republican Party planned to hold its 1980 convention in the Motor City. I was afraid the denizens of my alma mater would prove to be surly, ungracious hosts.

Let's face it. Blue-collar Detroit is seldom found in the Republican corner on election day. I pictured the wholesale slaughter of naive, out-of-town delegates in the dark alleys of the Near East Side.

Then when city employees struck for higher wages the week before the convention, I was sure Detroit would bomb as a convention mecca. Garbage began to pile up on the curbstones and the city's already rudimentary bus service ground to a standstill.

Since Ronald Reagan was a shoo-in anyway, I half hoped the convention would be canceled — or at least moved to Windsor — to prevent bloodshed.

But, of course, I was wrong. The garbage and transit strikes ended as the first delegates began to arrive and from all accounts Detroit turned out to be a charming host.

Before-and-after surveys conducted by the Detroit Free Press indicate the delegates were well pleased by their host city and many of them hope to return in four years. Even delegates who were fearful of visiting the Motor City have joined the cheering section.

Although he didn't attend the convention, Congressman Robert Davis (R-Gaylord) reported from Washington last week that word of Detroit's hospitality is spreading through the nation's capital.

"I've talked to at least 15 people who were at the convention and they have had nothing but good things to say about Detroit," Davis said.

All of which gives me a warm glow. I feel like the teacher whose kids did well in their state exams.

"DUMP CARTER Bid Gathering Steam." I looked at that headline in Sunday's FP and decided that former Charlevoixan Dan Vreeland — now living in Petoskey — either has to be a psychic or a super-astute political observer. The latter probably is closer to the mark.

I encountered Vreeland two weeks ago in downtown Petoskey and he predicted that a "Dump Carter" movement would spring up before the Democratic Convention.

"But they can't do it," I protested. "Jimmy Carter already has all the delegates he needs in his hip pocket."

Now it appears that I was as wrong about the possibility of a move to dump Carter as I was about Detroit's hospitality. Under our loosely structured convention system, Democratic delegates could vote to "open" the convention, thereby freeing delegates from their commitment to vote for either Carter or Ted Kennedy.

Another possible out would be to have both Carter and Kennedy announce their resignation from the running — as did Lyndon Johnson in 1968.

The later makes more sense than opening the convention, particularly in light of Carter's continuing problems over brother Billy's odoriferous ties with the Libyan government and nagging questions about Kennedy's role in the Chappaquiddick tragedy.

Among the third choice candidates most commonly mentioned are Vice President Walter Mondale, Secretary of State Edmund Muskie, Rep. Morris Udall and Sen. Henry S. Jackson.

Vreeland thinks the choice could well be Muskie. In fact, he feels Carter himself might be in on the "Dump Carter" movement and named Muskie to head the State Department in order to give him the inside track next month in New York.

In this strange election year, anything can happen. And probably will.

Walloon Lake auction and sale is this weekend

According to Ray Blanz of Walloon Lake, Saturday, August 2 will be a bonanza for area bargain hunters. Ray and his wife, Eileen, are the chairmen of the Second Annual Walloon Lake Association Trust Garage Sale and Auction which is slated to start at 9 a.m. that day.

Blanz told the sale steering committee at a recent meeting that unusual merchandise is now being received from donors all over the area. Because of the high quality and large number of donations expected, it was decided by the committee to extend the Garage Sale portion of the day and to auction off only items of major interest and value.

The sale will continue until all merchandise has been sold.

The Auction event will be held at 10:30 a.m. and will include only a limited number of major donations. Auction items already received include two Hobie sailboats, a snowmobile with cover and trailer, a Conn Minuet organ, brass coffee table with beveled glass top, porch and infant furniture and sofa beds. There has also been a promised donation of several antiques.

More donations are needed, however, and a calling committee has been set up to contact all association members. Anyone interested in donating items may bring them to the drop-off stations located around the lake or they may call Blanz at 347-8506 or Vert Viles at 535-2336 to arrange for pick-up.

Spencer Damschroder and Peter Fisher have been assigned to pick up donations and sign receipts.

Association treasuer Bill Fisher emphasizes that all proceeds of the sale and auction will go toward funding the work of the Trust. Since the organization has qualified for tax-exempt status by the IRS, gifts to the Trust are tax deductible and donations to the sale may be taken as charitable contributions. The donor has the responsibility to determine the value of the gift or service donated.

Workers on the Steering Committee include Dr. Bill Heisel, president of the Walloon Lake Association, and Pat Heisel, Dick and Jean Brayton, Bill and Andy Fisher, Carl and Priscilla Rasmussen, Peter and Milly Rentschler, Al and Jane Smith, Vert and Claudette Viles and Tom and Molly [illegible].

Auctioneers will be Bud Gallop of Boyne City and "Pennsylvania Pete".

A food concession will be operated by local Boy Scouts.

An auctioneer keeps the action going at last year's Walloon Lake Sale and Auction.

City Band concert to honor hostages in Iran

A special concert honoring the American Hostages in Iran will be presented by the Charlevoix City Band directed by Michael Filkins in East Park Thursday.

The concert is being given to express the city's concern for the hostages as well as calling attention to their plight Filkins said in announcing the concert.

Mayor Samuel Supernaw will speak briefly on behalf of the residents of the area during the concert. The program will be taped and forwarded to the Iran Working Group of the U.S. State Department for transmission to the hostages.

Included in the program will be selections which are typically American. It will open with the National Anthem followed by Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Sound of Music"; "America the Beautiful", Ward/Dragon; "American Patrol", Meacham; "On the Mall" Goldman; Sousa's "Black Horse Troop", "Semper Paratus" von Boskerck and concluding with the stirring "Battle Hymn of the Republic".

In the event of inclement weather, the concert will be held in the high school gymnasium at 8 p.m. Thursday.

To the residents of Charlevoix County

My Committee and I have received some beautiful letters and compliments on running a clean campaign. Therefore I would like to use this space to say that the real recognition goes to the residents of Charlevoix County for their fine efforts in seeking out the answers they deserve. In the midst of swirling rumors and slanderous statements, sometimes a rush to judgement can damage personal reputations and in some cases destroy lives. This ad is one of the ways I can express my appreciation for taking me into your homes, your hearts, and the sharing of your concerns. Thankyou for your tremendous response physically, your support financially, and above all your consistency in being there when I in turn needed you. Thanks to you my campaign will be a success, win or lose.

Wedding

Carol Lynn Biddick and Bernard Andrew Hellstrom exchanged their marriage vows recently at a ceremony at the First Congregational Church.

The Rev. Raymond Giffin officiated at the service on July 19 in the presence of their immediate families and close friends Arrangements of white gladioli and blue carnations formed a setting for the ceremony. Miss Elizabeth Humphrey, at the organ, played a program of traditional music by Mendelsohn and Wagner's "Lohengrin".

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. For her wedding she designed and made her gown of Windsong and lace Fashioned with a fitted bodice of lace over Windsong, fitted lace sleeves and sweetheart neckline, the gown featured an A-line skirt with a chiffon overlay and brush train. Her headdress and fingertip veil of tulle was made by her mother. She carried a bridal bouquet of white daisies, blue forget-me-nots and baby's breath.

Ann O'Connell of Kansas City, Mo., attended as maid of honor and her sister, Anne Biddick, as bridesmaid. They wore gowns of sky blue Windsong, made by each on variations of the bride's gown. Their bouquets were of blue and white daisies.

When was gold first discovered? No one knows for sure. Archeological finds date the crafts of goldsmithing and metallurgy to at least 5000 B.C. And the craftsmanship was sophisticated enough at that time to suggest that the skill had already been around for quite a while.

Where was gold first found? It seems that early man found gold on the shores of the Black, the Caspian and the Red Seas. It was referred to as the "sun metal." Those who found the [illegible]

SECOND ANNUAL EVENT

Joe Barzantny has an a-maze-ing talent

Joe Barzantny prepares to start a new maze.

One day a few years ago, young Joe Barzantny sat down with a pencil and created a mass of swirling tunnels and passageways that he eventually named the Brain Maze.

With much patience and perseverance, one can trace his way through the complicated maze which still stands as Barzantny's most ambitious project. But if you finish the Brain Maze, there are plenty more where it came from - namely Joe's first collection of published works, "You Amaze Me as I Amaze You."

At the tender age of ten, Joe is an accomplished author already at work on his second collection of original mazes.

Joe and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Barzantny of St. Louis, are regular summer visitors to Charlevoix and the Belvidere Club. Mrs. Barzantny's mother is Mrs. Austin P. Leland, a long time Belvidere Club member.

Joe's first book of mazes is a ten-page volume including several familiar shapes filled with his characteristic swirling passageways. All his work is done free hand and is accompanied by cryptic verses daring the reader to try [illegible]

Locally, the book is available at the Literary News Center where it sells for $2.95. Of that, Joe gets a cut of about 60 cents which is being socked away for his college education.

A ten-year-old author conjures images of an egg-headed kid constantly working at a desk with little time for normal boyhood activities.

In Joe's case, nothing could be further from the truth.

"Sure I want to keep on doing mazes when I can," he says bluntly, "But I sure don't want to spend my whole life doing them!"

Tennis, swimming and sailing are only a few of the activities competing for Joe's time when he is here in Charlevoix. Much of his day is spent with "The Gang", a group of Belvidere Club youngsters who participate in many varied activities around here.

Joe's maze-making ability seems to be basically innate.

"I just sit down and do 'em," he explained when asked about his technique.

Counselors at his school in St. Louis have attributed his talent to exceptional mathematical and analytical skills.

Indeed, his favorite subjects in school are math and, of course, art.

Joe's next book will be a collection of mazes on a St. Louis motif. The Gateway Arch, filled with a maze naturally, will grace the cover.

When is its publication date planned?

Says Joe, "Oh, I don't know. Whenever I get a chance to sit down and do it, I guess. Maybe on a rainy day."

Here is a special Lake Charlevoix maze done for the Courier by Joe Barzantny.

See if you can solve it!

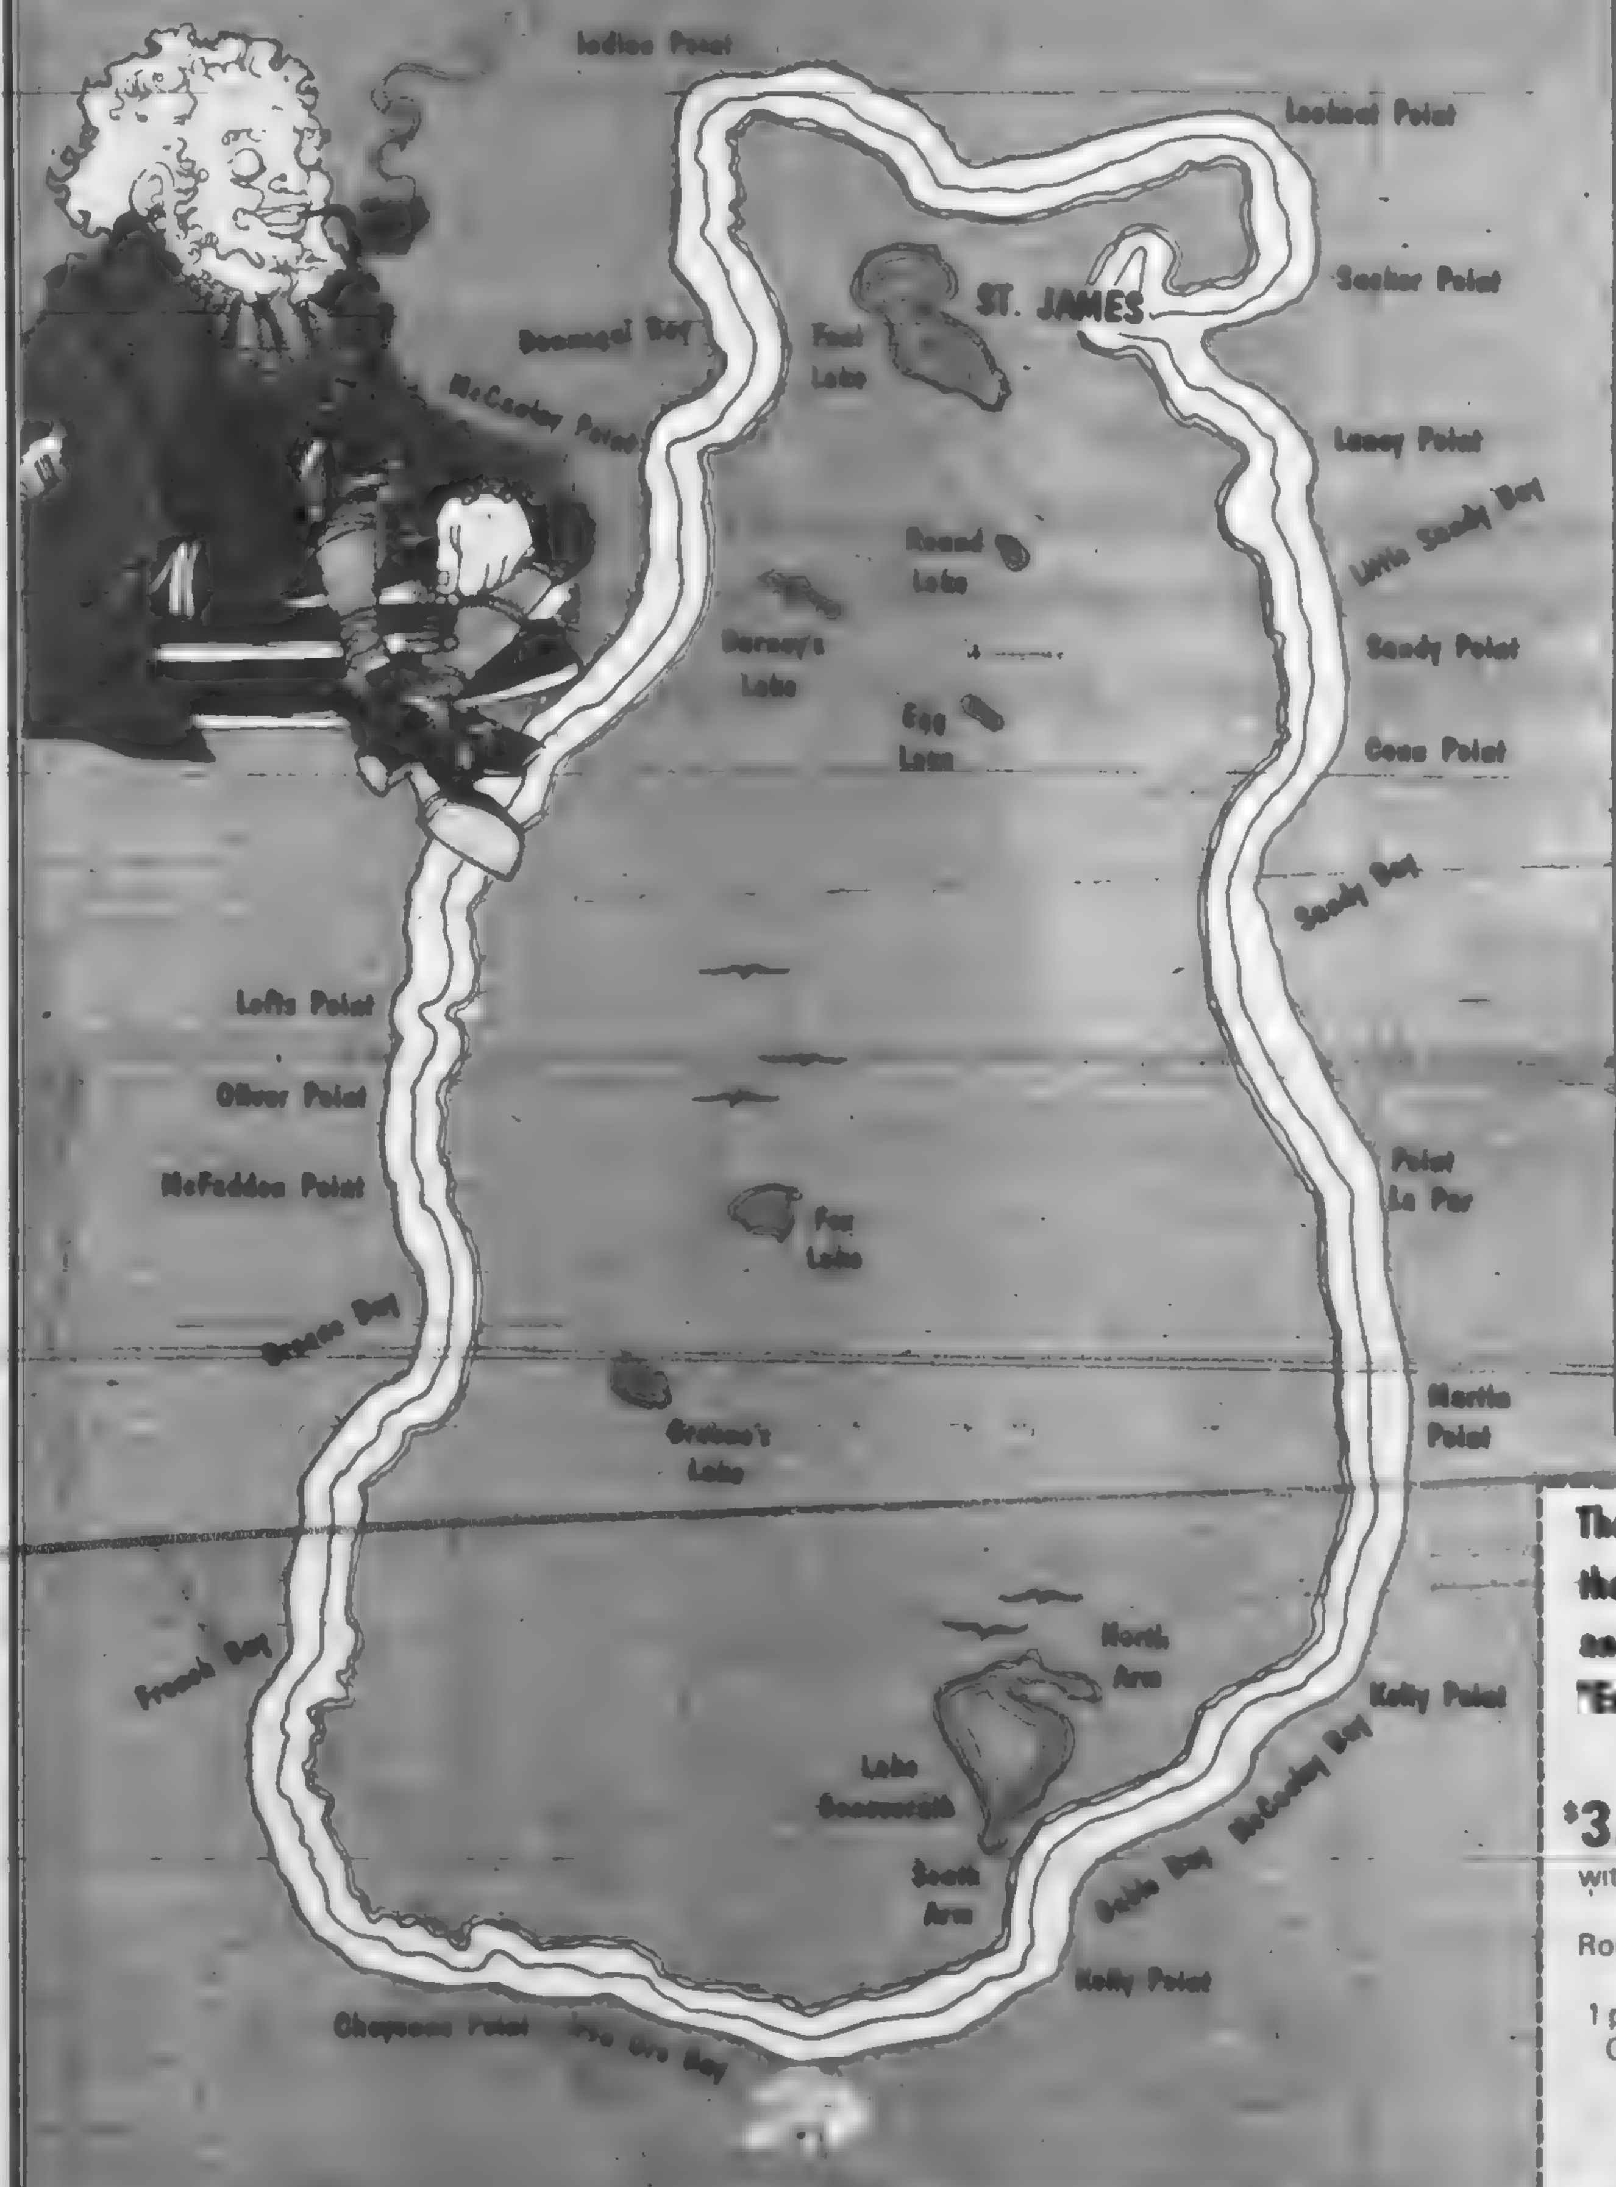
Historic Beaver Island



Ancient lighthouse is boon to schools

Charlevoix Schools' lighthouse station on Beaver Island

One more year.

That's how long Brian Molitor says it will take to complete restoring the 129-year-old lighthouse on the southern end of Beaver Island.

Molitor is director of the restoration project, undertaken by the Charlevoix School District, after the federal government deeded the lighthouse property to the district in 1975. Slowly but surely — thanks to grant money — the district is turning the lighthouse into an environmental education center.

"It's such a natural place (for an environmental camp)," Molitor said, "one square mile of sand dunes, cedar swamp, forests and bogs."

To turn the lighthouse into an educational camp, Molitor has a labor force that consists of nearly 70 youths 16-19 years of age. The youths — who come from economically disadvantaged homes in a 10-county region in northwest Michigan — are split into two five-week sessions.

"This is a great learning experience for them," Molitor said. "It's meaningful employment. It teaches them good work habits. It teaches them basic environmental concepts. And it enables them to earn high school credit.

"I would say the biggest reward of this job is watching the kids mature in the five weeks they're here. It's really something."

The youths can work in construction, food preparation, forestry or on the nature trails.

The nature trails have been receiving a lot of attention this summer. A seven-mile loop has been staked out to Lake Geneserth. The plan is to extend the trail to the north end of the island. Molitor — who previously worked for the DNR and U.S. Forestry Service — claims the trail is "one of the best in the state." A foot bridge crossing a beaver dam highlights the trail. Eight state licensed public camp sites — complete with pit toilets — also have been established near the lighthouse.

In addition to restoring the lighthouse, the youths are restoring the old fog horn building along the Lake Michigan shore. The fog horn building houses the kitchen and — in the near future — will have a lab and darkroom (for photography).

"By the end of next summer this should be a full fledged environmental facility," Molitor said.

Students from the Beaver Island Community School work at the lighthouse in the winter, for which they receive Industrial Arts credit.

When the youths are not working, they can be found participating in a variety of nightly events, ranging from volleyball to hiking. Environmental movies also are shown nightly.

The youths work Monday-Friday and return to the mainland on weekends.

Is working on the lighthouse project a challenge?

Molitor says so.

"It's been a lot more challenging than I thought it would be."

Petoskey Eagles win tourney

WJML
the free money station

The Eagles of Petoskey, with Ed Kullik on the mound, defeated Spare Time Lanes of Cheboygan 5-1 to capture the title in the fifth annual Venetian Festival Fastpitch tournament held here last weekend.

However, the Eagles had to meet the runners-up three times before taking the title for the third time in five years.

In the final game Kullik allowed seven hits while the Eagles collected nine off Clayton McGovern.

In the first clash Saturday morning, the Eagles had sent Spare Time to the loser's bracket after downing them 7-1. Kullik gave up only three hits while McGovern allowed eight.

Spare Time Lanes then made its way through the loser's bracket, defeating Hank's Bombers of Saginaw 6-0; Reef Petroleum of Traverse City 4-3 and Kaden's Emporium 3-0 to go against the Eagles for the second time. In this game, the Lanes dumped the Eagles 5-1 and sending the tournament into a 23rd game where the score was reversed to give the Eagles the trophy

Kullik was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player after carrying them to the title. Gary Sobleski, also of the Eagles, was named the outstanding infielder and Mark Preseau of Spare Time Lanes the most outstanding outfielder. Each was awarded trophies by Dwight Boss, tournament manager. Team trophies were awarded to the Eagles and Spare Time Lanes and individual trophies to the members of the winning team.

The tournament opened Friday night with the first game between the Knights of Columbus of Cheboygan and Ferguson Surveyors of Charlevoix with the game going 14 innings before the Knights won by a score of 2-1. In a second game, Kaden' shut out Reef Petroleum 4-0.

The rains halted the next two games which were played at Petoskey Saturday morning with the Eagles toppling the defending champions, Sports World, formerly known as The Office, 4-2 and Spare Time Lanes defeating Black Label of [illegible] 1-1.

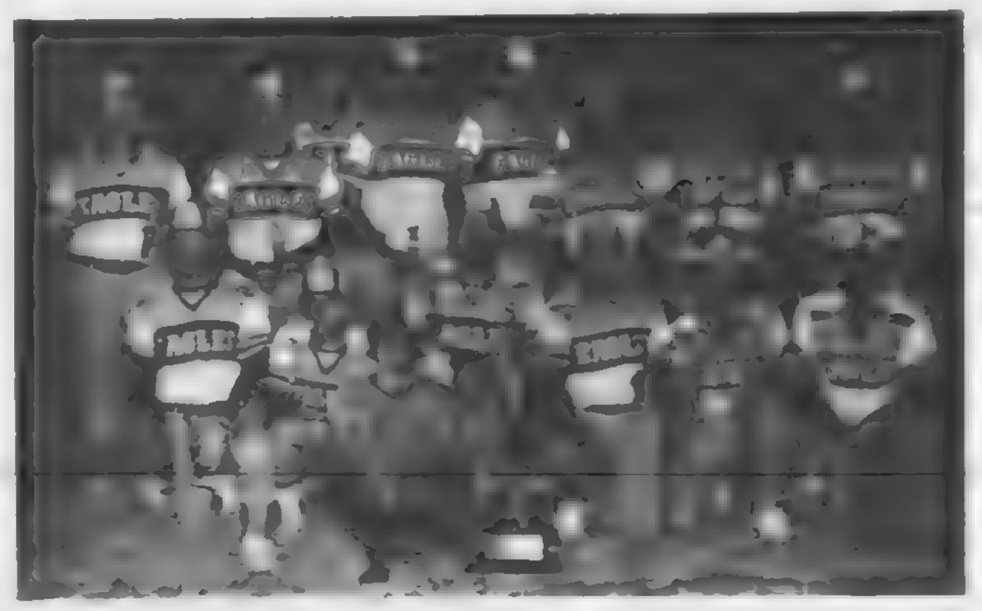
As action got underway Saturday morning, the K.C.'s trounced Heck's Bar of Saginaw 13-1; Kaden's hedged Hank's Bombers 4-1; the Eagles sent the Travelers to the loser's bracket by a score of 16-3 and Spare Time took out Gino's of Lansing 5-1.

Kaden's then knocked out Cheboygan K.C.'s 4-3 and the Eagles defeated Spare Time Lanes the first time [illegible]

This then pitted the Eagles against Kaden's and Kaden's left the bracket after losing by a [illegible] score.

After losing to the Eagles the first time, Spare Time Lanes battled back to defeat Hank's Bombers 6-0; Reef Petroleum [illegible] and Kaden's 3-0 for a second opportunity to take on the Eagles. This time they won 5-1 only to lose by the same score the third time around.

The Eagles had won the tournament in 1976 and '77.



The Eagles of Petoskey captured the title for the third time in five years as they won the fifth annual Venetian Festival Fast Pitch tournament held here over the weekend with 12 teams participating.

Full coverage of Charlevoix Little League tournament action next week

Final plans are shaping up for Charlevoix Race Week, 1980

From the Red Fox Regatta August 30 and 31, to the Budweiser Olympic Triangle September 6, C.Y.C. Race Week '80 offers a challenge to all racing/cruising yachts but especially to the Santana 525's and 30's.

These classes will also be sailing their championship series, a 7 race, olympic scoring, contest of one design competition at its finest. And, if that's not enough, that week will also see the S-525 World Team Championships.

The Red Fox, a traditional event jointly sponsored by C.Y.C. and Boyne City Yacht Club, will deviate slightly from tradition to utilize the new Northwestern Michigan PHRF System with the fleet divided into four divisions (which will remain unchanged throughout C.Y.C. Race Week '80). About 50-60 yachts are expected to compete for division and overall awards and trophies for both Red Fox and C.Y.C. Race Week '80 results. The race from Charlevoix to Boyne City and return is interrupted by a beer blast, cook out and overnight lying contest at Boyne's municipal marina.

Following the finish at C.Y.C. Sunday, the skippers and crews do it all over again at the awards party.

The Santana events run from Labor Day, September 1 through Friday, September 6 and are covered in detail in the C.Y.C. Race Week '80 Brochure.

C.Y.C. Race Week '80 includes the "Wednesday Night at the Races", an Around-the-Buoys on Lake Charlevoix event, starting at 5:30 p.m. September 3 and ends with "The Budweiser Olympic Triangle", in Lakes Michigan or Charlevoix, first gun at 11:00 a.m. Saturday, September 6. The awards and "WRAP-IT-ALL-UP" party, again at C.Y.C., starts at 6:00 p.m.

Combined entry fees for C.Y.C. Race Week '80 are $40 ($50 for Santanas participating in the Championships) which includes the Red Fox Regatta, Wednesday Night at the Races, the Budweiser Olympic Triangle and all associated cook outs, parties, and awards. Combined entry fee is reduced by $5.00 for C.Y.C. 1980 registered yachts. Entries are also available by event.

C.Y.C. Race Week '80 Brochures will be mailed August 1, 1980. Send your request to "C.Y.C. Race Week '80", Box 500, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720. Save both time and postage by including your entry fee and yacht description.

The sponsors and participants appreciate the assistance of Anheuser-Busch in providing support, prizes and trophies for the Budweiser Olympic Triangle and C.Y.C. Race Week '80 events.

Trophies will go to the tournament champions and runners-up, the Most Valuable Player and the home run and batting champions, courtesy of McDonough's Market, [illegible].

Charlevoix Historical Society schedules August meeting

The August meeting of the Charlevoix Historical Society will be held on August 5, at 8 p.m. in the Harsha House, 103 State St., home of the Historical Society.

Mrs. Arthur Wexstaff will tell of her ancestor, John Ward of Belfast, Ireland, who was a surveyor and first came to northern Michigan as an employee of the Pere Marquette Railroad and actually blueprinted the right-of-way for the line.

Once here, Ward married and purchased land from the Railroad in Marion Township, since Federal Homestead lands had all been taken. He never practiced his surveying profession again but served Charlevoix County as treasurer when the County Seat was located in Boyne City.

Members and friends who are interested in Charlevoix area history are invited to attend the meeting. Several recently acquired historical items will be on display.

Mutz marks 60 years as a citizen

Meet Charlevoix

By [illegible]

Anthony Mutz of Marion Township is celebrating his 60th anniversary of arriving in the United States. This week he tells the Courier about some of his experiences, dating back to World War I.

COURIER: Where were you born?

MUTZ: In Austria, but I traveled all over Europe trying to get to the United States. Actually, I entered this country by crossing from Windsor to Detroit.

COURIER: How did that happen?

MUTZ: I served three years in the Austrian Army. In 1917, I was stationed in Bucharest. My job was to take care of the personal effects of a Major. We were transferred to Italy, where we arrived on Christmas morning. Soon we began to hear that American troops had landed in Europe, and since most of us had relatives in America, we figured some of them would be in the American Army in Europe, and we didn't want to fight against them. This brought about desertions from the Austrian Army.

COURIER: Did you desert?

MUTZ: Yes, on March 1, 1918. Later on, when the Austrian War ended, revolution broke out all over Austria and all the Army deserted. The part of Austria I lived in became part of Jugoslavia. We got a new king and they started drafting young men into their new army. After serving three years in the Austrian Army, I didn't want any more of that. The borders were all closed and I didn't have a passport, but I jumped the border and started walking. I got to Vienna, picked up a partner, and walked to Prague and finally got to Munich. I wanted to get near the water so I could take a boat to America. Then I was picked up and put in a lockup. There were 22 of us and we slept on straw sacks. We were full of lice – they ate our clothes at the seams, and we had no water and only potato soup for 22 days. From here we were shipped to a penitentiary where they took our clothes away and killed the lice. When I asked them why I was being held, they said I was a political prisoner and under investigation. Years later, when I was living in Chicago, I read a story in the Tribune about "Mein Kampf" that said Hitler had been incarcerated in that same penitentiary for organizing a private army, which later became the Nazi party. I was there in 1919 and Hitler about 1921.

Anthony Mutz

COURIER: Where did you go next?

MUTZ: Eventually I was sent to another prison, and when I asked them there why I was being held, they said I was a Polish Jew and sent me to a concentration camp. After being in the camp for three days, I found an unguarded gate and just walked out. Then I took a train to Berlin, where I had the name of a man who might help me with identification papers. I told him I wanted to go to Frankfort am Main, which was about a week's walk away. He finally gave me papers saying I had just been released from the Germany Army and a free railroad ticket to Frankfort. He also gave me the new name of "Edward Heim."

COURIER: How long did you stay in Frankfort?

MUTZ: Just over night. The next day I took off on foot to the next town, which was Limberg, the home of Limberger cheese. I still remember it because it was full of white marble buildings. From there I went to Coblenz, where I saw a great, big American flag. It was the most beautiful thing I had ever seen. My heart started beating faster because my heart was in America. It turned out that Coblenz was occupied by the American Army. There were American soldiers all over town. Soon I found out that in a nearby town there was a factory where they overhauled American Army trucks before returning them to the United States. I got a job there taking magnetos apart and putting them back together. The pay was 25 marks, or 50 cents a day.

COURIER: You weren't making much progress toward getting to the United States, were you?

MUTZ: But I was thinking about it. [illegible] I was working on the job, I wrote a letter to my relatives in Joliet, Ill., and asked them to send me $100. A while later I heard from the Bank of Coblenz that they had the request to give me the money, but when I went to the bank, they asked me to come back in three or four days because they didn't have the 7,500 marks on that first trip. Part of the money I used to get a passport, which was prepared for me by a Jugoslav girl in the Consulate. She came from a town not far from my home town, and managed to make out the papers and stamp them with the Consul's name without his knowing it. When I got the rest of the 7,000 marks, I gave her 200. I also bought a [illegible].

COURIER: So now you were free?

MUTZ: Not really. Shortly afterward, in Coblenz, I was awakened at 4 a.m. and taken out of bed to a stockade by one American and one German soldier. They told me it was because I didn't have proper credentials. I was in the stockade for about 10 days, but I really didn't mind it because we were given more food than I had seen for years.

COURIER: Where did you go when you got out of the stockade?

MUTZ: I went to the Belgium border, then to Brussels, and then to Antwerp, which was an international port. While hanging around Antwerp, I remembered an uncle in San Francisco, so I found an American Express office and sent him a telegram asking for $200 to be sent by American Express. It arrived on the third day. Then I found out that no boats were leaving for three weeks, except to England. I bought a ticket to London for $104.

GOD'S WONDERS MAY BE SEEN CLOSE TO YOUR HOME

Vacation time this year may not be quite the same for those of us who normally take an extended auto trip but do not have unlimited funds for it. The cost of driving a car may continue to soar for some time to come, and in any case, it has become both prudent and patriotic to conserve all forms of energy for more serious purposes. Therefore, this might be a good time to explore those places closer to home that you usually bypass in your quest for the far horizons. Most of us live somewhere near a forest, beach, mountain range or some wilderness area suitable for a camping trip, with both beauty and recreational possibilities. You have learned in your House of Worship that God's wonders are everywhere on earth, and so this may be a good year in which to prove it.

Historical Society Luncheon

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Orlowski were made honorary members of the Society in recognition of their architectural advice and help with the museum.

The speaker at the luncheon was Edwin J. Madill, a native of Charlevoix who now lives in Phoenix. He reminisced about his early days in Charlevoix – before 1929 when he graduated from Charlevoix High School, and before his 30 years with the State Department spent in many countries around the world.

He told of the Civil War veterans with whom he was acquainted and how he was prompted to salute at least those of high rank. He mentioned the law enforcement officers who were neighbors and friends – "They were against sin and for motherhood and an early spring."

He read an article from the Charlevoix Courier of April 24, 1918 telling about a Red Cross benefit for which his mother was chairman. The benefit netted $40 to be used to help Charlevoix boys who were serving their country.

He recalled Armistice Day and how the town "went wild", and the coming of prohibition the next year. He told of his Aunt's "noble experiment" – how she drove to the Belvedere and Chicago Clubs each morning to take orders for delivery of food from her grocery store. He remembered the "Pee Wee" cigars which were rolled in Charlevoix by Charlie Novak. He mentioned the speakeasies, which apparently were an important part of the times.

Consumers Power responds to charges of spent nuclear fuel dangers

every six months

We are saddened at the serious accusations implied by Mr. Will with regard to alleged break-ins and other incidents. The innuendo directed at Big Rock Point plant employees is demeaning and, unfortunately, we can't think of any way to prevent the suspicions that will be raised in people's minds when they read those charges no matter how untrue they may be.

We contacted our legal department in Jackson to determine what our policy might be should any employee be engaged in any type of harassment. The answer is that there is no policy because our management would not condone such actions. While we strongly disagree with those who oppose our operations, we support, just as strongly, their right to voice their views. The implication that we are supporting some type of surveillance of our opponents or endorsing some type of economic boycott is grossly unfair. It smacks of that age-old question asked of a man, "Have you stopped beating your wife?" because there is no adequate way to respond.

We suggest that the Courier look into the allegations made with regard to the break-ins and other incidents. If they did occur, they surely were reported to law enforcement authorities. And there should be a record of their investigations. We don't believe this matter should be ignored, but that an independent review should be made and the facts learned from that review should be made public.

And, since Mr. Will on a couple of occasions, uses the term "crazy," we offer this from a speech in March by H. Peter Metzger, Ph.D., Manager of Public Affairs Planning, Public Service Company of Colorado. In the speech, "Government-funded Activism: Hiding Behind the Public Interest," Metzger says, "...consider the words of the country's most prominent anti-nuclear attorney, Tony Roisman, of the private (but partially government-funded) Natural Resources Defense Counsel (NRDC).

Testifying before the President's Commission on the Accident at Three Mile Island, Roisman boasted that if he 'or several other lawyers that I know' were armed with federal interventor funding, 'there would never be another (nuclear reactor) licensed in the country and the ones that are now operating would slowly be shut down.

One might conclude then, that Roisman (and other anti-nuke lawyers) has big worries about nuclear safety. But when quizzed on that point, Roisman freely revealed that, 'I haven't the slightest idea whether nuclear power is safe.' Indeed, it's remarkable that this anti-nuclear advocate, who has probably heard more nuclear safety testimony than any other attorney in the world, could admit that, 'On the basis of the record established to date, there are no grounds to conclude anything, one way or the other.'

Metzger goes on to say later, "Interestingly, Roisman recently became an appointee of Presidential appointee James W. Moorman, and just moved from his 'public interest' anti-nuclear litigation group (NRDC) to the U.S. Department of Justice. There he will be responsible for writing the new regulations governing hazardous waste, thus enabling him to continue his anti-nuclear (and anti-business) activities from the inside, this time unchallenged by opposing attorneys in court."

Campaigners warned not to post signs on utility poles

Attaching political or other signs to poles that carry electricity violates laws in many communities and endangers electric linemen, R.G. Dahlquist, Area Manager, Cheboygan, of Consumers Power Company said recently.

"As the political campaigns of 1980 heat up, we have noticed that more and more political signs are being fastened to our electric distribution poles," Dahlquist said.

"Some communities in this area have ordinances making that illegal. But beyond that, attaching signs poses a threat to the safety of our linemen.

"We use bucket trucks more now to work on lines, but we still climb poles under certain circumstances. If a lineman's climbing gear strikes a nail or other piece of metal that was used to attach a sign, he can be misled into thinking his spike is set firmly into the pole. This could result in what we call a 'cutout' and the lineman might fall, with serious injury a possible result," Dahlquist said.

The same danger exists from the posting of signs for garage sales, auctions or other purposes, he added.

"Please remember that our poles are private property and that they serve the general public," Dahlquist said. "Using them for political purposes violates company policy and could result in a fine if the community has a law against this. But beyond that, the danger to our linemen is of greater concern."

State law prohibits posting of signs on utility poles within state highway rights of way, he said.

EVELINE & WILSON TOWNSHIPS
for COUNTY COMMISSIONER

My name is Martin Bieganowski and I am asking for your vote and support as your Republican candidate for County Commissioner. I believe I am the best qualified candidate and would like to tell you why I feel this way.

Over the past eight years I have worked with nearly every county department head and they know me as a fair person.

I know, and am known by, nearly all the members of the present County Commissioners, County Planning Commission Members and all the Eveline and Wilson Township officials.

In addition to being acquainted with our local officials I have visited with our state legislators, Ralph Ostling and Mitch Irwin and correspond with Congressman Bob Davis and Senators Don Riegle and Carl Levin who reply to my letters.

Performance and involvement are excellent yardsticks and I submit the following:

Seven years Planning Commission (part in Wilson Township)
  Assisted in rewriting Wilson Township zoning ordinance
Three years as Chairman - Planning Commission
Two years Wilson Township Board of Review
Regular attendance at Township meetings
Two years State Director Michigan Association of Realtors
Two State Committees (Realtor)
  Professional Standards and Public Relations
1980 President of Antrim-Charlevoix Board of Realtors
Director Boyne Area Chamber of Commerce
1979 Realtor of the Year
Local Board Finance and Education Committees
Past President - Chamber of Commerce - Two consecutive years

My attendance at the State Director's meetings, State Committee meetings, and local board meetings has bee 100% I am an involved person and I do have the time and desire to be your "full time" commissioner.

I expect to continue to have 100% attendance at all commission meetings and at all township meetings so that continuity may be established and maintained. I believe that I have established an excellent background of experience and performance and that I can give Eveline and Wilson Township people full time representation. If you believe that I can represent you and the townships in a competent and diligent manner, please vote for me on August 5th and ask your neighbors and friends to cast their vote for me as well, I won't let you down!

Meet Charlevoix

When I got there it was full of fog, rain, drizzle, and dirt. I stayed three days, then went to Liverpool and took a boat for Quebec. I had only 15 minutes before it sailed. The trip took nine days.

COURIER: You were getting closer to the United States.

MUTZ: My transportation had been paid to Montreal, so I went there by train. I had the name and address of a countryman who lived there, and he gave me the name of a countryman in Windsor. Next I had to go to Windsor. There I learned that large crowds of people crossed the river to Detroit on certain nights to go to the theater. I joined the group one night and was able to make the crossing without being questioned by immigration officials. At last I was in the United States! I took a cab to the Illinois Central Station and bought a ticket to Chicago. Long before that I had learned to read the word "Ticket" over a station window, and when I got to Chicago, I found another ticket window. Here I bought a ticket to Joliet, where my relatives lived. I got to Joliet at 3 a.m., took a taxicab to their house and woke them up. Wow – nobody went back to bed. We had coffee and food and talked and talked. It was Sunday morning and everyone went to 10 o'clock mass. After that, everyone went to the speakeasy.

COURIER: Now you had reached your destination. How long had you been on the road?

MUTZ: Eleven months. My uncle thought I should rest for a while, which I did for a couple of weeks. Then I got a job in a chemical factory, and from there went to the gas company. I bought a bicycle for $30 and started going to night school. No one in my relatives' family, including the six children, spoke English at home. I wanted to learn English and decided I couldn't as long as I stayed with them.

COURIER: Then what?

MUTZ: Later on, we visited some distant relatives in South Chicago. When I saw the steel mills and the ore boats, I said, "Hey, that's for me!" I got a job on a boat – hired on to learn English. When they tied up for the winter, I went back to Joliet to work for a few months. My relatives were impressed that I had learned to use the English language and to read it, too. I stayed on the Great Lakes for three years and finally quit because I had a girl on shore. I took a job in the steel mills as a fireman and held it for nine years, all through the depression. Then, one day, I found I had enough years in to take the exam for engineer. I passed with a grade of 94, got the license, and still carry it. It was a stationary engineer's license, but later on, to help the war effort, I worked with locomotive engineers.

COURIER: Did you live in South Chicago all this time?

MUTZ: Yes, even after I quit the mills and went to work for Montgomery Ward on the north side of the city. I was an engineer there and was around when the Army surrounded the building and came in and took Sewell Avery – he was head of the company – away in his overstuffed chair. Your older readers will remember that. He was in trouble with the government because he refused to abide by the guidelines of the Office of Price Administration (OPA).

COURIER: When did you move to Charlevoix?

MUTZ: I bought the property in 1956 and moved here in 1960. The first time I saw Charlevoix from land was in 1949, when I came here on vacation. I had seen it from the boats and thought it was so beautiful. The house here was just one room when we bought it. It used to be the Marion Center School.

BMX is the newest sport in town

The BMX program has come to Charlevoix in the form of a 900 foot course sculpted out of a rolling hillside overlooking the Open Gate resort on Wickersham Road.

Open Gate owner Tim Kane, spending a good deal of his own time and money, completed the course this spring and now hosts over 20 young byclists each week who come out to try their skills on the motocross-type course.

BMX is a bike racing program that was started in California about seven years ago. It involves a small bicycle, the precise specs of which are laid out in a rule manual, with pads on the handlebars, gooseneck and crossbar. Riders are required to wear a helmet and long pants and sleeves for protection.

Kane got the idea for the course from a campground owner downstate who installed one at his resort. With help and encouragement from bike shop owners Bob McLain in Traverse City and Tim Fisher in Petoskey, Kane lined up some local sponsors and has gotten a BMX team together that will be competing regularly this summer.

This Thursday, July 31, Kane and the local BMX team will be hosting the Redline Factory Racing Team from California at the Open Gate Raceway. The team is one of the best in the country and features Stu Thompson, reputedly the nation's number one rider.

The track will open at 11 a.m. that day with demonstrations and racing set for 2 p.m.

"This is a growing sport all over the country," says Kane, "I am hoping to build up our program here to the point where we will draw as many as 200 riders regularly from all over Northern Michigan."

Kane pointed out that his course is now one of the longest in the state and that, since opening, the numbers of participants has grown steadily.

One aspect he emphasized was the admirable safety record of his course. "In eleven races," he said, "We have had no broken bones or major injuries of any kind." Kane invites all area youngsters to participate in racing practices which are held at 6:30 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday at the raceway located at the end of Wickersham Road.

Local sponsors helping Kane get the program going are Sign & Design, Ben Franklin, Pizza Hut, Charles Elzinga Insurance, Ski & Shore Real Estate and Silver Cue Recreation.

KHQ brings metropolitan sound to local airways

Courier Feature
by Anne Kelly

Small town gone big? Or is there just something big happening in the small town of Charlevoix?

The atmosphere prevailing in the WVOY-KHQ offices on Bridge St. is one of unbridled optimism and enthusiasm. It's all happening even faster than anyone imagined, including Tim Moore, President of the New Broadcasting Corp. and General Manager of WKHQ.

Moore finds it remarkable that in the two months the station has been in operation, it has attained the status which would normally take eight or more months to build. A person who takes delight in seeing things happen and "jell with a lot of people," Moore is quick to praise his staff in enumerating the factors responsible for KHQ's success story to date.

Ratings are proving the concept of FM Rock Stereo to be not only successful but dynamic.

The enthusiastic popular response to KHQ appears to be the direct result of hard sales work, a comprehensive knowledge of the music business, and timing.

"We probably have the best sales team in Michigan," reports Moore. With sales offices in Petoskey, Charlevoix and Traverse City, the KHQ sales staff is canvasing the North and doing a fine job of it.

"And we are lucky enough to have Bob Harper with us," Moore continues. Harper, familiar to the national programming scene is known as "one of contemporary radio's most respected programming minds." Before becoming a partner in KHQ, Harper was engaged in a successful career which most recently involved his acting as Director of Contemporary Services with T.M. Programming in Dallas, Texas, where he worked with Moore in consulting with over 300 radio stations across the U.S.

Prominently displayed on the studio walls of WVOY-KHQ are a collection of record plaques presented to Harper during the course of his career for his foresight in their air-play introduction and subsequent chart success.

Harper, too, seems dazzled by the glory of opportunity awaiting

Sidewalk Sale control concerns council

"Don't get me wrong, I think sidewalk sales are great," said city council member Jeff Porter Monday night, "But frankly they are getting out of control."

Porter and other members of the council expressed concern at their regular meeting this week over the Sidewalk Sale days held last Friday and Saturday in downtown Charlevoix.

Among their complaints included the use by at least one business, Kit Carson Lumber, of East Park to set up a display; the eagerness of some stores who started selling on the sidewalks on Thursday and continued through Sunday; and the placing of merchandise by some stores in the street.

Council member Ivan Whitley was especially concerned over the damage done to the grounds at East Park from [illegible].

"We have got to clarify with the Chamber of Commerce just how many days they have use of the park each year," said Whitley. "Because if we don't take better care of the park, it is [illegible]."

Porter agreed with Whitley saying that it appeared that the Chamber was unable to control Sidewalk Sale days sufficiently and that the council should take the initiative to see that the promotion is run more tightly.

No formal action was taken at the meeting though it was indicated that the council will submit a written statement to the Chamber outlining its concerns.

Following a lengthy discussion on the merits of appointing a city clerk versus electing one, the council opted to place on the fall ballot an amendment to the city charter that will extend the term of the city clerk to two years. It is presently a one-year term.

The original amendment also included the extension of the mayoral term from one year to two but that [illegible] so as to [illegible] the mayor and clerk serve staggered two-year terms.

In other action, the council:

-Referred Attorney John Michael to the Planning Commission following his request, on behalf of the developers of the May St. apartments, to be granted a variance for construction of a five-foot fence around four sides of the containment pond adjacent to the apartments.

-Approved funds, not to exceed $2,000, for a study of the feasibility of purchasing electric power from a small hydro-electric generating plant near [illegible].

At left is the damage done at Michigan Beach last Thursday night when one of the brick retaining walls was pushed over.

Charles Elzinga resigns from School Board

By [illegible]

Charles A. Elzinga, a member of the Charlevoix Board of Education for the past nine years and vice president for several years, announced his resignation from the board, effective Sept. 1, at the regular meeting of the board held Monday.

Mr. Elzinga said he was resigning for business reason. He heads his own insurance agency.

The discipline and attendance problems, especially in the high school, were discussed at length. David Smith, assistant principal, outlined some of the major problems which are created by approximately 10 percent of the student population. He and Vane H. Smith, high school principal, were named to work up a recommended policy to be presented at the next meeting of the board on Aug. 18.

There was also a general discussion of goals. However, priorities will not be [illegible] until all recommendations by board members have been evaluated.

May St. Apartment drainage is a muddy issue

Courier Feature
by Dave Knight

To the developers it is a containment pond that is doing its job. To the neighbors it is an unsightly, unsafe nuisance. To the city it is the county drain commissioner's problem and to the drain commissioner, it is a matter for an engineer.

The problem is a 150 by 100 foot lot extending north from the newest units of the Charlevoix Apartments at 1001 May St. The purpose of the lot, which was dug out into a pit last year when the newest units were being built, is to provide an area to hold storm drainage from the parking lot of the complex.

Because the city does not have adequate storm sewer facilites in the May St. area, the developers of the apartments were required to provide an on-site solution to the substantial amount of runoff from the parking lot.

Their solution was the containment pond but many neighborhood residents and at least one member of the city council consider the pond an ugly addition to the block at best and, at worst, a tragic accident waiting to happen.

Had to provide drainage

Economic Development Group, a Saginaw firm, built the three additions to Charlevoix apartments last year with a low interest FmHA loan. The apartments are designated for low income renters.

When the city council granted final approval of the site plan, one stipulation was that a self-contained storm drainage system be provided. On the site plan shown to the council, the area on which the containment pond is now located was shown as a level, partially wooded plot.

According to third ward alderman Shirley Roloff, who has been the most vocal critic of the pond, one of the developers, Frank Vaydik, assured her at a council session that the [illegible] childrens' play area.

On a site plan submitted to the county building inspection and soil erosion office, however, the lot is shown with a steeply sloping pit on the location as [illegible].

Neighbor's story different

Attorney John R. Michael, who represents the developers, said the city's insistence that the project include two and a half parking places per apartment unit, instead of the one and a half originally planned, created a larger parking lot and more runoff. The only area left on the property large enough to handle the amount of runoff, according to Michael, was the present location of the containment pond.

Says Michael, "After we carefully checked the amount of rainfall and consulted at length with the architect (Sigmund Blum, Vaporciyan & Mitch of Detroit) and the contractor (Manthei Development Corporation of Charlevoix), we came to the conclusion that it was properly built and that water was leeching out as it should. I have personally checked the water level in the pond occasionally and have never seen it more than one foot deep."

The neighbors tell a different story.

Lawrence Supernaw, whose back [illegible] surrounding the containment pond, says he has seen the water at least five or six feet deep after a rainfall. Supernaw's biggest complaint, however, is about the stagnancy of the water and the dense growth of tall weeds around the pond which both contribute to excellent breeding [illegible].

"I have to keep all my doors and windows shut all the time this year," said Supernaw, "The mosquitoes have [illegible]."

William Marme, another resident of the neighborhood, said, "This pit in the middle of the block sure doesn't do our propery values much good." Marme agreed with Supernaw that the water level has been dangerously deep on several occasions and added that it is a definite hazard to the children of the area.

A 42-inch fence was built around three sides of the pond and, according to Michael, a variance will be sought from the council to construct a five-foot fence around all four sides. The higher fence was prompted by insurance concerns of the developers.

Five-foot high fence poles were being installed, in fact, last Thursday, but a stop work order was issued by the next day by City Manager James Brinker on grounds that a variance had not been [illegible].

Concerned about children

The neighbors contacted, however, did not think a higher fence would solve the basic problem.

"Kids can just jump over the fence now, said Marme, "And I don't think another foot and a half higher will make much difference."

Swanee Lee Alden, a neighborhood resident and mother of three children, said that although she has strictly warned her children not to play near the pond, she has often seen very small [illegible] the water.

"Last winter, when the water was frozen over, one child fell through the ice into about three feet of water," she said, "We also saw a tricycle that had either been pushed or ridden into the water."

Mrs. Alden said that the pond seemed to leech properly after the first few rainfalls of the spring. Since then, however, she claims that it has never been completely dry and that there is usually more than a foot of water in it.

In a June 17 letter sent to City Manager Brinker, County Drain Commissioner Clayton Healey [illegible] that on the three occasions that he checked the pit, there had been standing water and that the rainfall had not been of a sufficient amount to [illegible].

Healey speculated that a compacted layer of clay sediment had washed down from the parking lot and sealed the bottom of the pond preventing proper seepage into the soil. He suggested that the layer be dug out and an underground drainage system be installed so that the surface could be used for a playground or parking.

As of the July 21 city council meeting the ball is in Healey's court. At that meeting, the council passed a resolution petitioning the drain commissioner to set up a drainage district in the area of the apartments.

Some weeks previously, the city council had received a petition itself signed by several residents of the May St.-Carpenter St. area asking that some action be taken on the pond.

District formation unlikely

If the drainage district process goes the entire route, Healey will first approach the county supervisors for funds to hire an engineer, the engineer will then do a complete study of the situation and will make recommendations on what should be done and where the district's boundaries should be drawn, an appointed three-member Board of Determination will hold a public hearing on the engineer's recommendations and, if they are accepted, will let bids for constructions.

Chances are, however, that the process of establishing a drainage district, of which there are none presently in the city, will not happen.

Michael has indicated that the question may be decided in court. He [illegible] willing to make changes only if it can be shown conclusively that the containment pond is not working.

On Friday, when this photo was taken, there was about one foot of water in the May St. Apartments containment pond.

MEDICAL IMPROVEMENT DEDUCTIBLE

Home improvements are generally not tax deductible, but they can be -- if they're a medical necessity. For example, a swimming pool to provide treatment for a polio victim, a chairseat elevator for a heart patient, central air conditioning for a child afflicted with cystic fibrosis.

How much of the expense is deductible? The amount over which it increases the property value. For example, if an improvement costs $5,000 and the property value is increased by $1,000, the $4,000 excess is deductible. If there's no increase in property value, it's all deductible.

But you'll need two documents to support this claim. A letter from a doctor stating that it is a medical necessity and a written opinion from a competent real estate appraiser stating the amount (if any) the improvement adds to the value of your property.

Art Fair is this weekend!

Charlevoix's Annual Waterfront Art Fair, to be held this coming Saturday, August 9, will again draw artists and craftspersons from across the country.

More than 800 artists and craftspersons applied for the fewer than 200 spaces available for this year's fair.

By 10 a.m. Saturday, the grassy terraces of the park overlooking Charlevoix's Round Lake will be a panorama of color and texture as some of the 176 artists display their work.

But even before the artists have set up their displays of watercolors, ceramics, sculptures, wood carvings, photographs, oils, and acrylics, serious art collectors and buyers from galleries throughout Michigan and around the nation will be surveying their works.

Since 1959, Charlevoix's Art Fair, the second oldest art fair in Michigan, has grown and developed a reputation for drawing well-known contemporary artists as well as those who appreciate art.

Among the midwestern artists whose works will be exhibited this year are Fran Larsen, watercolorist from South Haven; Pat Custer Dennison, painter-printmaker from Mt. Clemens; Jane Dalton, ceramicist from Deerfield, Ill.; Dee Knot, water colorist from Flushing; Russel and Sue Bolt, painters and ceramicists from Charlevoix; Norman and Judy Brumm, wildlife copper enamel sculptors of Charlevoix; and Linda Beers Aydlott, jewelry designer of East Jordan.

Started with the goal of bringing fine art to northern Michigan, the Waterfront Art Fair has become a major summer event in the years.

Among artists, the Charlevoix fair is known as a well organized show, drawing other fine artists and serious art collectors. For artists, the Charlevoix Art Fair is an opportunity to gain further recognition and to sell their works.

Buyers from across the country are attracted to the fair because of the quality of the art. Since the mid-1960's, applicants for the fair have been juried by a committee of volunteers.

This year the committee devoted some 20 hours to viewing applicants' slides, judging according to "creativity, originality, professionalism, and craftsmanship", according to committee member Suzy Reis.

The result will be a dazzling array of color and form, an unusual collection of good contemporary art in a variety of media.

Displays of realistic watercolor landscapes will stand by flamboyant mixed media impressionistic paintings, next to shelves of unusually fine hand-thrown pottery, followed by original photographic experiments in limited editions, next to a display of unique hand wrought jewelry, leading to a hanging exhibit of fine weaving.

Art fair organizers spend long hours designing the arrangement of exhibits so each artist's work is displayed to best advantage.

The result is a show around which people plan vacations, a show to which artists look forward each year, and a show which generates over $100,000 in sales for the artists.

Part of the fair's profits – each artist pays a basic $40 fee for display space – is used to maintain a scholarship for a young area artist. In recent years, $500 scholarships have gone to college-bound artists, but this year, an unusually talented Charlevoix 8th grade student, Jeff Kelly, was chosen on the basis of his pen and ink sketches. He will use his scholarship next summer toward tuition at Interlochen Arts Academy's summer session in the National Music Camp, which has a fine arts program.

Ground to be broken this week for Charlevoix elderly housing project

By FRAN MARTIN

The ground-breaking ceremony for the $3.0 million senior citizens complex to be constructed with HUD funds on West Garfield Ave. has been scheduled for 2 p.m. Wednesday, Ralph McRae, chairman of the Charlevoix Housing Commission, has announced.

The event will be held on Grant St. south of the baseball field which is adjacent to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

The ground-breaking ceremony will mark another milestone in the attempt by the commission to obtain funds to underwrite the cost of the project. Senator Donald Riegle, Jr., (D) was instrumental in assisting the commission to receive HUD funds. However, he will be unable to be present Wednesday because of a previous commitment.

Representatives of HUD, Daverman Associates, architects, the Charlevoix Housing Commission, Mayor Samuel Supernaw and other city officials, Rep. Robert Davis (R), 11th Congressional District, Commission on Aging representatives and interested persons including representatives of Senior Citizen groups will be present for the ground-breaking.

The Charlevoix Housing Commission signed a contract with West Shore Builders of Ladington, low bidder on the project, on Wednesday, McRae said. West Shore Builders, with a bid of $1,598,000, had the lowest bid among 11 submitted. Green Side Up of Traverse City, with a bid of $29,775, was awarded the bid for the landscaping at the site. The property for the project was purchased earlier.

Construction is expected to begin at once and is scheduled for completion in August 1981. West Shore Builders has already moved equipment to the site.

Serving with McRae on the Charlevoix Housing Commission are Mrs. Marge Dinwiddie, vice president; Ralph S. Hamilton, secretary; Ralph Shapton, treasurer and Robert J. Cook, director. Irving Sturm has been hired by the commission as 'clerk of the works' or the commission's representative on the project. He is an engineer.

The complex will house 62 apartments, a general meeting room with an adjacent kitchenette, laundry, office and mail room plus living quarters for a resident custodian. Each apartment will have a patio or balcony.

The grounds, which will be completely landscaped, will also include parking facilities for 40 vehicles.

High school athletic tickets to go on sale

Season tickets for all athletic events at the Charlevoix High School will go on sale at the high school office on Aug. 18, Dale Burge, athletic director, has announced.

Ticket prices will remain the same as last season Burge added.

All-Sports student tickets will be $10; All-Sports adult tickets will be $45 each; tickets for football only, $10 and basketball only, $15.

All-Sports family tickets which includes the parents and all children in the K-12 schools will again be $45.

Individual tickets at the gate for both football and basketball will be $2.00 each.

Sheriff's election archaic

By the time most people will be reading this week's Courier, the primary election will be over and one of the five candidates for sheriff of Charlevoix County will have survived what has been a long, hard race

Will he be the most competent, best suited and hardest working choice of the five?

There is no way we will ever really know for sure. The only thing we can say for sure is that whoever wins will have run the best campaign, whether that campaign was based on past record, promises, experience or otherwise

Modern law enforcement, at any level, has become a very technical, sophisticated field. A sheriff must, at different times, wear the hats of a lawyer, a social scientist, an administrator, a public relations expert and a drill sargeant among other things. In short, it is a highly skilled position.

It requires just as much skill as, say, the position of county highway commissioner or social services director

Why can't the position of sheriff be appointed by the county supervisors after an open thorough application and screening process? It does not make sense to relegate the filling of a position involving so much technical skill to the voters who just don't have the expertise to make the best decision for the county

Sheriffs as elected officials follows an archaic tradition. No other branch or level of law enforcement is headed by elected officials. Police chiefs, police commissioners, state patrol captains, even the director of the FBI are all appointed on basis of skill and merit

To select the top law enforcement officer at the county level by any other method is a disservice to the people whose lives, property and safety is at stake

Containment pond a muddy issue

Said Michael, "If it is proven that someone else's experts are smarter than ours, we will make the neccessary corrections."

Drain Commissioner Healey pointed out that the developers would seem to have much to gain by avoiding the establishment of a drainage district. If such action takes place, he said, they may end up paying much more than if they make improvements of their own design

Another possibility, if a district is formed, is that it might extend far beyond the property lines of the apartments and include a substantial portion of that part of town. In that case, the city would have to share the costs with the developer and property owners involved would eventually be assessed.

Knight on the Town

Costly summer

Mention the word "vandalism" in any local barber shop or coffee klatch lately and be ready for a lot of shaking heads and harrowing stories

It's bad this year as witnessed by the police records of the past few weeks Compared to last year at this time, damage reports have doubled. Phone complaints tripled. And we really can't blame the Alice Cooper crowd for those stats; that weekend was relatively quiet

If vandalism was on the stock exchange this summer, its growth chart would be the envy of the board.

Most disturbing are two recent trends toward damage that is costlier and more senseless.

To wit: the giant American flag was stolen again this past weekend from the Kit Carson Lumber Company. No matter that it was tied 20 feet from the ground and the pole greased following previous thefts. The dexterity of the determined vandal knows no bounds.

To wit: a 40-foot section of brick wall along the Michigan Beach was pushed over by some person or persons last Thursday night. Granted it was asking for it, not being extra-reinforced. But it is an expensive lesson for the city to learn that any public property not built to withstand a direct hit by a hydrogen bomb is apt to get trashed.

To wit: glass doors were smashed and tires slashed on school buses belonging to the Charlevoix district recently. Long gone are the days when all school officials had to worry about was an occasional stink bomb in the halls. One of these years, we'll be seeing property damage from vandals as a major line item in the school budget if things keep going as they are.

If you're skimming ahead to see what my answer is to this problem, I'll save you the trouble. I don't have one.

Don't know anyone else who does, either

I have come to a couple of conclusions. One is that we cannot keep blaming "those kids". That is a double fallacy because, first, they are not always kids.

Even if, in the eyes of the law, a 6'1", 200-pound seventeen-year old is considered a "kid", he sure isn't in my book. I'll never forget what a little five-year old girl from Baton Rouge said when I apologized for my six-month old, sixty-pound yellow lab who had just playfully jumped up on her and knocked her down. When I explained that he was just a puppy and didn't know any better, she looked up at me and exclaimed, "That ain't no puppy, that's a DAWG!"

So goes it with many of the termed "juvenile" criminals.

Many of the offenders are young adults with the physical ability to wreak as much havoc as any other adults and who should darn well know better. They should at least be made to bear the same responsibility for their actions as other adults.

Secondly, in referring to "those" kids as the perpetrators, I fear that many would believe that the criminals [illegible] from some outside source or from some other town. Fact is, the names that show up on the police reports, though not publicized, are familiar ones around town.

We have met the enemy and they is us, to repeat a famous quote.

If there is an answer to the senseless acts of vandalism we are seeing with increasing regularity, it lies somewhere in the way people are taught values today. And that involves the home, the schools and the community at large.

Without those three elements working together, any attempt to solve the problem is futile.

First Impressions

Judy and I were going to throw a party for ourselves this past weekend marking the 15th anniversary of our arrival in Charlevoix. Butwe put it off because we still aren't unpacked.

Admittedly, 15 years isn't all that long a time in the grand scheme of the universe, but to the average family it is a sizeable chunk of time.

Judy and I paid our first visit to Charlevoix early in July of 1965 when we heard that Courier Editor Glen Sheppard was moving to Washington as Congressman Raymond Clevenger's press secretary.

We actually had no intention of moving so far from the Detroit area, but a job interview was good chance to spend a summer day in Northern Michigan.

We left Katie, then only 14 months old, with her grandparents in Muskegon and headed north in our little VW bug. We arrived in town on U.S. 31 and the first thing that struck me was how clear the air seemed to be. The windsock at the airport and the water tower downtown appeared to be etched with a sharp chisel against an azure sky.

It was a lovely summer day. Bridge Street was crowded with shoppers and the town was abuzz with activity. Since we were early for the job interview, we drove down to the Lake Michigan Beach where I climbed the hill into the woods to change from my walking shorts into more respectable long trousers.

Then we drove back downtown and parked next to the Carnegie Library. Judy stayed in the car while walked back to the old Courier office on Clinton Street — site of the present County Bank parking lot — to meet business manager Tom McDaniels.

An hour later Judy and I were at DeWitt Peters' Turkey Wing Restaurant (Kaden's Emporium today) to discuss our next move while watching pleasure boats navigating Pine River.

We left the restaurant still undecided, although we were rapidly falling in love with Charlevoix.

Moving north would involve selling our big brick house in Holly — the one we had just redecorated — and saying goodbye to a host of friends in Southern Michigan. Decisions, decisions.

Our next stop was the Town House [illegible] cold beer.

The next thing I knew I was back at the Courier office, telling Tom I'd take the job.

The rest of the afternoon was spent looking for rooms to rent, so I could move up and start looking for a place to buy. But $40 a week was out of my range. Our only alternative was finding a place to buy right off the bat and an old frame relic on E. Dixon struck our fancy.

The late Mrs. Ruth [illegible] Real Estate gave us a guided tour — [illegible] town we had made a down payment on [illegible].

After that everything sort of fell in place. That evening Lucile Cunningham, Ruth's daughter, called us in Muskegon to say the deal on the house was all but closed. The next day we placed our house in Holly up for sale and three days later it was sold.

The following week I moved north and two weeks later Judy, Katie, our little terrier Ginny and her five pups moved in with me.

Fifteen years? It can't be. But Katie is now in high school and her two sisters and brother — all Charlevoix natives — are not far behind. Ginny has lost her hearing but can still spot a grey squirrel at 50 yards.

Fifteen years? If we ever get unpacked, we'll have a real wing-ding [illegible].

Addresses Consumers Power response to letter

To the Editor and the public

Consumers Power Company (C.P.C.) officials Blanchard, Rang, Axtell, and Loomis unwittingly mislead local residents on a number of points in their statement in last week's Courier. We will attempt to help these officials clarify points citing C.P.C. documents.

The "experts" are correct in saying that a spent fuel pool or a reactor could not "blow up like an atomic bomb". However, in the report titled, "An Explosive Reactor Possibility" Jan. 1976, Kevin Shea states that melting fuel dropping into the water could release the equivalent of 19 tons of T.N.T. of energy in a steam explosion. If as little as 20% of the fuel assemblies melt, the resulting force would be the equivalent of 3.8 tons of T.N.T.

On Feb. 26, 1980, in answer to Interrogatories propounded by Crista-Maria, et al, C.P.C. stated, "The Licensee (Consumers Power) has not performed calculations to determine whether spent fuel would melt if water was removed from Big Rock Point spent fuel pool."

Point of issue: Fuel pool meltdown - In correspondence dated April 2, 1980 from C.P.C. to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (N.R.C.) it was stated, "In addition to the reactor core, the spent fuel pool will be evaluated as a source of radioactive material with the potential to be released during an accident."

As Mr. Wills accurately pointed out, research by nuclear authorities Drs. Thompson, Webb, Montaque and Beyea, as well as the German Nuclear Industry has concluded that a spent fuel pool could melt down, the radioactive releases for surpassing even those of a reactor meltdown.

Note also our "expert" stated that a catastrophic accident is "improbable" not impossible.

Our "experts" state, "If it is assumed, for some unknown reason, that the fuel pool could boil, there is so much water in the pool that it would take days to begin boiling." According to N.U.S. Corporation report of June 12, 1979, in the event of loss of off-site power (R.E.A.) the spent fuel pool would boil after 19.6 hours because the spent fuel pool cooling pumps are not on the emergency buss. Sadly our "experts" overlooked these reports.

In Feb. Charlie Axtell worked [illegible] to lower dose rates around the fuel pool after being chastized by the N.R.C. for dose rate seven times higher than "most reacter spent fuel pools. See correspondence dated Dec. 18, 1979 from C.E. Axtell to the N.R.C. It is tragic for area residents that, adding insult to injury, C.P.C. wishes to more than double the capacity of a fuel pool which is already inadequate and in trouble. Our "experts" statement that the pool has never been "10-15 times more radioactive than it is supposed to be", is very, very, very misleading

Plutonium is indeed a deadly product of all nuclear reactors, but not all plants research or experiment with mixed oxide fuels. Only experimental facilities are allowed to do so.

On Sept. 17, 1966, six "experimental fuel rods" enriched with plutonium were under testing, 3 rods failed a 15% of their fuel life. One [illegible] penetration of water due to fatique cracks. Another rod had lost 1/16 of its outer cladding due to corrosion. Melted fuel had reached the cladding surface

The statement that C.P.C. has enriched fuels beyond the legal limits is not false, as our "experts" would like us to believe. See N.U.S. Corporation Jan. 15, 1979 pg 65a where enrichment is said to be "slightly above the legal limit."

Concerning monitoring of the fuel pool water level - once again our "experts" have overlooked the obvious. They state, "Radiation monitors do indeed monitor radiation levels only, since that is their sole design feature" In Feb. 5, 1980 correspondence from C.P.C stated, "There is no instrumentation presently installed in the plant specifically designed to provide direct indication of spent fuel pool water level. Capability to detect a reduction in the water level in the pool is possible by a local constant area monitor and a criticality monitor (both radiation monitors) Indeed the "experts" are correct in stating that radiation monitors "do not monitor" wind direction and speed", but they were mistaken when they added "nor anything else for that matter". C.P.C. depended on radiation monitors to detect fuel pool water level, which is indeed absent.

On the evening of Jan. 25, 1972, Big Rock "experienced" a loss of off-site power due to an ice storm, high winds and several equipment failures. At 1:00 a.m. on Jan. 26, the control room operator observed an increase in the spent fuel pool area monitors off 12 mr/hr. upon visual inspection the spent fuel pool water level had dropped 2-3 feet below normal. The cause was a siphoning action due to the valve and piping alignment. 2-3 feet of water represents 7,800 to 11,700 gallons of water. See also correspondence 3/3/72 [illegible]

In the event of a problem in the reactor, "experts" would be hard pressed to differenciate between radiation from the reactor core, and radiation from loss of fuel pool water level. If remote water level indications have been added since Feb - THANK GOD''

The "experts" say "The N.R.C. estimates that T.M.I. had less than 0.1% of the fuel in the reactor actually melted." This is another misleading statement. Zirconium is a metal used to make fuel rods or cladding. Zirconium, like other metal, loses it's strength when heated, around 1500° F. At around 2,000° F Zirconium reacts with steam or oxidizes. Once oxidized, Zirconium becomes very brittle. At around 3,400° F Zirconium and/or Zirconium oxide begins to melt and can even melt enriched uranium fuel, even though the fuels' normal melting point is 5200° F

The President's commission concluded that the fuel temperature was as high as 4,000°. Nearly all the cladding burst and 44-63% oxidized. As much as 70% of the core slumped and sagged from crumbled, partially melted remains of oxidized cladding and fuel which may have prevented the core from cooling properly. One of the Commission members, Dr. Theodore B. Taylor stated, "Even if only 1% of the fuel dissolved, that's a ton of melted fuel."

The accident of T.M.I. is not over yet and the truth is, it came within 30-60 minutes of melt down

We are impressed that our "experts" are looking at further ways of reducing worker exposure, especially during and after an accident. The "experts" go on to say that "there are also supplementary controls outside the control room to maintain a safe and efficient, operation"... "Safe" and "efficient" are [illegible].

Point 1: From C.P.C. letter to N.R.C. dated March 14, 1980, "Our evaluation indicates that radiation levels will decrease to a level permitting plant ingress/egress approximatley 21 hrs. after a postulated accident which release core fractions, specified in NUREG 0578." (100% noble gases and 25% halogens)

Point 2: If the back-up emergency diesel generator was ever needed "their" evaluation indicates personnel exposure of 16,000 rem, in that area to hook it up to the plants' system. (C.P.C. letter March 14, 1980)

Point 3 Evaluation of the back-up cooling water to the core spray heat exchanger installation has shown that plant personnel exposure of 25,000 rems.

500 rem whole body dose is enough to kill a human being.

And further more, need we bring to your attention once again, that the 3/4" dome is insufficient to contain radiation???

Consumers admits that containment ventilation valves have "occasionally" failed to pass leak rate tests. A more appropriate choice of words would be "constantly." To illustrate this on 5/3/76, 3/21/78, 9/4/78, 2/23/79, and again in 1980 these valves failed leak rate tests. Valve CV4097 leaked on 7/21/76, 1/20/78, 2/1/79, 2/4/79, 2/26/79 and 5/16/80, jeopardizing containment integrity.

In Oct. 79, the N.R.C. requested that all plants operate with containment isolation valves closed during operating conditions. Big Rock cannot adhere to this because if the valves were closed, radiation levels would prohibit plant and maintenance personnel from safely entering the containment building. Big Rock and the N.R.C. have reached some sort of compromise. The plant operates with one valve 65% open and the other valve 45% open, 90% being fully open.

It's too bad the public blindly accepts statements made by spokespersons who work for a public utility company The public assumes that because of the status that goes along with their place of employment, their statement ought to be accurate and credible. When citizens speak out in opposition, their statements have to be backed up with [illegible].

The nuclear power industry has been carrying on a business-as-usual, trust us policy for over 25 years now. In recent years more doctors, electricians, phycisists, and technicians have become more and more aware of the dangers of radiation.

But until more technicians and more importantly, the public speak out, the Nuclear Industrial Complex "enjoys" the benefit of the doubt. Thank you.

Had a great time

To the Editor

Being new to the Charlevoix area, we can't help being overwhelmed by the beauty surrounding us on our visit here. And the people are terrific! We want to commend those who were involved in the organization of all the 50th Venetian Festival activities.

Everything from the parade, amusement rides, and music by the marina park to the fantastic boat parade and fireworks were exceptional.

We and our sons, Scott and Andrew enjoyed ourselves immensely. Hats off, also, to the Charlevoix B.U.F.F.S. Club for an exciting radio-control plane show on Sunday.

The friendliness of the owners of Alray Cottages, John and Mary Mosoryak, and the owners of the Landing Marina and Cottages, Don Behrens and Marge Kimball, were the "icing on the cake."

We take back to our home town many fond memories and will not soon forget the hospitality and the lake of Charlevoix the Beautiful.

Thanks for the memory

Dear Editor:

A heartful Thank You goes to all the residents and businesses on Round Lake for their beautiful "Ring of Light" around the harbor at our 50th Venetian Boat Parade. It was a magnificent sight greatly enjoyed by visitors and residents alike. The efforts creating the "Ring of Light" will long be a pleasant memory.

Again, a sincere "Merci" for all the time and effort goes to those people who created Lake Michigan's "plus belle harbour" in Charelvoix, Michigan.

Laotian réfugee family finds new home here

Meet Charlevoix

By PEG OBLE

Charlevoix has become home for a Laotian refugee family that is being sponsored by the Charlevoix United Methodist Church. The Courier talks with them this week – with the help of the Rev. Austin Regier, Sheryl Thayer, and another young Laotian who tried to act as interpreter.

COURIER: How many people are in the family?

THAYER: Four. There's the husband, Nhia Gao Chang; his wife, Hoa Chang; their four-year-old boy, Blia Chang; and a relative, I think a brother-in-law, ten-year-old Blia Lee. The husband is 35 years old and his wife is 25.

COURIER: How did they get to the United States?

REGIER: Through the help of the Lutheran Immigration and Refugee Service. They spent some time in a refugee camp in Thailand before coming over here. The husband's sister and her family are now living in Petoskey, which is one reason they came here.

COURIER: What did Nhia Gao Chang do in Laos?

INTERPRETER: He says he was a soldier in the Army. He also used to be a farmer. He lived in the mountains. Mountain people are the fighters. They are patriotic. The lowland people left the fighting to them.

COURIER: Are they Christians?

THAYER: No. I understand they are Anamists. They worship nature and don't have any idols. Anamists are easily converted to Christianity.

COURIER: What will Chang do to earn a living?

REGIER: We're trying to get him a job but first he's going to have to learn some English. He'll go to night school in Petoskey to study English. They have a program there for people like Chang.

COURIER: What about the children?

THAYER: We're working on getting the younger child into the cooperative nursery school, and the older one will be going to the elementary school. We're going to register him this week.

COURIER: In the meantime, the Church is supporting the family?

THAYER: Yes, we're paying the rent and buying the food and whatever else they need. We had a foot-long hot dog booth at the Venetian Festival to raise money for them. Many Church members have supplied furniture and other things for the house. The Sidewalk Sales are coming just in time. We'll buy shoes for the family.

COURIER: What do they say they like best about the United States?

INTERPRETER: Chang says, "Everything." He's happy about it – very appreciative. Says, "Thank you".

THAYER: They all thoroughly enjoyed the Venetian Parade. They had hot dogs and learned the word.

COURIER: Do they like other American food?

THAYER: Well, they ate up all the home-canned salmon I took over. They seem to like any kind of fish, and, of course, rice. They like their food well-seasoned, too. When they eat, they put the food in large bowls in the middle of the table aned eat right from the bowls. They don't have individual servings. They're real neat about it.

COURIER: It must have been exciting when they all arrived at the Pellston Airport.

THAYER: It was. Chang's sister and her family were there and we were all crying. They stayed in Petoskey with the sister the first night.

COURIER: How did you find this nice house on Palmer Street for the family?

THAYER: We're renting it from Bob and Shirley Ashton. They're in Florida.

COURIER: What kind of a house did they live in in Laos?

THAYER: Chang showed me pictures of it. It was a good-looking thatched roof house.

COURIER: Do you need any help in caring for the family?

REGIER: Yes, any kind of help would be appreciated. We need more furniture and we'll keep on needing food.

COURIER: I'll can any fish that are brought to me for them. It would be nice, too, if people would put aside a few jars of their canned goods this summer to give to Chang and his family.

COURIER: What about jobs?

REGIER: Yes. If anyone has a job they think Chang can handle, we would appreciate hearing from them. Some of the other refugees in town from Southeast Asia have been good at working in restaurants.

THAYER: We have found that they're not strong enough for construction work.

COURIER: We have't mentioned the wife. What can she do?

THAYER: She seems to be a good seamstress. I showed her how to put together one of my "setting hens" and she did a good job of it

COURIER: Whom should people call to offer help?

REGIER: They can call me at the Church, or Mrs. Thayer, or Ed [illegible]

COURIER: We notice that ten-year-old Blia Lee is wearing a red Coca Cola shirt. He has become Americanized in a hurry!

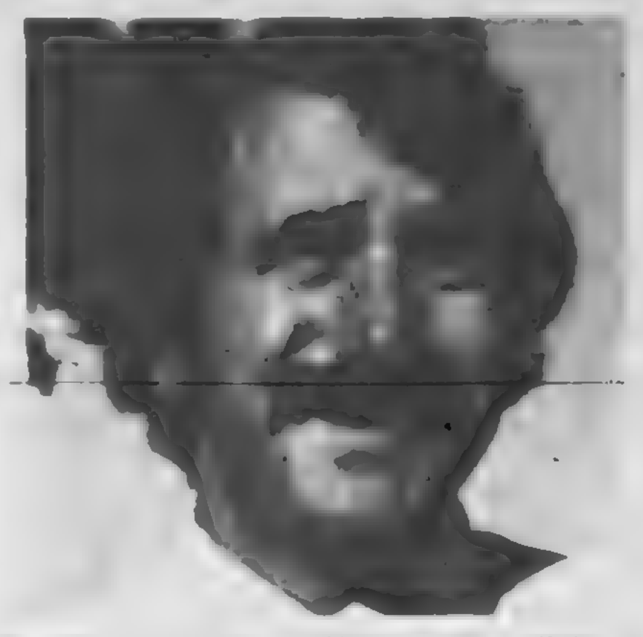
Dr. Engel joins Charlevoix Hospital staff



Dr. Michael Engel, who recently joined Dr. Richard Mansfield at the Boyne Valley Medical Clinic in Boyne City, has also become a staff physician at the Charlevoix Area Hospital, it was announced last week.

Dr. Engel served his internship at the South Bend (Ind.) Osteopathic Hospital and is a graduate of the Kirksville College of Osteopathic Medicine. He holds an undergraduate degree in zoology from Northeast Missouri State University.

Dr. Engel and his wife, Carri, who now live on a small farm near Horton Bay, has a heritage of osteopathic medicine. His father is a D. O. practicing in South Bend, as is his father-in-law, his brother, and an uncle. Dr. Engle's wife's grandfather was also a Doctor of Osteopathic Medicine.

While still in medical school, Dr. Engel spent four months in practice with Dr. Mansfield, so it was natural he should join the Boyne Valley Medical Clinic, the staff of the Charlevoix Area Hospital, and find a home with an orchard and small trout stream.

Dr. Engel's addition to the Charlevoix Area Hospital medical staff brings the permanent staff to 13.

Wedding

Biddick-Hellstrom

Carol Lynn Biddick and Bernard Andrew Hellstrom exchanged their marriage vows recently at a ceremony at the First Congregational Church.

The Rev. Raymond Giffin officiated at the service on July 19 in the presence of their immediate families and close friends. Arrangements of white gladioli and blue carnations formed a setting for the ceremony. Miss Elizabeth Humphrey, at the organ, played a program of traditional music by Mendelssohn and Wagner's "Lohengrin".

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Clifford R. Biddick of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. Lennert H. Hellstrom of Grosse Pointe Woods.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. For her wedding she designed and made her gown of Windsong and lace. Fashioned with a fitted bodice of lace over Windsong, fitted lace sleeves and sweetheart neckline, the gown featured an A-line skirt with a chiffon overlay and brush train. Her headdress and fingertip veil of tulle was made by her mother. She carried a bridal bouquet of white daisies, blue forget-me-nots and baby's breath.

Ann O'Connell of Kansas City, Mo., attended as maid of honor and her sister, Anne Biddick, as bridesmaid. They wore gowns of sky blue Windsong, made by each on variations of the bride's gown. Their bouquets were of blue and white daisies.

Gary Sassin of Cadillac assisted the bridegroom as best man. Thomas Hellstrom, of Grosse Pointe Woods was his brother's groomsman.

A garden reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the service.

After a camping wedding trip in the area, the couple is at home at [illegible] Petoskey Avenue.

The bride is a recent graduate of Lutheran Medical Center in St. Louis, Mo., and a registered nurse at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. The bridegroom is employed as an electrician at Davis Electric Company in Traverse City.

A rehearsal dinner at the Weathervane Inn Friday evening was hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

Family seminar Set

The Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service is sponsoring a Family Communications and Family Finance Seminar, Thursday, August 21 in Whiting Park, Community Building, Ironton Ferry Road, Boyne City. The seminar is designed to help professionals and others who counsel families in interpersonal relationships and family budgeting. The focus is on identifying resources and developing skills to help the counselor work with individuals and family groups.

Jeanne Brown, MSU Child Development and Family Relationship specialist, will discuss ways the counselor can help families identify the destructive forces which cause them pain and how to develop constructive ways to deal with the problem situation.

A panel of community resource people will talk about where the community resources are and who can help. The seminar begins at 9:30 a.m. with registration and coffee. A sandwich smorgasbord lunch will be served at noon. For more information and registration, call Marlene Caszatt, Extension Home Economist at 582-6232 or 533-8607, Ext. 31.

Brodin-Erickson

Dawn Lynn Brodin and Dennis Bruce Erickson were united in marriage on Saturday evening, June 28, in the garden of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Gennett on Loeb School Rd.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Brodin, Jr. of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ole Erickson of Boyne City.

The Rev. Don Erickson, brother of the bridegroom, performed the ceremony before approximately 60 guests.

Ginger Stevens served as maid of honor and Gayle Kaczynski was bridesmaid. Gene Morrison served as best man, Jeff Brodin, brother of the bride, was groomsman and Dave Olach and Billy Brodin, another brother of the bride, seated the guests.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a long satin gown fashioned with a train, a ruffle around the front bodice, and lace on the front and back bodice and down the front. Her veil was of matching lace. She carried a bouquet of painted and white daisies and baby's breath.

The maid of honor wore a long blue gown of Qiana with a matching cover-up, while the bridesmaid wore a rose pink gown of the same material with matching cover-up. They both carried bouquets similar to that of the bride, but smaller.

The bridegroom's attendants wore blue tuxedoes with navy velvet lapels.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held for approximately 300 guests.

As a matter of fact, souvenir shops on the islands mount it in inexpensive settings and sell it to tourists. In many cases the stones are correctly sold as olivine (peridot), but occasionally they're marketed as "Hawaiian diamonds." This is very misleading, but the misnomer may have sprung up quite innocently. As an American Gem Society jeweler I'm particularly sensitive to such misleading terms, because the members of our organization all strive to keep the public aware and well informed. [illegible]

Peridot is not easy to mine if it is firmly embedded in the basalt (particular type of hardened lava), because of the hardness of this host rock. Only when fissures are present in the basalt or weathering has weakened it, can the peridot be [illegible]

In the case of the Hawaiian Islands, most of the gems are found on the beaches. The coarse black sand is actually eroded basalt.

Peridot of finer quality is found in ancient deposits, the remnants of age-old volcanic eruptions. St. John's Island in the Red Sea has long been the source of the finest peridot. Today much is also mined in Burma.

Some gem quality peridot is found in North America, but seldom in large sizes. It is usually found in dark, volcanic rocks. I'll go into this in my next article.

Near mishap fails to deter winning boat in North American 40 races

Courier Coverage
by TOM DAMMANN

Despite a near tragedy when a crewman [illegible] overboard while rounding the last marker in the second race, SENSATION, owned and skippered by Steve Perry, Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, held on to win the North American 40 Championship Sunday off Charlevoix.

The crewman, David Holmes, 20, whom Perry described as unusually able, was knocked unconscious when his head hit the side of the boat. Holmes doesn't remember how the accident happened.

According to fellow crewmen, he was reaching for the belly line of the spinnaker which was being hauled in when his foot slipped on the sail and he toppled overboard.

Life preservers and life saving flags were thrown to the young man but because he was obviously unconscious and unable to swim, Fred Detwiler, 20, a veteran Detroit sailor, dove overboard and grabbed his stricken shipmate.

Perry executed a quick turn, picked up the two crewmen and went on to cross the finish line second, right behind Mike Roth's MICJAY, of the Great Lakes Yacht Club, Detroit.

SENSATION had been leading the fleet until the accident happened.

Perry attributes the quick and successful rescue of Holmes to life saving drills.

The regatta was the third national championships held off Charlevoix since the birth of the elegant 40 foot offshore racing-cruising sloop class.

Twenty-four boats participated in three Olympic course races in Lake Michigan August 2 and 3.

COMPROMISE, owned by Maynard Rupp and Noel Mermer, Curt Lundy and Kennie Smith, of Crescent Sail Yacht Club, took second place. LEADING EDGE, sailed by Eugene Mondry, Bay View Yacht Club was third and MICJAY was fourth.

COMPROMISE also won the Great Lakes Barthel Trophy, given to the boat whose best standing in either the Chicago or Port Huron to Mackinac races combined with the three Charlevoix races add up to the best score. COMPROMISE placed second in the NA 40 division of the Chicago to Mackinac race held the previous weekend.

SENSATION and LEADING EDGE were second and third respectively.

Light to moderate west to northwest winds under clear blue skies prevailed during the two day regatta which was run under the direction of Lynn Steadman, Detroit sailor and former United States Yacht Racing Union Commodore, pinch hitting for [illegible], President of the North American 40 Offshore One Design Association who was unable to attend.

The Charlevoix All-Stars advanced to the finals in the Major League division of the Little League at Gaylord Saturday before bowing to a strong Alpena team 3-2.

In the finals, Charlevoix, with Jody Putman on the mound, scored one run in the bottom of the first on a bunt single by S.J. Greenway who then stole second and advanced to third on an error before scoring on a passed ball.

Charlevoix scored again in the third when Jim Ciuk, who was on first as the result of a walk, came home on a single by Greenway.

Alpena scored in the third, fourth and sixth inning to take the game and the chance to advance to the sectional tourney.

Mark Casbitt, the winning pitcher, struck out 15 Charlevoix players. Casbitt, Tony Konarszewski, Kurt Theum and Dennis Keller had singles for the victors.

Jaycees bid for girls fast pitch title

The Charlevoix JayCees made a strong bid for the state title in the Girls Youth (13-15) Softball (fast pitch) tournament at Saginaw recently.

The team, coached by Ike Boss, played a total of six games in the double elimination tournament before falling to Chelsea 11-9 after leading the favorites 9-5 going into the bottom of the sixth inning.

In their first game of the tournament, the Charlevoix team opened with a 14-3 win over Midland Northwood as Rhonda Buchanan hurled a three hitter. Buchanan and Colleen LaBlance had two hits, Holly Taber doubled with Bridget Noirot, Kim Bolduc and Linda Ciuk adding singles.

In their second game, the JayCees posted a 6-4 win over Campers' Cove of Alpena. Buchanan was again the winning pitcher with added player, Lori Hofbauer, of Alanson hitting a three-run home. Bolduc, Meg Fowler, LaBlance and Ciuk accounted for singles.

In the third game which went six innings, Buchanan pitched a 19-0 win over Gus Sports of Midland. Cindy Graham was the losing pitcher. Hofbauer came through with two singles and a triple, Noirot four singles, Bolduc two and Buchanan, added player Monica Malec of Petoskey, Holly Taber and Fowler one single each.

In the battle of unbeatens, Charlevoix bowed to Chelsea 15-3 getting only three hits in the game. Hofbauer had two and the losing pitcher, Buchanan, one.

Charlevoix then went into the losers' bracket where they defeated Midland Northwood 18-8 with Malec and Buchanan handling the pitching duties. Hofbauer had two home runs, bringing in three runs in the first and two in the second. Noirot had two singles and Buchanan, Bolduc, Malec and Ciuk one each.

As the JayCees went into the finals, they led Chelsea through most of the game before losing 11-9 as their opponents scored six runs in the sixth inning. Malec, Taber and Buchanan were on the mound for Charlevoix. Chelsea with four hits capitalized on walks to account for the victory.

First lay principal enjoying her new position

When Barb Rakowski was named principal at the Beaver Island Community School — just over a year ago— it represented a break from tradition.

"I'm the first lay principal in — I believe — about 90 years," Barb told the Courier in a recent interview.

For years, Sisters from the Dominican Order held that responsibility. But when Sister Dennis Marie Kirt left for Traverse City St. Francis, the school board elected to fill the vacancy with someone from outside the Order.

"There were two or three of us who applied for the job," Barb recalled. "But I was the only one who would get on the boat to come over — at least that's what I've been told.

"I must have done a good job," she added, laughing, "they've hired me back."

Before moving to Beaver Island, Barb taught biology eight years at Saginaw St. Peter & Paul. Ironically, Sister Dennis was at St. Peter & Paul at that time, too.

Barb was no stranger to the Island when she was hired as principal. As a student at Central Michigan University — where she earned bachelor of science and master of science degrees — Barb took several classes at the university's Biological Station (on the Island). She also brought her botany class at St. Peter & Paul to the Island every spring.

Barb describes herself as a "workoholic" and "perfectionist." She likes taking on new adventures and challenges. And although being principal is a "full-time job" Barb likes to be in the classroom working with students. She finds time to teach typing, art, accounting, science, German and, yes, automotive fundamentals.

In addition to Barb, staff (teachers) members include Sister Marie Eugene Charboneau, who teaches K-4; Mary Ann Omer, who teaches grades 5-8; Joseph Moore, who teaches at the secondary level; Kitty McNamara, who teaches at the secondary level; and Jacqueline VanHolder, who also teaches at the secondary level. Joan Delamater is a part-time sewing aide.

The school offers a "solid" basic education, emphasizing writing, phonetics, spelling, reading, English, math, science, music, social studies, art, physical education and — at the secondary level — government, business and history.

High school students can earn ½ credit as a teacher's aide at the elementary level. Oftentimes, the aides are able to give the elementary students personal one-on-one attention.

Beaver Island has an enrollment of approximately 75 students — 50 in the primary level and 25 in the secondary level. Of the 10 who graduated this past school year, two received scholarships to college. Most will go on to college.

The school offers drivers education every other year. Vern Vance, a summer resident from Lansing, teaches the course.

AN ECLIPSE REVEALS GOD'S WONDERS BY HIDING THEM

Before this month is over we will be treated to a celestial double feature, if we happen to live in the right places or are able to travel to them, for there will be partial eclipses of both the sun [illegible] moon about two weeks apart. Besides being a spectacular sight [illegible] is no more dramatic reminder of the miracle of divine creation than the recurring alignment of these heavenly bodies, for it draws our attention to the mechanical processes of the world we live in, as well as our God given ability not only to understand these events but to forecast them to the minute. The new sound of KHQ

KHQ, "KHQ will be very contemporary," a station promotional brochure quotes Harper as saying, "but way beyond that we'll create a 'real people' feel to the station. Like other highly successful 18 to 34, 18 to 49 stations such as KVIL Dallas, WMJC Detroit, KFRC San Francisco and WKBW Buffalo, KHQ will create a high comfort factor through its non-musical elements, so that anytime, whatever the mood of the listener, he or she can find 'their best friend' at 106 KHQ."

Tim Moore emphasizes that "hometown" feeling. "KHQ is locally oriented in that we want to become a good friend of our listeners. But we treat the station with the same high standards and professionalism as if we were in L.A."

It seems that to follow a life-long career dream, that Tim Moore needed only to return to Charlevoix. Not feeling that his career would have been complete without trying his hand at the management of his own business, Moore left a very satisfying position at T.M. productions, the Disney-owned, largest broadcast programming and production company in the country.

He served there quite prominently as Executive Vice-President and General Manager. Arriving back on the Charlevoix music scene to renew a limping WVOY (where he had once been a member of the staff), Moore and his associates decided to utilize a successful T.M. Productions AM format of easy listening for WVOY under the guise of an appropriate "Beautiful Island" [redacted]

But while WVOY is the adopted child, an old friend converted to easy listening, KHQ is the FM brainchild of Moore's dream. Perhaps his "Rhythm of the Northwest," the song written by Jim Kirk with lyrics adapted by Moore to showcase his station, tells the success story better than any promotional or journalistic [redacted].

The song is catching on in popularity in its own right, with about 5000 copies pressed for local sale. "Rhythm of the Northwest" is the quintessence of the song as well as the station.

KHQ may very well, as was prophesied by an earlier release, turn out to be "the FM station of the 80's."

Lasater outpolls all opponents combined

The hardest fought battle for Sheriff of Charlevoix County conducted in recent years ended at the polls last Tuesday with the re-nomination of Republican George T. Lasater.

Since there is no candidate on the Democrat side, Lasater will not face opposition in November.

During the campaign, Lasater's four Republican opponents had variously charged him with inefficiency, bad judgement, waste of taxpayers' money, and lending a deaf ear to citizen complaints, among other things.

The voters thought otherwise. Approximately 58 percent of those voting for Sheriff voted for Lasater. He received 1,892 votes, compared with 557 for Wallace G. Brown, 342 for Leonard H. Fuller, 298 for James D. McCallum, and 149 for Wayne D. Chapman.

Voters in surrounding precincts cast their ballots as follows:

City of Charlevoix: Brown, 143; Chapman, 20; Fuller, 154; Lasater, 338; McCallum, [illegible].

Charlevoix Township: Brown, 56, Chapman, seven; Fuller, 51; Lasater, [illegible]; McCallum, [illegible].

Marion Township: Brown, 38; Chapman, three; Fuller, 40; Lasater, [illegible]; McCallum, [illegible].

Norwood Township: Brown 24; Chapman, two; Fuller, nine; Lasater, 40; McCallum, 16.

Peaine Township: Brown, 44, Chapman, 32; Fuller, nine; Lasater, [illegible]; McCallum, two.

St. James Township: Brown, 13, Chapman, 37; Fuller, none; Lasater, seven; McCallum, one.

Hayes Township: Brown, 42, Chapman, six; Fuller, 21; Lasater, 50; McCallum, [illegible].

Bay Township: Brown, 20, Chapman, three; Fuller, five; Lasater, [illegible]; McCallum, eight.

Eveline Township: Brown, 52, Chapman, two; Fuller, 18; Lasater, 116, McCallum, [illegible].

Wilson Township: Brown, seven; Chapman, nine; Fuller, three; Lasater, [illegible]; McCallum, four.

South Arm Township: Brown, 35; Chapman, nine; Fuller, nine; Lasater, [illegible]; McCallum, [illegible].

There were two other contests for county offices. In the race for County Surveyor, incumbent Mary C. Feindt defeated challenger Arthur A. Rangen, 1,548 to 1,079. In the race for Register of Deeds, incumbent Stephen K. Pond defeated challenger Richard H. [illegible].

The rest of the county office incumbents — Prosecuting Attorney Scott T. Beatty, Clerk Jane E. Brannon, Treasurer Anah H. Potter, and Drain Commissioner Clayton Healey — all Republicans, had no competition in the Primaries. However, Mrs. Brannon will face Democrat Thure E. Erickson in November.

In the non-partisan contest for councilman of Charlevoix Third Ward, incumbent Shirley Roloff garnered [illegible] votes to [illegible] for John A. Yaroch and [illegible] for David P. Reinhart. This was the only city contest. Roloff will now face Yaroch in a runoff election in November.

However, there were several contests in the outlying townships. In Marion Township, Supervisor Robert Potter, who has held the job since 1968, was defeated by Michael Bonar, 80 to 53. Also in Marion Township, there was a three-man race for the two trustee jobs.

Incumbent Ed Mann garnered the largest number of votes – 117 – followed by Dawson Way with 64 and Rolland R. [illegible].

Four incumbents survived challenges in Charlevoix Township. Clerk Jo-Ann Elzinga won over Sheilah Brady Bogart, 104 to 74; Treasurer Rose [illegible] won over Ronald W. Teeple, 88 to 40; Trustee Donald R. Smith received [illegible] votes and Trustee H. Dale Glass received 128 votes over Dale Boss, Sr., who received [illegible] votes.

In Norwood Township, Richard A. Fochtman won the nomination for supervisor to succeed Evelyn Farrell, who was not a candidate; David W. Parsons defeated incumbent clerk Nancy L. Ritsema, 51 to 40; Ruth Ann Campbell, incumbent treasurer, defeated Helen M. Buckler, 64 to 22; and William R. Carey, with 22 votes, and Nancy L. Lord, with 38 votes, won the nomination for trustee over Ellen S. Joyce, with 33 votes, and George A. Tompkins, with 31 votes.

The contest for trustees in Bay Township resulted in the nomination of William H. Ohle, with 65 votes, and [illegible].

A similar contest in South Arm Township resulted in the nomination of [illegible] and Robert J. Walker, with 85 votes, over Thomas H. Wiltjer, with 63 votes.

Firemen battle the fire at the James Potter farm.

Potter barn destroyed by fire

Eighteen head of cattle, a dog and a horse were among the losses to the James Potter family last Tuesday, August 5, when their barn on Phelps Road south of Charlevoix was completely destroyed by flames.

James Potter received second degree burns on his arms and hands as he fought to keep the flames from spreading to his home a few feet from the barn. Potter was treated at the Charlevoix Area Hospital and is now resting at home.

Firemen from Charlevoix, and Marion and Eveline Townships fought the blaze which was reported shortly after 3 p.m. Tuesday.

About 1,200 bales of hay were lost in the fire which totally destroyed the recently rebuilt barn. Twenty-four [illegible].

Although either spontaneous combustion in the baled hay or faulty wiring is suspected, no definite cause for the fire has been determined.

There has also been no estimated figure as to monetary loss from the fire.

Construction starts on elderly housing project

Charlevoix's long awaited elderly housing project finally passed from the realm of the planners and designers to that of the builders last week.

Ground was broken Wednesday, August 6 for the $3 million complex that will provide 62 apartment units at low cost to elderly tenants of the community. As of last week more than twice that number had expressed interest in moving in but formal applications have not yet been processed.

Construction of the building had actually begun even before the groundbreaking with [illegible] working on site preparation of the plot located just behind the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

West Shore Builders of Ludington, the general contractor for the building, has one year to finish the project and will be penalized if it is not completed on schedule.

Groundbreaking ceremonies last Wednesday were complete with gold shovels for the officials doing the honors and a television news crew from Traverse City. Master of ceremonies Ralph McRae, chairman of the Charlevoix Housing Commission, introduced several speakers involved in some phase of the project.

Included on the program were the other members of the Housing Commission, Mayor Sam Supernaw, representatives of the architect, Daverman Associates and the contractor and representatives of area senior citizen organizations. Also present was Rep. Robert Davis. Sen. Donald Riegle had been invited to the ceremonies but was unable to attend due to prior commitments.

Members of the city council and several other local officials and interested people watched as the Housing Commission members, the mayor and Rep. Davis turned the ceremonial first shovels of dirt. The groundbreaking culminated over six years of planning for the project which will be built and subsidized by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Renters in the elderly housing project will pay an average of $78 a month which will include utilities.

The Milly Ann of Grand Rapids recently found itself in an embarrassing and potentially dangerous position as it ventured too close to the Pine River bridge in downtown Charlevoix and was pinned against the span by a swift current before it could maneuver out. Several volunteers on shore and two power boats were enlisted to help tow the immobilized sailboat away from the bridge. The only visible damage to the Milly Ann was some tangled rigging which became fouled in the bridge railings when the masts made contact. The incident occurred before a large crowd of downtown shoppers taking advantage of the Sidewalk Sale. (Photo by George Duke)

I would like to thank all the people that supported my campaign and voted for me on August 5th.

LET A "PRO" SELL IT

Selling your home yourself is no easy undertaking. Basically it means attracting the right prospects - people who are ready, willing, and financially able to buy. Not those who are curious to see what your furniture looks like from the inside.

You can attempt to make this sale yourself or you can have someone else handle the difficult negotiations. Frankly, the best way to market your home - probably your most valuable asset - is the professional way. Just as you would go to a doctor or a lawyer for medical or legal aid, you will want to go to a Realtor for assistance in selling your home.

His technical skill, business experience, list of bone fide prospects, contacts with financial institutions, and professional reputation are all at your disposal to expedite the sale of your home at the best possible price. Paddock dead at 88

Captain Hubert E. Paddock, 88, U.S.N. Ret., a veteran of 31 years of active duty with the U.S. Navy, died Sunday at the Grandvue Medical Care Facility where he had been a patient for two weeks. He had been hospitalized since July 5 when he suffered a cerebral hemorrage.

Funeral services were held at the First Congregational Church at 2 p.m. Thursday, August 7 with Rev. Raymond Griffin officiating. Burial was in Brookside Cemetery.

Capt. Paddock was a veteran of both World Wars after his commissioning in the Navy in 1915 following his graduation from the U.S. Naval Academy. Among his first assignments was duty aboard the USS Dyer during World War I and in the Caribbean where the Navy came to the assistance of sugar plantation owners in Cuba.

Later he served aboard the USS West Virginia, a battleship; USS Pensacola, a heavy cruiser; and, in 1937, commissioned the destroyer USS Lamson. On December 6, 1941 he was stationed at Pearl Harbor as commanding officer of the USS Dobbin, a tender, the flagship of a fotilla of destroyers. The flotilla suffered comparitively little damage in the attack on the U.S. Naval Base and, within a few days, the flotilla was dispatched to Australia.

During the war he returned to the west coast to activate Fort Hueneme, the home base of the Sea Bees, and to serve as its first commandant. He returned to sea duty as commanding officer of a flotilla of landing craft in preparation for the invasion of Japan when the war ended in August, 1945. He retired the following year and returned to Charlevoix.

He was a member of the First Congregational Church, a member and past president of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club, World War I Barracks No. 2710, State Vice Commander of the Retreads, an organization of vetrans of World Wars I and II, Charlevoix Justice of the Peace and Charlevoix County Veterans Administrator.

Born in Charlevoix on April 9, 1892, to one of the community's early families, Capt. Paddock graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1910. He attended Ferris Institute, now Ferris State College, for one year before receiving an appointment to the U.S. Naval Academy.

After his retirement he married the former Mildred Smith who preceded him in death December 23, 1977.

He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Hugh (Mildred) Richards of Madison, Wisconsin, Mrs. Rudy (Virginia) Scharschmidt of Battle Creek and Mrs. Roger (Cynthia) Postmus of Ann Arbor; two sons, Vane H. Smith of Charlevoix and Douglas G. Smith of Garden, Mi.; 12 grandchildren, two great-grandchildren and two brothers, Richard Paddock of [illegible], Illinois, and William Paddock of Pauma Valley, California.

The family requests any memorials to be given to the First Congregational Church.

Progress report on the new transit system buses

By [illegible]

The Charlevoix County Transit System is off to a good start, but it needs many more riders to keep the big green buses rolling [illegible].

The system started regular runs on July 22, and the seven buses have been carrying approximately 145 passengers a day, according to Art Saworski, director of the system. This includes 26 clients of the Bergmann Center who are picked up and returned home each day by Transit System buses. The System uses two buses morning and evening to handle Bergmann Center [illegible].

When the System was approved by the State Department of Transportation last fall, it was projected that during the first month of operation, the buses would operate at 40 percent capacity, carrying 3,150 passengers.

That averages out to 105 riders a day, compared with the 145 reported to date by Saworski.

However, business was slow in Charlevoix last Wednesday afternoon when this reporter took a bus ride with veteran driver Gene Beer.

Beer picked us up at The Market Mall, where Courier headquarters are located, and we drove to the Sheriff's Building on Garfield and Grant Streets. This is where the buses are parked between scheduled runs.

We waited approximately half an hour before departing for the Charlevoix High School, where we picked up four senior citizens who had participated in the Commission on Aging lunch program. Beer drove along the sidewalk and right up to the side door of the school, where the four were waiting.

We headed south along US-31 to the home of Melva Stack, who is a regular bus rider. Mrs. Stack, a widow, goes to the high school three days a week for lunch and also uses the bus for grocery shopping and going to the laundromat, beauty shop, bank, and for whatever errands she needs to run.

"I don't have a car of my own any more," she explained. "It costs too much money to run them."

Mrs. Stack is efficient with bus time, too. While she was having lunch, her groceries, which she had bought on her way from home to the high school, remained in the bus, ready to be taken home later. Beer helped her take the bags of groceries out of the bus and placed them on her back stoop. He had driven right up to her back door.

We turned toward town again and delivered Norma Metzger to her home on East Upright Street. Mrs. Metzger is also a regular bus rider although the family does have a car. "My husband drives it but I can't", she said.

The Transit System is a real boon to Arlene Spencer, who is blind and lives on Shrigley Road with her son and daughter-in-law, Gary and Carla Spencer. Mrs. Spencer is also a widow and a regular attendee at the Commission on Aging lunches.

The lone man passenger on the bus trip was Joe Serno, who lives in an adult foster care home on Bay Shore and Maple Grove Roads in Hayes Township. Although there are several senior citizens in the home, Serno is the only one who goes to the Commission on Aging lunches regularly. Since he does not own an automobile, the bus is his only means of transportation.

After delivering Serno to his home, Beer headed his bus toward Charlevoix, with only this reporter as a passenger. On the way back, Beer mentioned that in approximately half an hour he would pick up a young employee of the Charlevoix Area Hospital who goes to work at three o'clock, and that after that his next run would be to the Bergmann Center at four o'clock to pick up the 12 Bergmann clients who ride his bus.

It was time for me to return to the office. I had been with the bus driver for about an hour and 45 minutes and we had picked up only four passengers and delivered them to their homes. Of course, the next hour and 45 minutes would have been much [illegible].

As a long time rider of city buses, we were impressed with the courtesy Beer displayed toward his passengers and the care with which he handled the shiny new bus. He is not an ordinary driver. He was the first driver hired by the Commission on Aging five and a half years ago. He likes his work and is proud that he is well acquainted with most of the people he drives, especially the [illegible].

What remains now is for enough people in Charlevoix County to change their transportation habits to take advantage of bus transportation. In many instances, it will be possible to set up commuter runs to take people to and from their jobs. In most instances, it will be possible to provide intra-city and inter-city rides for everyday and emergency trips. Three of the buses are equipped with lifts for wheelchair riders.

The fares are reasonable: 40 cents for a one-way trip within the city limits and no more than two miles from the point of pickup; 70 cents for a ride of more than two miles within the county; and $1.50 for trips outside the county. Handicapped persons, senior citizens, and children under 12 ride for half fare.

The major portion of the Transit System's operating funds come from the State Department of Transportation and are derived from gasoline taxes which were increased considerably a few years back in order to set up public transportation systems.

Further information about the Charlevoix County Transit System may be obtained by calling 582-6900.

Seek kindergarten health records

With school scheduled to open Sept. 3, health records of children registered for kindergarten last spring should be returned to the school nurse on Wednesday, Aug. 20, Ralph Raymer, Charlevoix Elementary School principal, has announced.

In making the announcement, Raymer advised that state law requires that each child's immunization record be filed with the school by the day school opens or the child will not be allowed to enter school.

Mrs. Gerry Brady, school nurse, will be present to collect the immunization records and will issue health entry permits which are to be presented to the kindergarten teachers on the first day of school.

Children in the school district or those who might have moved into the district in recent months who have not been registered for kindergarten may be registered on Aug. 20. Birth certificates and health records must be presented at the time of registration. The kindergarten teachers, Mrs. Kay Smith and Miss Diane Boss, will be present to enroll the new students. Children must be five years of age by Sept. 1 to be enrolled in kindergarten.

Any child, regardless of the grade level, who will be entering the Charlevoix Elementary School for the first time may also be registered on Aug. 20, Raymer said.

The elementary school is located on Division Ave. and will be open from 9 a.m. until 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. for the convenience of parents.

The Charlevoix Jaycees presented a check for $200 to Bergman Center director Ken Brill last week. The money represents the Charlevoix Club's share of the local Jaycee districts' support, of the Special Olympics program. On hand for the presentation were from left, Lyle Gennett, vice president, Brill, Dan Alder, treasurer and Mike Greeley, secretary. Not present was Don Miller, president

Lake Charlevoix: more to be done

The following is a written report on the progress and goals of the Lake Charlevoix Property Owners Assn. It was presented by President Dick Sharer at the associates annual meeting last week.

In the past, Lake Charlevoix (or Pine Lake) was used and abused to the point where its water quality was often significantly damaged. This was mainly the result of industrial and municipal discharge of sewage, organic and toxic wastes. Within recent years, public awareness and government controls have greatly reduced these threats to the lake environment.

Today the lake is generally a high quality body of water. Measurement of its clarity, the amount of aquatic growth and dissolved oxygen content, all give it a high ranking; the main body is considered oligothopic, while the South Arm meets the criteria for mesotropic, which means lesser clarity, warmer waters and more aquatic plant growth.

Those who enjoy Lake Charlevoix realize how outstanding it is. However, no matter how high its present quality is, it faces numerous threats that can lead to its degradation and loss of enjoyment.

The natural and cultural characteristics of its watershed determine its quality. The natural we cannot do much about, but the cultural influences need to be carefully monitored.

Many long-time residents are certain of a loss of quality over the years. The Association and individuals should not be complacent about our high water quality. It is not assured that it will always be there. There is much room for further development around the lake resulting in increased pressure on the lake.

The Lake Charlevoix Property Owners Association has continued this year to take actions to improve the water quality and influence the cultural activities of the watershed. These actions include: the weekly Secchi Disc monitoring of water quality/clarity as part of the Inland Lake Self help program; the joining of the Tip of the Mit Watershed Council (an organization of all northern lake associations); continuing contact with the Northwest Regional Planning and Development Commission; continuing membership in the Michigan Lakes and Streams Association; keeping track of waterway permit applications; [illegible] a shoreline survey for possible nutrient sources, and identifying all lakeside property owners.

Our biggest (at least financially) effort is the continuing struggle with the Department of Natural Resources discharge permit for the National Fish Hatchery on the Jordan River. This effort is time and money consuming, but if we can force a change, the South Arm will receive significantly less nutrient pollution.

We believe that these actions directly help the lake environment. However, as with all programs there is still much to be done. These actions include studies to see if acid rain has any effect on Lake Charlevoix. Study and plan alternatives to the contaminated runoff from streets and parking spaces during rains and snow removal. Determine if increasing boat traffic is increasing as a problem. Educate and encourage property owners in developing greenbelt areas. Determine if particulate pollution from nearby industries is decreasing the clarity of the lake.

Most of all, the Association needs to become stronger. We need to increase our membership. We presently have less than one quarter of those that are eligible as regular members and have not really even tried to recruit possible [illegible] members.

The more members, the more we can do for the lake. Another major change that would greatly increase our effectiveness has been recommended by several past Presidents; a paid Directors position.

Knight on the Town

A form too far

Anyone who has moved to Michigan from another state knows that part of the initiation rite involves a pilgrimage to the Shrine of the Secretary of State to be tested, photographed, registered, licensed and fleeced.

This is not to say that Michigan has any more bureaucratic ritual than other states but what I thought unique was the way everything was consolidated in one office.

I found out last week.

The lady behind the counter was polite and crisply efficient. With one flowing sweep of her arm across the back of the counter she produced a ballpoint pen and a handful of forms which she fanned out before me like a stud poker hand.

She patiently explained the driver's license application with mechanical precision. I noticed that as her pen point went from line to line, she did not even have to look down.

She's done this before, I thought.

Next came the driver's test. Forty questions. Piece of cake for a veteran motorist of over 13 years. Thinking back to my first driver's test, I chuckled to myself as I remembered the nervous trauma of that experience. How silly it was to go through such agony when, in the end, I got all the right answers anyway. After all, most of the questions just take a little common sense, right?

I was still smiling when I confidently handed my test sheet back to the lady behind the counter. The smile faded as her red pen flew from wrong answer to wrong answer. Soon my exam looked like I had the measles.

I passed but not by much.

Following in quick succession were then the eye test, license photo, car registration, voter registration, etc. The lady and I got the routine down pretty smoothly. She'd whip out a form, I'd sign it, she'd file it and whip out another. I didn't even read most of them. For all I know, I may have signed up for a ten-year hitch as traffic cop on Beaver Island.

Just when I figured I had covered everything and was ready to walk out the door, the lady said, "Wait. You still have to do your SLFs"

SLFs?

"State Loyalty Forms," she explained and pulled out another sheaf of triplicated documents.

"Just read them and sign," she said, "They are all self explanatory."

I took the top sheet and read, "I, the undersigned, pledge to own a late model American-made automobile sometime in my adult life and further pledge to think seriously about buying one soon."

Hmmmmmm.

I signed.

Next form: "I, the undersigned, pledge never to enroll any male offspring exceeding 6'2" in height and 220 pounds in weight to either Notre Dame University or Ohio State University. Those falling well below these requirements are encouraged to attend the aforementioned institutions."

Well, okay. I signed.

Another form read: "I, the undersigned, pledge to consume a reasonable amount of either cherries, blueberries, peaches, pears or apples for every box of Ding-Dongs purchased."

Sounds good. I signed.

The last one read: "I, the undersigned, pledge my undying loyalty and enthusiastic support to the Tigers, Red Wings, Lions, Express and Pistons."

"I'm sorry," I said to the lady behind the counter and handed back my pen.

[illegible]

Come on, now.

'Crooked Tree'

Many Northern Michiganders have been having fun this summer with the novel "Crooked Tree" by Robert C. Wilson. But it is not recommended for the faint hearted.

As the title implies, "Crooked Tree" is laid in Northern Michigan and part of the novel's appeal lies in trying to match Wilson's place names with their real life counterparts.

There is no trouble, of course, with Mackinaw City, Petoskey, Empire and Sleeping Bear Dune. But where are "Crooked Tree State Forest" and the little town of "Wabanakisi" where most of the action takes place?

Many readers agree that the forest probably was patterned after Wilderness State Park in northern Emmet County. The town of "Wabanakisi" bears a striking resemblance to Charlevoix. Listen:

"Lake Michigan and Muhquh Sebing (Lake Charlevoix?) were connected by a narrow canal that cut through Main Street at the north end of the business district. Main Street spanned the canal by means of a drawbridge, which had to be raised for the mast of any sailboat in the twenty-two-foot class or larger. At this time of the year, with the cottages along Lake Muhquh Sebing filled with their Detroit or Chicago owners, the little drawbridge seemed to be up as much as it was down."

Of course, Cheboygan has a drawbridge and Alanson has a swinging bridge, but neither is located on the shores of Lake Michigan.

But the place name game is incidental to your enjoyment of "Crooked Tree," particularly if you like a well-told tale — far-fetched, to be sure, but jam-packed with so much suspense you can hardly wait to turn the page. In many instances you know what is going to happen next and you wish it wouldn't. But you keep right on reading, and sure enough it does.

Wilson seldom lets you down.

Purportedly based on Indian legend, the story contends that an Indian, Shawonabe, died 200 years ago who was so evil that his survivors refused to afford him the traditional funeral ceremony which would have sent his soul soaring to its eternal home among the stars.

Instead Shawonabe's tortured soul lay festering in its woodland grave until a bright young attorney named Axel Michelson and his Indian bride, Janis, decide to build their home on the same tract of land — practically on top of Shawonabe's mortal remains.

The proximity of human inhabitants somehow allows Shawonabe's spirit to take possession not only of Janis' body but also the bodies of the black bears that make their home in Crooked Tree State Forest.

From then on, no one is safe. A lawyer representing a land developer is the first to go after his car breaks down on a deserted woodland trail. Next victims are a camper and a canoeist from southern Michigan.

Lawyer Michelson suspects early on that his wife is involved, particularly when her eyes start glowing in the dark and she growls at him like a wild animal. But he little realizes that she is the hand-maiden of the deadly bruins, following their footsteps through the eerie forest and removing the tongues of their hapless victims with a paring knife.

But enough is enough. Pick up a copy of the book yourself — if you have the nerve.

The book is not recommended as light reading for overnight campers in the woods. In fact, before it's over you'll be giving your flower boxes on the front porch a wide berth.

Letters: Sidewalk sales, drainage ditch REA

Dear Dave,

So a couple of councilmen say the sidewalk sales are getting out of control? After reading their comments in the Courier, I feel I must express my feelings on this matter.

The city employs two men to keep the parks up and they do an excellent job. The park is as nice as it can be, even with all the use it gets.

I thought it was great that Kit Carson could bring their merchandise downtown, although when I saw where they were parked, I thought to myself that someone would complain about them being parked on sacred ground, as this is par for the course. They were actually parked very well, where those buying from them could walk on the sidewalk, not the grass. In the first place, what is the park for?

The merchants of this town should be able to use it every week of the summer if they wish. They are so generous to every cause that comes to them for donations to benefit our community, and they get asked to contribute a staggering number of times in a year. It really bothers me that a councilman could be so trite as to come down on them for this petty complaint. I say, hats off to our businessmen for a wonderful sale.

It is beneficial to everyone and I say nuts to the grass.

Don't you councilmen realize how much money is being brought into the town? Use your common sense. We live in a very economically depressed area and there are several businesses in town leaving soon and you want to condemn them for such silly reasons? If new people move to town and buy a business, they are very lucky if they are still there a year from then. Let's face it, it is hard to make a living here. We all know that most families have to work very hard to be able to stay in this lovely north. We need all the business we can get and the sidewalk sales are a great way to bring people in to shop. It looked like old times on Bridge Street with all the crowds. Many of the newcomers don't know how it used to be in Charlevoix years ago when there was so much recent activity.

It bothers me very much to pick up the paper and find that the comments on a very nice weekend are so negative. I am tired of people coming into Charlevoix, getting in positions of power and then being negative about so many of their decisions which would help the town.

Let's get behind our clubs, societies, merchants and start things rolling to make this a better town. I, for one, am tired of this silly reasoning. If we keep up the negative thinking, we will have a ghost town instead of a thriving one. Let some of the barriers down, give a little in some of the decisions, always keeping in mind that this is our city and it will be what we make it.

The park is there to use. Let's let our merchants have some leeway, instead of knocking them in the head.

Marilyn Ross

Sale to be discussed

Dear Editor:

Sidewalk Sale Days are held for a two-fold purpose, 1) to allow consumers the opportunity to save money, and 2) to allow merchants to clear store shelves for incoming merchandise.

This annual activity is a Chamber of Commerce sponsored event and has been traditionally held the first Friday and Saturday in August. This information is printed, published and distributed by the Chamber of Commerce in and out of state. All merchants were made aware of these dates.

For general public information; these stores that displayed merchandise on Thursday did so independently of the Charlevoix Retail Merchants Association.

At the last Retail Merchants meeting a discussion was held about the prospect of holding a universal three day Sidewalk Sale. Because of the advanced Chamber publication it was not feasible to do so this year.

Even so, there were merchants who decided to hold a three day sale regardless of the group decision.

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and the Retail Merchants Association cannot be held accountable for the actions of these merchants.

On Tuesday, August 12th, there will be a Retail meeting to evaluate Sidewalk Sales and discuss the preceding situation.

Sincerely,
[illegible]
President
Charlevoix Retail Merchants Association

Praise for Shirley

To: David Knight, Editor, Charlevoix Courier;

In these days of constant and loud criticism of the people, by the people, I would like to offer some words of praise for a very deserving person.

That person is a member of the Charlevoix City Council. She is also a wife, a mother, and holds down a nearly full-time job, plus contributes time to the senior citizens of our city. On top of these items, she finds time to track down information to solve the many problems that come up in all of her jobs.

Recently, I found myself working with her for community betterment. She had been battling a sort of single-handed war against a dragon that at first looked harmless but turned out to be very dangerous.

She has stuck to her guns on this matter, presenting the same material to the City Council over and over, keeping the information fresh in their minds. She has doggedly continued asking questions of people she thought could help, and digging up facts that were pertinent to help rid our city of a health and safety hazard. Her continuous interest, and strength seems contagious, and makes you want to dig in and help her get things done. She keeps right on fighting, even though she is laughed at and ignored by people who should have been concerned about what she was stressing. She has achieved results in spite of them.

The project is the drainage system at the new May Street Apartments. (This "Hole" is approximately 60'x100'x20 feet deep. It looks like a large swimming pool with sloping sides. It has a fence on three sides, 42" high, which I have witnessed children climbing and jumping over.)

It's function is entirely honorable. It is to catch stormwater drain-off from the parking lots at the complex. But, in the construction period it was allowed to erode into itself, thereby letting the clay soils settle onto the bottom and prevenging the water from draining away harmlessly.

It has some other side benefits, like wildlife, mosquitos, frogs, ducks, and an occasional goose on its way to Canada, some floating debris, depending on what the neighborhood children throw in, or an occasional child or bicycle.

Our defending "angel" is Mrs. Shirley Roloff, City Councilwoman, who has determinately kept fighting to save "just that one life", by either getting the "pit" eliminated, or at least fenced adequately to protect our children.

This once useful piece of property was just whisked away, through manipulation of paperwork, and turned into a community problem, which remains with those around it, forgotten by it's creators.

Let us applaud this tremendously wonderful lady who did not let those who professed to be more educated, more knowledgeable, and more influential, back her against the wall or give up her fight.

We need more people like you, Shirley Roloff. Keep up the good work.

Respectfully,
[illegible]
Citizen

Reject proposals

Open Letter to Top O' Michigan (REA) Members:

The three proposed bylaw revisions to be voted on August 15th at the annual meeting of Co-op members are NOT fully nor adequately explained in the annual report sent you early last month.

Certain of these revisions, Proposals No. 1 and No. 2 in particular, contain legal language that would unnecessarily constrain, and in some ways explicitly restrict, free exercise of member rights and prerogatives presently permitted. (Have you read the "fine print" closely?)

Change for the sake of change does not always mean progress!

I urge your vote in person or by proxy to politely but firmly reject these proposals. Their passage might produce a few satisfactions for Company management, but no particular benefit that one can easily detect for the great majority of our members!

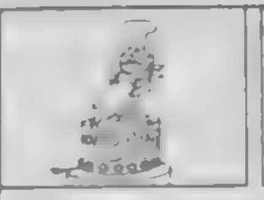
Hull-Forsberg



Wedding

Margaret Kathleen Hull and Erik Jordahl Forsberg exchanged marriage vows on Saturday afternoon, August 2, at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Clark Hull of Trenton and Charlevoix, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Forsberg of Hastings.

The Rev. Raymond H. Giffin performed the double-ring ceremony in the presence of more than 100 guests.

Organist Bill Klimas played a program of traditional wedding music and also accompanied soloist Leslie Ulrich as she sang "Ich Liebe Dicht" and "Whither Thou Goest".

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, chose a softly draped, white, full-length gown. The fitted bodice, accented with lace brocade and seedpearls, featured an empire waistline, a low, rounded neckline, and full bell-shaped sleeves, gathered into a four-inch wristband and buttoned with tiny buttons. Lace brocade edged the hemline and chapel-length train. The chapel-length veil, adorned with lace and edged with seedpearls, was gathered into a Jullerette cap, also of lace brocade and seedpearls. The bride wore a double strand of pearls, given to her mother by her father on their wedding day, and her grandmother's pearl earrings. She carried a bouquet of orchids, stephanotis, baby's breath, and trailing ivy.

Linda Carlson of Grand Rapids and Lori Csucsai of Trenton served as maids of honor. Linda wore a gown of light blue nylon with a self print overlaying taffeta and fashioned with a low gathered neckline, bloused bodice, and pleated floor-length skirt. Lori wore a matching gown in mint green. Both girls carried bouquets of green and blue carnations with white mums, baby's breath, and satin streamers

John Forsberg and Peter Forsberg, brothers of the bridegroom, served as his best man. Lt. Frank Hull of Fort Stewart, Georgia, the bride's brother, and Tim Kosinski of Grosse Point seated the guests.

The bride's parents hosted a reception at Stafford's Bay View Inn following the wedding ceremony. Mrs. Katherine Munson of Jacksonville, Fla. served the champagne punch, made by her from her own recipe. Mrs. Judith Gardner of the Bay View Conservatory of Music provided background music during the reception. Rhonda Murphy of Trenton was in charge of the guest book, aided by Linda Skidmore and Mary Ploughman, both of Battle Creek

The rehearsal dinner was held on Friday evening, August 1, at the Weathervane Inn, hosted by the bridegroom's parents

The bride is a June graduate of Kalamazoo College. The bridegroom, also a graduate of Kalamazoo College, is presently doing graduate work toward a doctorate at the University of Chicago. They will live in the Chicago area following a wedding trip around Lake Superior

For further information call Jenny Belairs at 547-6255.

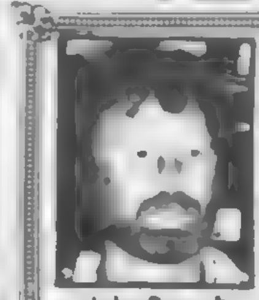
"Through the Gates of Splendor" to be shown here

The film "Through Gates of Splendor" will be shown at the Community Church of God, 202 W. Hurlbut Street in Charlevoix, on Sunday evening, August 17 at 7:00 p.m. according to Rev. Walter G. Hastings, pastor. The public is welcome to attend, and there will be no admission charged

"Through Gates of Splendor" tells the story of five missionaries who ventured into the jungles of Ecuador, and were killed by the savage Auca Indian tribes. However, two of the wives of the martyred missionaries continued to live among the Aucas and eventually led them to faith in Christ. The film depicts the triumph of love and forgiveness over hate and fear. Much of the photography was done by the missionaries prior to their death.

The film will be of special interest to those persons interested in primitive peoples and in missions. It has been featured four times in articles appearing in Reader's Digest and Life magazines.

GEMWISE



John Rousch

PERIDOT: VOLCANO'S CHILD (Part II)

In my continuing saga about volcanoes and gemstones, I'd like to continue the story of peridot, focusing on the North American continent

Peridot is generally found in volcanic "bombs," masses of liquid lava which are thrown out by explosions and harden in flight. These eventually land upon the slopes of the cinder cone where they form much of the debris

In about 1915 gem quality peridot grains were found in volcanic bombs on Timothy Mountain, British Columbia, between two extinct cinder cones. This led to an extensive working of the area from which some fine green crystals were obtained

The most productive locality for peridot [illegible] near an Indian village in Arizona. The gem material is found on the summit and sides of a flat tableland called Peridot Mesa. The mesa is capped by a peridot-rich basalt flow that varies in depth from 10 to 100 feet

[illegible] a strange shallow circular depression in New Mexico [illegible] is the mouth of a long extinct volcano Pale green peridot is found in the basalt rim of the crater

Peridot is the traditional birthstone for August. Some say it was assigned to August because of its summery green color. Mounted in gold and worn on the left hand, it was claimed to put ghosts and demons to flight dispel melancholy and foolishness and to show the eternal paths to wisdom.

Peridot has a fascinating past and still fascinates people the way it did centuries ago I hope you enjoyed reading this fragment of its story.

Voisin heads outboard marathon field

The 1980 Stock Outboard Marathon Boat Racing Championships will be held August 23 and 24 on the nearby Top-O-Michigan course.

Don Voisin, a Charlevoix insurance agent and co-chairman of the races, will attempt to capture a dual victory which eluded him in last year's championships. Voisin will [illegible] his National Marathon Championship in the [illegible] Runabout class and will try to regain the national championship he lost in the D Stock Runabout class last year.

The Stock Outboard Marathon Nationals are a unique type of national championships. This year drivers will compete in a two-day marathon consisting of 37 miles each day. The course will start from the north end of Mullet Lake at Hobart's Marina (Pit Area) and will run south down Mullet Lake through Indian River and turn around approximately 200 yards into Burt Lake. The boats will then proceed back through Indian River, across Mullet Lake, through the Cheboygan River and turn around in downtown Cheboygan at the Charmin Paper Mill pond and make a short return trip to the finish line at Hobart's Marina.

About 150 boats will be racing in the championships. There will be seven classes of runabouts participating in the races each day. Half of the classes of boats will start at 11 a.m. and the other classes will start at 1:30 p.m. In order to win the National Marathon Championships, a racer must run and finish well in both days of racing. His order of finish is computed on a numbers system and at the end of his two days of racing, each racer's total points determines his place in the final standings.

Voisin, having grown up in the Cheboygan area, is very familiar with the Top-O-Michigan course but concedes that it will take more than that familiarity to win. The secret, he said, in winning the championships is to finish consistently high in the standings each day. In this years races on the Top-O-Michigan course, Voisin returns to the same spot at which he was involved in a serious accident last year. While leading his class of boats in a race last August, Voisin [illegible] in front of the leading boat in the following class. Though no one was seriously hurt, Voisin's boat and motor were almost completely destroyed.

Since early April, Voisin has been rebuilding his boats and motors and has expressed confidence that they are ready for the championships.

"Anyone can win a race one day," he said, "But in order to win each day, one has to rely on himself and his equipment to come through for him."

Voisin has won eight National Marathon Championships since 1964. Though he races a boat made in California, he does all his own motor work in the basement of his home over the winter.

The championships will feature a purse of over $5,000 plus trophies and other prizes. The Cheboygan Jaycees, along with area merchants and the Indian River Chamber of Commerce, have sponsored the Top-O-Michigan Marathon for the past 25 years.

This year, additional financial support for advertising and promotion of the championships has been received from the Budweiser Brewing Corporation and Huron Distributors of Cheboygan.

Any further information on the races can be obtained from Don Vison by calling him at [illegible].

Persky-Hooper

Marci Persky of Chicago and Robert B. Hooper, also of Chicago, were united in marriage on Saturday evening, Aug. 9, in the People's Church in Kalamazoo.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Persky of Kalamazoo, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Hooper of Charlevoix.

Rabbi Robert Kirzner of St. Petersburg, Fla. performed the ceremony before approximately 120 guests.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a Victorian gown of ivory over lace, with a matching picture hat. She carried a bouquet of ivory roses.

Karen DiMattia of Kalamazoo served the bride as maid of honor, and Sheila Collins of Charlevoix, Marcella Krester of Chicago, and Robin Persky of Kalamazoo served as bridesmaids. They wore gowns of sheer batiste in a small floral print with border print and matching stoles. Their bouquets were of purple forget-me-nots to pick up the colors of the floral print.

Charles Metzger of Charlevoix served the bridegroom as best man, Peter Hooper was the groomsman, and Robert and John Persky were the ushers.

A reception, hosted by the bride's parents, was held at Carver Center in Kalamazoo following the ceremony. The rehearsal dinner was held Friday evening, also at Carver Center, hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Hooper are at home at 6434 North Fairfield Ave., Chicago.

The bride is national broadcast news writer for United Press International, and her bridegroom is an electronic and field service engineer for Morgan Industries, Chicago. He is a graduate of the Charlevoix High School and Ferris State College.

Fiedler-Hoss

Lisa Anne Fiedler became the bride of James Michael Hoss on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 9, in the Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Fiedler of Charlevoix, and her bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James V. Hoss of Salina, Kans.

Candles and an arrangement of pink roses and pink carnations graced the altar before which the Rev. Earnest Knight performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a gown fashioned with an empire waist, Victorian neck, sleeves of Brussels lace and veil edged with Brussels lace. Her bouquet was a Colonial style arrangement of pink sweetheart roses and miniature pink carnations.

Music for the ceremony was provided by Mrs. Robert Fiedler of Flint, who sang, "More"; Steve Layner of Florida, who sang the "Wedding Song", and Mrs. Mark Fiedler, organist, of Highland.

Kristin Fiedler served her sister as maid of honor, assisted by Luann Fiedler of Highland and Becky Hoss of Salina, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaids. They wore pastel pink quiana gowns and each carried one long-stemmed pink rose.

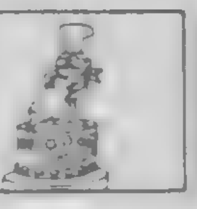
[illegible] of Comstock Park served as best man, and Tim Coblentz of Burton and Stewart Hoss of Salina, brother of the groom, served as groomsmen. The ushers were Erik Fiedler, the bride's brother, and Daniel Hoss, the bridegroom's brother.

Following the ceremony, a reception, hosted by the bride's parents, was held at the Charlevoix Community Reformed Church. Those assisting were Mrs. Erwin Smalley of Charlevoix, Margaret Warner of Charlevoix, Pam Englerth of Hastings, and Debi and Juanita Hoss, sisters of the bridegroom from Salina.

Upon returning from a wedding trip to Mackinac Island, the newlyweds will make their home in Kankakee, Ill. The bride is a newspaper reporter for the Momence Progress Reporter Press, and the bridegroom is a student at Olivet Nazarene College in Kankakee.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Fiedler wore a floor-length ecru sleeveless gown, while Mrs. Hoss wore a floor-length rose-colored gown.

The rehearsal dinner the night before the wedding was a cookout held on the shores of Lake Michigan and hosted by the bridegroom's parents.



Weddings

Peters-Barta

Susan Mary Peters and Leland Ray Barta were married on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 2, at St. Mary's Church.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Peters of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Barta, also of Charlevoix.

Approximately 200 guests witnessed the double-ring ceremony performed by Fr. R. Dale Magoon. Garden flowers provided by Mrs. Melva Stack and Mrs. Henry Seeds decorated the church for the occasion.

The bride wore a white eyelet sundress with an overlay of white sheer organza trimmed with eyelet lace. Her veil was waist-length, fashioned from organza and topped with a Juliet cap. She carried a bouquet of white and yellow silk roses and carnations.

Traditional wedding music was provided by Sharon Peters, sister-in-law of the bride.

Nancy Vermeer of Petoskey served as honor attendant. Mrs. Randy Williams, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. James Harris, sister of the bride, were the bridesmaids. They wore long dresses in a shade of peach, trimmed with white eyelet, and carried bouquets of garden flowers.

Keith Kenney served as best man, and Randy Williams and Eugene Weyer served as groomsmen. Ushers were Jeffrey and Andrew Peters, brothers of the bride.

Following the wedding, the bride's parents hosted a reception at their home. They were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Norman Carlson and Mrs. [illegible]. The rehearsal dinner was given on Friday evening by the groom's parents at their home.

The newlyweds are at home at 206 Nettleton St. The bride is employed by Hooker's Cleaners, and the bridegroom is an [illegible] at the Charlevoix County State Bank.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX COUNCIL MINUTES

August 4, 1980
8:00 P.M.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Supernaw presiding.

Present: Councilwoman Roloff and Councilmen Wood, Muma, Whitley, Porter and Timms.

Absent: None.

The Minutes of the July 21, 1980 regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

A Public Hearing was held on an amendment to the Zoning Ordinance to [illegible] Section 5.190 of the City Code entitled Conversion of Large Dwellings [illegible] the new zone district "R 2A". No comments were received and no action was taken on this issue.

A Public Hearing was held on the proposed Charter Amendment to change the terms of the Mayor and City Clerk from one year to two years and to change the payment periods from semi-annual to bi-weekly. Following a lengthy discussion it was decided to delete that portion of the proposed amendment regarding the Mayor at this time and to act only on that portion pertaining to the City Clerk.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Muma and supported by Councilman Wood.

Resolution 80-8-1
Charter Amendment

Be it resolved by the City Council of the City of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, as follows:

Names In The News

GEOFFREY ENLUND, 37, of Hemlock, Michigan and his son BRAD, 6, have been named recipients of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Citizen Award. On May 3, 1980, the Enlund family was visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Nielsen of Ironton when Eric Enlund, 8, climbed a pine tree in the Nielsen yard. When he stepped on a limb, his weight caused it to come into contact with a power line and a strong current was transmitted through Eric's body.

Brad noticed that Eric was in trouble and yelled for help from his parents. Geoffrey Enlund ran to the tree, climbed up to his son and, after observing that Eric was not breathing, immediately administered mouth to mouth resusitation. He was able to revive the boy who was then transported to the Charlevoix Hospital.

BARBARA LINDSAY BOGART, daughter of Robert W. Bogart of Norwood Village in Charlevoix, is scheduled to be among approximately 1,000 students receiving degrees during Memphis State University's summer commencement ceremonies Sunday, August 17.

Meet Charlevoix: Sally Kahlo

By PEG OHLE

Sally Kahlo will begin teaching school in Charlevoix in September. This week the Courier talks with her about the job and how she has prepared herself for it.

COURIER: What subjects will you be teaching?

KAHLO: Home Economics in High School and seventh grade English in the Middle School.

COURIER: Have you had previous teaching experience?

KAHLO: Just practice teaching. I'm graduating from Western Michigan University this week.

COURIER: What was your major?

KAHLO: Home Economics, with a minor in Communications, or Speech.

COURIER: Where did you grow up?

KAHLO: In Fruitport, near Muskegon. I did my practice teaching there, too.

COURIER: You're married, aren't you?

KAHLO: Yes, Mike and I have been married nine years. I've done all my college work except one year since we've been married. He got his degree in 1974.

COURIER: What does Mike do?

KAHLO: He'll be looking for a job up here, too. He has a teaching certificate. We're also looking for a place to live but first we'll have to sell our house.

COURIER: You probably had several different kinds of jobs while going to college.

KAHLO: Yes. I was a receptionist, a secretary, and a waitress, among other things.

COURIER: How did you get this teaching job?

KAHLO: It was one of several I applied for. I had two interviews, the first one with Vane Smith at the High School at the end of June, then another one with Gordon Van Wieren later. I'm so glad to be here.

COURIER: What subject matter is included in Home Economics classes these days?

KAHLO: Cooking and Sewing are still the basis, but we also teach Family and Marriage, Interior Design, Consumer Education, Child Development, and Grooming.

COURIER: And what will you be teaching in seventh grade English?

KAHLO: Grammar, Reading, Spelling, Drama, Creative Writing, the usual English-related subjects.

COURIER: What would you most like to accomplish with your students?

KAHLO: I hope to get them "turned on" about the subject matter so they will really enjoy it.

COURIER: What are your hobbies?

KAHLO: Sewing, gardening, preserving, canning, playing softball – all outdoor things, and just being a homebody.

COURIER: Welcome to Charlevoix.

School Board approves new attendance policy at CHS

By Fran Martin

A new attendance policy at the Charlevoix High School and the certification of taxes headed the agenda at the regular meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night.

In presenting the revised policy David Smith, assistant high school principal, said the objectives of the policy are to instill in each student the sense of responsibility necessary for success in high school; to identify and attempt to remedy situations where student absence is having an adverse effect on the student's progress in school and to maintain an accurate record of attendance for each student which becomes a part of the student's permanent record that is requested by employers and other schools.

Major changes in the policy relate to "admit" slips the student will receive upon his return to school following an absence which will designate if the absence was an "excused" or "unexcused" absence. This will determine whether or not the work can be made up.

Work will be made up for all but "unexcused" absences. Any student receiving in excess of four "unexcused" absences per semester in any class will be dropped from the class with no credit.

The student will be expected to make up the work for each day's "excused" absence.

Suspensions will not be considered "unexcused" absences and the student will be expected to make up all the work missed. Each day of suspension will equal one day of make-up work with the student responsible for obtaining and handling assignments after 2:30 p.m. on a school day.

In addition, if a student's absences become excessive, even though excused, parents or guardians will be requested to come to school for a conference to help determine any corrective measures which might be necessary.

Under the new policy, parents/guardians will be advised of absences not only from school but from each class in which the student is enrolled on report card which are sent home every nine weeks. In the past only absences from school were listed on report cards.

The new policy will become effective with the opening of school on Sept. 3.

The millage levy for 1980 was certified by the board with the rates lowered in compliance with Section 31 of Article 9 of the State Constitution of 1963 as required by Section 211.34d or the Headley Amendment. The levy, which will total 27.77 mills, the lowest in the area and far below the state average, will be as follows: 8.89 mills allocated; 16.15 voted for operation; .48 public library operation; .50 1958 debt retirement (high school); 1.10 debt retirement (elementary school); .65 mill 1979 debt retirement (high school addition).

In other action, the rates for the hot lunch program at all three schools were established. They will be as follows: High school, daily, 85 cents; weekly, $4.00; middle school, daily, 75 cents; weekly, $3.50 and elementary school, daily 65 cents and weekly $3.00. Adult rates will be $1.10 as required by law. The cost represents a five cent increase per meal.

With school about to open, bids for bread and milk were opened and accepted by the board. Grocers Baking Co. of Grand Rapids, which has supplied the school for two years submitted the lowest of two bids received. The Northern Michigan Dairy Co. bid for milk was accepted. This is the same company that supplied milk in the past.

Michael Filkins, band director, addressed the board on the subject of disposing of 90 pre-1968 all-wool band uniforms no longer being used by the

Seger rocks Castle Farms

Bob Seger came to Charlevoix Friday night to perform at Castle Farms Music Theatre in one of the biggest Castle Farms concerts of the summer. A crowd estimated at 15,000 gathered to hear the native Michigan rocker whose success has been meteoric in recent years. Other than the biggest traffic tie-up of the summer which, at one point had cars backed up past Edwards IGA north of the downtown bridge, the evening concert went relatively smoothly. City-township consolidation hearing nears

Courier Feature
by Dave Knight

To consolidate or not to consolidate. That will be the question Wednesday, August 27 when the State Boundary Commission holds a public hearing on the proposed consolidation of Charlevoix Township with the City of Charlevoix.

"This is important to the future development of Charlevoix" says Mayor Sam Supernaw who, with the blessing of the city council, filed a petition with the Boundary Commission in February to initiate the the consolidation process.

"I wouldn't say yes and I shouldn't say no," says Charlevoix Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud whose domain faces piecemeal annexation by the city [illegible].

[illegible]

As outlined in the Boundary Commission Act of 1968, Michigan statutes require a public hearing as one of the first steps toward the formation of a Home Rule City which is the legal term for a city-township merger.

It is only one phase, however, of a tedious process that could take as long as four to five years if carried out to completion.

No formal dialogue has been held between the city and the township on the subject of consolidation at this point. But officials of both are well aware of what such a move could mean for their respective constituencies.

To Mayor Supernaw, consolidation is the only logical way to eliminate duplicated services offered by both the city and the township. By consolidating electric, water, sewer and other services, he says, the unneccessary cost of duplication would be lowered substantially.

Supernaw contends that township residents would have a lot to gain by [illegible].

Sam Supernaw

"Although their taxes may be a little higher, that increase will be offset by lower costs for municipal services," he said, "The City of Charlevoix now pays about the cheapest electricity rate in the state. In a consolidation, the township people would be able to take advantage of that rate also."

Both the city and the township even have their own recreation programs, Supernaw points out, which should logically be combined.

[illegible]

Supervisor Stroud is not opposed to the basic idea of consolidation but, according to him, not just any arrangement will do.

"We think we deserve some consideration in this," said Stroud, "They (the city) will have to give us some incentive. If the city really wants us to go along with consolidation, they may have to make some sacrifices."

One concession Stroud would like to see the city make is in the area of taxation. At present, the city is able to increase taxes up to 15 mills without public approval by vote.

The township, says Stroud, has been able to operate on a two-mill increase ceiling without a vote. If the city and township consolidate, he would like to see a five-mill increase ceiling which would liberalize the township policy a little and curtail the city's a lot.

Both Supernaw and Stroud plan to attend the August 27 hearing. The petition filed with the Boundary Commission in February was signed by 150 city residents and 80 from the township.

Anyone is invited to offer testimony or pertinent information at the hearing on either advantages or disadvantages of consolidation. In the Boundary Commission Act of 1968, there are 18 areas of criteria to be considered including population, land area and use, valuation, drainage, urban growth, services and future projections.

For those unable to attend the hearing, there is a 30-day period following during which written testimony can be submitted to the Boundary Commission for inclusion in the record. No action will be taken at the hearing.

Conducting the session will be the three statewide Boundary Commission members, David R. Calhoun of Alcona Township, James F. Smith of Grand Blanc and Peter M. Lamberts of Kentwood plus two local members, Thomas Garlock of Boyne City and Thomas Wieland of Marion Township.

[illegible]

Following the 30-day period after the hearing, all written testimony submitted will be compiled and sent to involved parties. The township and city both have 45 days after the hearing to halt the whole process by voting not to consolidate.

However, if no such vote occurs, the commission will study the situation, a process that takes anywhere from 18 months to two years, and will then hold an adjudicative meeting to rule on the petition.

They have several options. The petition may be denied, approved as submitted or approved with boundary adjustments.

Following their decision, Executive Secretary James S. Hyde will compile a "finding of fact" which is forwarded to the city and township. Both bodies then have 60 days to file a petition for an election on the matter.

If the consolidation plan is approved by the voters, a charter commission with representatives from the city and township will convene to draw up a charter for the new government. The commission will have either two years or two votes, whichever comes first, to come up with a charter.

Charter township favored

What type of government would result from a city-township merger?

Naturally, Stroud favors a "charter township" arrangement. Under that format a supervisor, clerk, treasurer and four trustees, all elected, run the show.

Says Stroud, "It works."

Supernaw expressed no preference saying that he really doesn't care what type of consolidated government is formed, just so it is formed.

The August 27 hearing will be held at Charlevoix High School and is scheduled to begin at 1:30 p.m. A legal description of the boundaries involved and a complete list of the criteria for consolidation are available from the Boundary Commission office in Lansing.

Buying and Selling Real Estate by Gene Steele

HESITATION CAN BE COSTLY

Once you put real estate on the market, you have to make up your mind to move when the right offer comes. Your asking price should come pretty close to your selling price if you have priced your property realistically. The right offer may be your first offer, and if you turn it down, you may never get another as good.

However, the offer should be a written one - the only kind that has any real significance and on which you can depend.

Just remember that a legitimate offer should be accompanied by a good-sized check depending on the selling price. Never accept a verbal promise and take your property off the market. The next day a good sale may be lost if you are tied up in this type of questionable transaction. You'll never have to worry about this situation arising if the sale of your property is in the hands of a Realtor.

Bay Township plan workshop scheduled

There will be a public workshop on Monday evening, Aug. 25, at 8 p.m. in the Bay Township Hall to consider ideas for developing a new comprehensive plan for the Township.

Charlevoix County Planner John Hess has been hired to help develop the plan along with members of the Township Planning Commission and other interested individuals.

Among the subjects to be considered will be how the residents would like the Township to grow within the next five years, specifically in the fields of housing, population, changes in land use, transportation systems, and possibly changes in the economic base of the Township.

Open house to be held in new H.S. addition

An open house at the new addition to the Charlevoix High School has been scheduled for Sunday, Aug. 24, in order that the residents of the Charlevoix School District and other interested persons may tour the facility before school opens Sept. 3.

The open house will be held from 2 until 5 p.m. Sunday. At that time, visitors may tour the school where they will find guides who will offer information and answer any questions.

Entry to the addition is at the May Street entrance. From the foyer, there will be corridors leading to a new biology lab and related rooms, art room, two classrooms, teacher's lounge and the library, cafeteria and mechanical drawing room, which have been expanded to approximately double their original size.

The cafeteria, though doubled in size, has a folding divider wall to allow the area to be utilized as two teaching stations or as meeting rooms. It will also be utilized as a dining meeting room for senior citizens. The enlarged facility will also allow two instead of three lunch periods as well as serving all students in the cafeteria.

The biology room will allow for a lab oriented rather than a lecture oriented program as has been necessary in the past. It also opens up a second teaching station with both instructors having access to lab facilities.

An adjacent student workroom will permit an area for ongoing experiments which were not possible prior to this time. It will also allow increased field work in the course.

A dark room located within the area will be utilized by journalism students as well as a teaching station for student and adult education classes.

The increased space in the library will allow for additional books as well as giving the school North Central Association accreditation which the high school was about to lose.

The addition was constructed between Building A and B, thus eliminating the breezeways that joined the buildings. It will mean a great saving in energy as well as providing the additional space needed for implementing the changing program Supt. Gordon W VanWieren said.

The construction project was made possible by the approval of a $700,000 bond issue by the voters in the school district on April 30, 1978. This vote followed recommendations by a citizens' committee headed by Tom LaBlance after the committee had surveyed and studied school needs. Earlier several different proposals for a new high school and various expansion proposals had been turned down by the voters.

The $700,000 bonding program is for 11 years and will cost less than 1.0 mill debt retirement annually over the period.

The Petrie Construction Co. of East Jordan was the prime contractor on the project.

The high school was completed in 1961 and financed by a bond issue approved in November 1958.

Big Brothers raffle winners named

Lyddy Moore of Charlevoix was the big winner in the Charlevoix Big Brothers-Big Sisters raffle conducted August 9. Lyddy won the first prize, a stainless steel three dimensional framed sculpture of the 19th century schooner Black Hawk. The scaled replica was designed and made by Ronald Koover of Charlevoix, a Win-Flow employee. Koover donated the work to the raffle.

The second place prize, a set of stainless steel lobsters made by Terry Boss, was won by Sandy Meredith and the third place prize, matching afghans and towels made by Mrs. Robert Gross, was won by Mrs. Terry Boss.

According to Nancy Wood, Big Brothers-Big Sisters director, the raffle raised $350 for the program's recreational outings. Fran Martin drew the winning names.

Band uniforms to arrive late

The new Charlevoix High School band uniforms will not be delivered until Sept. 12 Michael Filkins, band director, has been informed by the company, DeMoulin Brothers and Co. of Greenville, Ill.

Filkins said the original agreement indicated that Sept. 4 would be the latest possible delivery date. In the communication from the company no explanation was given for the delay Filkins said.

Included in the order were 90 complete concert and marching uniforms plus foul weather gear.

Accessories for the uniforms including gloves, spats, bow ties and plumes have arrived Filkins said. These were purchased from the G.L. Byl Co. of Spring Lake.

Those residents not counted should report

Persons in Charlevoix County who have not yet been contacted by a census taker are asked to report that fact to the office of the County Planner.

A simple note or postcard addressed to the Planner at the County Building, Charlevoix, giving name and address of anyone who has not yet heard from the census taker is all that is required.

The Planning Department will forward the information to the Census Division in Traverse City, who, in turn, will see that a census taker is dispatched to those who were missed the first time around.

Primary clarifications

In last week's resume of Primary election results, the Courier did not report the results of the contest between Ralph Richardson and Martin Biegnowski for County Commissioner from District No. 5, Eveline and Wilson Townships.

Biegnowski won the seat by the narrow margin of five votes. He carried his home Township of Wilson, 56 to 30, but lost out in Richardson's home Township of Eveline, 92 to 104.

Also, in reporting the results of the race for trustees in Marion Township, the Courier did not mention the Democrat candidate, William L. Dietrich, who polled nine votes.

MICHIGAN TECH

Attends youth program

Mike Martin, above, of Charlevoix assembles various components to a printed circuit board during the electronics exploration at the Summer Youth Program at Michigan Technological University. The circuit board is one aspect in the completion of their week long project -- a remote control race car. Electronics is one of 39 areas of study offered to the 1,200 summer youth participants. The program, in its eighth year, is a series of one and two-week sessions running from July 7 to August 1. Martin will be a sophomore at Charlevoix High School.

Support the WRC Safe Home

The Women's Resource Center Safe Home in Petoskey, which has come to the aid of hundreds of abused women and children of this community, now needs some help itself.

The Center received notice recently from the state Domestic Violence Prevention and Treatment Board that funding will be cut dramatically this fiscal year and that it must curtail its victim assistance and shelter programs.

The Center's Spouse Abuse program, which had a budget of $50,415 this year, is faced with a cutback to $33,880 next year under the directive. WRC Director Jan Mancinelli has indicated that unless funds are generated elsewhere, there is a possibility the safe home may have to close as a result.

This would be a step backward for the community.

In July alone, more abused women and children sought shelter at the safe home than in any previous month. A record total of 499 nights of lodging were provided last month. That is an average of 19 persons per night seeking shelter.

If that does not reflect need, what does?

Although the center serves five area counties, a high percentage of cases naturally comes from the Charlevoix area because of the proximity. It is therefore appropriate for a good base of support for the safe home to be developed here.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, August 21, 22 and 23, the Women's Resource Center will be conducting a rummage sale at the Presbyterian Church in Petoskey. The WRC is in need of items to be sold and will also be looking for many customers. Those with items they would like to donate to the sale are asked to call 347-0067

The money raised will go toward offsetting rising costs in the areas of house rental, food, insurance, office supplies, utilities and other general operating costs.

For a facility that has provided a valuable service for so many in need, it is important that the community respond this time to its call for help.

Knight on the Town

When an easy job turns hard

Gusty winds whipped a froth upon the choppy waves that swept into Michigan Beach last Friday afternoon. They provided welcome relief to the many travelers who had arrived in town that day for the Bob Seger concert and who had sought out Charlevoix's most popular beach to relax before getting down to business at Castle Farms.

City Recreation Director Ike Boss had expected a lot of activity at the public beaches over the weekend. Nothing like good August weather and a rock concert in town to draw a crowd down to the water.

It was about 3 p.m. Friday when Ike pulled his pickup into the Michigan Beach parking lot and walked down to the sand to talk to the lifeguard on duty, Mike Streeter, about weekend assignments.

Mike, 23, joined the Charlevoix Recreation Department as a guard early this summer. It was his first job as a lifeguard. While attending Central Michigan University last year, he completed a senior lifesaving course and received his certification as a Water Safety Instructor.

For a senior geology major who plans to attend graduate school at Western Michigan in Kalamazoo this fall, the lifesaving and water safety courses did not have much bearing on his serious studies. They came naturally, however, for Mike who has been swimming since he was four years old. At that tender age when most youngsters are considered brave if they put their head under water in the bath tub, Mike was being used as an example in beginning swimming class taught by his mother.

"He could swim around like anything," recalls Mrs. Marilyn Pardee about her son.

Ike Boss and Mike stood near his lifeguard chair about 30 feet from the water casually scanning the beach as they talked. There were not too many people in the water; maybe three on the diving raft and a couple more swimming around.

Suddenly they noticed a young man about 25 yards out waving his arms. At first Mike thought he was waving to friends. But then Mike realized that the waves were of panic, not playfulness, and that the swimmer was in trouble. As he dashed to the surf and dove in, the young man disappeared beneath the waves.

Todd Wilkins, 18, had driven up from Reed City that day for the concert with some friends. Although he was not a strong swimmer, he had probably seen people walking out into the lake quite a ways and figured it was shallow enough not to be dangerous.

What Todd didn't know was that there is a trough of water six to eight feet deep between the shore and the sand bar and diving raft. It was in this area that he had ventured and somehow gotten into trouble.

By the time Mike reached the spot he had last seen the flailing arms, Wilkins was on the bottom of the lake. Diving down, Mike reached him on the first try and struggled to bring the 170-pound youth to the surface.

In lifesaving class, it had been different. Sure he had to practice retrieves on some heavy people but if he had difficulty, Mike would always [illegible].

This time there was no instructor nor any classmates around to help out. Mike was all by himself and a human life was on the line. It was the real thing.

Using the classic cross-chest carry, Mike made his way to shore, struggling all the way with the limp body. Todd had been under water anywhere from 45 seconds to a minute and by the time Mike got him to the beach, he was not breathing.

To the great fortune of Wilkins and to the great relief of Boss and Streeter, a doctor happened to be out on the beach that day and was on the scene immediately when Wilkins was dragged onto the sand. Within minutes, after CPR, Todd was breathing again. By then a sheriff's deputy had arrived and an ambulance followed shortly. Todd was taken to the Charlevoix Area Hospital from which he was released in good condition a few days ago, having missed a concert but gained a future [illegible].

"We usually average two or three saves a year but most often they are more like assists," said Boss this week. "In the six years that I've been with the recreation department, we have never had an incident like this. If it had not been for Mike, that boy would definitely not be alive today. I am sure of that."

Streeter finds it hard to analyze his actions of Friday afternoon.

"It all happened in a very short time," he said, "And the mind just doesn't work when you're out there in that situation. You just do it. It's a weird feeling."

Charlevoix has not had a drowning on a public beach manned by city lifeguards in 26 years. With that record behind them, Boss is sometimes afraid that his staff thinks their jobs are easy.

"They just don't understand how important they really are," he said.

They should now.

At their regular meeting Monday night, the City Council directed that a citation for outstanding performance of duty be drafted for Mike Streeter.

school. He said the storage space was needed for the new uniform scheduled for delivery next month. He advised the board that it was possible to advertise the uniforms in band publications in order to dispose of them. He and the business manager, Vincent Olach, were advised to carry through on the matter.

K. Dale Burge and Joane Grubaugh were named signatories on the high school athletic account.

The board was advised that the work being done at the middle school as part of the renovation program was running far behind schedule and would not be completed for the opening of school. Members of the building committee were asked to attend a meeting with the contractor at the middle school Wednesday morning to discuss the matter.

Because of the holiday (Labor Day), the board will not meet again until Sept. [illegible]

The meeting marked the last for Charles Ehinga, who has served for nine years. He has resigned for business reasons. He was commended by the board for his years of dedication.

Bob Clock

A meal to forget

When you go out and blow a bundle on a fancy restaurant meal and it turns out to be a real disaster, should you:

— Complain to the management?

— Chalk it up to experience?

— Take the Duncan Hines pledge never to return?

Judy's and my first mistake was getting married in August and then moving to Northern Michigan. If we had gotten married in November or March, we would have our choice of the very best restaurants in which to celebrate — "immediate seating — no reservations needed."

But in August? Forget it.

Last Saturday night the parking areas around all of our favorite restaurants were jammed, so we decided to visit a new restaurant a few miles from town. We had heard nothing about the place — good or bad — so we [illegible] went in with open minds.

The premises appeared clean and the dining room itself had an agreeable, country-fresh look about it. In the big cities I think that's called "ambiance," but I'm never quite sure.

The restaurant was not crowded (which should have been our first tip-off on a Saturday night in the middle of August), so we found ourselves a table and sat down. Within a minute a little waitress was at my elbow ready to take our order.

"We'll start with a drink," I said. "Do you have..."

"I'm sorry, but we don't have our license yet," the waitress informed me.

So be it. If the food is good, you don't have to get all liquored up to enjoy it.

"I'll have coffee and my wife would like a pot of hot tea."

A minute later the waitress returned with our beverages and we ordered dinners in the $8 range — not much at today's inflated prices, but still a respectable sum.

"What kind of salad dressing?" the girl asked.

"Roquefort on both," I answered.

"I'm sorry. No Roquefort, but we do have Bleu cheese."

I nodded my approval and the waitress disappeared into the kitchen.

"I wish you would taste this tea," Judy said. "There's something wrong with it."

I plunged my spoon into her cup and came up with a teaspoonful of amber liquid that tasted like vinegar.

"They cleaned the pot with vinegar and forgot to empty it," I explained, hoping it wasn't some kind of caustic cleaner.

When the girl returned with our salads, we told her about the tea and she removed the pot and cup.

The salad was as disappointing as the tea. Salads at the end of summer should contain not only a variety of lettuce but also big wedges of tomato, slices of cucumber, green pepper, sliced radishes, onions — you name it. These salads consisted of a few hard chunks of head lettuce, topped with one slice of tomato no more than one-sixteenth of an inch thick. They had to cut it with a razor.

The soup came straight from a Campbell's can, laced with commercial paste; and the entree not only was luke warm but also poorly prepared. The bread wasn't bad, but the girl only brought enough butter for a small child on a diet.

Finally the waitress came back with another pot of tea, but she forgot the cup.

"May we have some water," Judy choked, the next time the waitress came within earshot. She got water, [illegible]

On our next anniversary, we're going to have dinner at home — and invite the owner of that ill-starred eatery to join us. If he's still in the neighborhood.

Letters: Nuclear debate, cash theft

Supports Big Rock

Dear Sir,

I have delayed in writing this letter due to the fact that I am a layman when discussing nuclear power, but I feel with the current events taking place I can no longer delay.

I am, in the majority of the peoples' eyes, a young person at the age of 26, but I must emphasize that I have lived in Northern Michigan all of those 26 years. I am not now nor have I ever been associated with the nuclear industry. In the years that I can remember, out of those 26, I can not account for one death, one mutation, nor one sickness associated with Big Rock Nuclear plant or any other commercial nuclear plant in the country for that matter.

With that preceding thought in mind, I find it quite difficult to understand how or why the image of nuclear power has done a complete reversal, from being one of a status symbol to one of a virtual time bomb in less than ten years.

I should say that I found it quite difficult to understand until recently. I firmly believe from recent readings and discussions with various people, that the activists against nuclear power are not against it for health and safety reasons but for politically motivated power reasons. To help substantiate the statement just made I must refer to the article in the July 30 edition of the Charlevoix Courier from Consumers Power when they quoted one of the country's most prominent anti-nuclear attorneys, Tony Roisman, of the Natural Resources Defense Council. The article mentioned that when Mr. Roisman was testifying before the President's Commission on the accident at Three Mile Island, he was boasting about how himself and other lawyers with the proper funding could stop the development of any new nuclear plant and the ones now operating would slowly be shut down. Then, when he was asked if he had worries about nuclear power, he replied, "I haven't the slightest idea whether nuclear power is safe."

Mr. Roisman then went on to say that "On the basis of the record established to date, there are no grounds to conclude anything, one way or the other." I thought it was quite interesting when I read in that article that Mr. Roisman is now in the Department of Justice and that he will be writing the new regulations concerning hazardous nuclear waste. This only enables him to continue his anti-nuclear crusade, only this time from the inside. It amazes that a person with such biased attitudes towards nuclear power would be placed in such a powerful position where those biases could be implemented.

Intervening in nuclear power hearings and demonstrations not only helps one achieve power, as in the case of Mr. Roisman, but in many cases intervening also helps to achieve wealth. At this point I wish to address Mr. Will's article, also in the Courier of July 30. Mr. Will mentions that the Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix group have asked for funding or help for intervention from the State Attorney General's office and that the Attorney General's office has not come through with any help or funding so far. I think it is important to point out to Mr. Will that it is against the law for the government to help or fund in intervening unless it is approved by Congress. Congress has been very explicit on the matter of intervenor funding in saying that they prohibit it.

The only agencies that Congress has allowed to receive intervenor funding are the Federal Trade Commission and the Environmental Protection Agency. Here is where I see some unusual happenings taking place. For example, Michael Pertschuk, a former Ralph Nader associate and anti-nuclear activist, is the chairman of the Federal Trade Commission. He revealed his sympathy for the "abnormally low" salaries paid to intervenor lawyers, which at the time was $42 per hour. So the FTC decided to reimburse these anti-nuclear activist attorneys with taxpayer dollars as well as with money from the Department of Energy, to increase the attorneys' fees to [illegible] an hour. It is very easy to say, well, these lawyers are well educated, professional people and they deserve a good wage but the normal volunteer activist receives no compensation in the form of money or formal training or power, or do they?????

Congress did an investigation not too long ago into the activities of the Midwest Academy located in Chicago, Illinois. The Midwest Academy is nothing more than a training camp for revolutionaries. The Midwest Academy trains young radicals (including Vista volunteers) in the techniques required to convert rhetoric into reality. What follows are excerpts from Midwest Academy's training manual.

"Give people a taste of blood. Push your opponents so hard you can see them squirm."

You may want to assign some people to be 'inciters' and move about to heat up the action getting people angrier and encouraging them to show their anger."

"Make what the opposition is doing or not doing sound scandalous. Stunts can help...civil disobedience...is not generally a good mass recruitment tactic (but) there are some exceptions."

"The Third Principle of Direct Action organizing is that it attempts to alter the relations of power between the peoples' organizations and their real enemies. The real enemies are unresponsive politicians, tax assessors, utilities, landlords, government agencies, large corporations or banks."

The funding for that Midwest Academy training manual, excerpted above, came from federal grants in the amount of $596,315. The manual is still being distributed today.

The Consumer Federation of America, also anti-nuclear, benefited from a highly suspect government grant. In May, 1978, the Department of Energy decided to give CFA more than $85,000 weeks before the consumer group even asked for the money. CFA was being paid to testify before a single rulemaking hearing of the Department of Energy simply to state its opinion on the decontrol of Number 2 heating oil. It would take me pages and pages to list some of the other highly suspect grants given to these activist groups but I think you can see the general constructive (???) activities these groups use our money for.

A difference of opinion is one of our freedoms and is very natural in this country and thank God it is. Unfortunately, though, there are people who not only differ with a person but will vindictively try to damage that person or their career because of those differences. That type of person who would lash out vindictively is the main reason I have asked the paper to withhold my name. Please believe me though, when I say I am firmly against these people who would do such things and that I would be more than proud, if it were not for these type of people, to sign my name.

A Concerned Charlevoix Citizen on Big Rock's side.

Asks return of money

To a Citizen of Charlevoix,

We, the members of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club, wish to express our unhappiness at the loss of our cash "filled" box that was "mislaid" or "disappeared" after our sale on Saturday.

These monies are used to help defray expenses of maintaining the gardens, to support a scholarship to Higgins Lake and to support tree and shrub planting in the city. These monies go to help make Charlevoix a more beautiful place for you and me to live in and a city to be proud of.

Charlevoix has been a city where you can walk at night and not be afraid of being harmed; Charlevoix has been a city where one has not had to lock doors for fear of someone stealing and intruding; Charlevoix has been a city of beautiful lakes, well kept parks and year-round fun. Do you want to destroy part of our image?

If you can find it in your heart to help us and help yourself, please mail the money back that has been misplaced. We will sincerely appreciate the money's return.

Charlevoix Outdoors...

Bald eagles' day may come again

...by Burford

To outdoor lovers of any persuasion, whether they be bird watchers, hunters or weekend fishers, there are few more awe-inspiring than the sighting of a bald eagle.

This majestic creature seems to command the attention of the entire forest when it wheels overhead in silent circles of power and grace.

Some would believe that the thrill of seeing a bald eagle in the wild today is articially enhanced by the patriotic symbolism we attach to eagles and by their recent scarcity. To see a bald eagle these days is something for most people to [illegible].

Fact is, the bald eagle stirred man's emotions long before those factors were involved. To Native Americans, whose culture and religion were so deeply entwined with the natural world, the bald eagle stood for many of the same qualities that we associate with it today.

For the eco-activists of the Sixties, the irony of our national symbol edging toward an extinction forced by toxic food sources and dwindling habitat provided a made-to-order cause that opened peoples' eyes to a deteriorating environment.

The case certainly needed [illegible].

The introduction of DDT into the food chain at which the eagle sits atop alone came close to decimating their locations on the shores of Lakes Michigan and Huron.

There has not been an eagle's nest in Charlevoix County for nearly 30 years.

Just two weeks ago, the DNR completed their annual air survey of eagle nesting sites in the upper third of the lower peninsula and the results were encouraging. Although there were no nests, either eagle or osprey, in Charlevoix County again, the toal for the district was up about five percent from last year. Also, young were observed in many of the nests.

Pilot Frank Bennett figures the gradual comeback is due to at least two known factors. One is the ban on DDT which has meant thicker egg shells and greatly improved nesting success. The other is public awareness of the eagles' plight. People are not as apt to disturb nests or feeding grounds as before and anyone caught selling as much as a eagle feather faces a federal rap with a healthy fine.

Current nesting sites were observed in Otsego, Montmorency, Emmet, Cheboygan, Presque Isle and Alpena counties during the survey. But none in Charlevoix.

Local outdoor publisher Glen Sheppard remembers the last eagles nesting in the immediate vicinity as a pair who were yearly visitors to Fisherman's Island until the 1960s. Nowadays, the closest any eagles have been seen to Charlevoix is in the Jordan Valley where Sheppard and DNR chief Howard Tanner spotted three this past spring.

Has anyone else seen bald eagles around here recently? We'd like to know.

While the clear waters of Lake Charlevoix would seem to be decent habitat for bald eagles and osprey, especially in the secluded backwaters and inlets, steady shoreline development and increased boating activity have most likely kept the birds away.

Chances are that Charlevoix County will never again be a home for eagles. The neccessary march of progress will hardly allow the return in this area of the barren expanses to which they are accustomed.

But we should be glad that there are other places, not so far away, where the trend has hopefully been reversed in time, where our children may someday be able to watch an eagle soar into the sun and feel the same exhilaration we have.

Sports Boosters to have meeting Thursday

With the school year about to start and much work to be done, Dr. Donald Trimper, president of the Charlevoix Sports Boosters, has called an important meeting of the organization to be held at the high school cafeteria at 8 p.m. Thursday.

In calling the meeting Dr. Trimper said "School bond issues, expanded athletic programs, product liability expenses and general inflation have placed unprecedented financial pressure on interscholastic athletic programs, producing in many areas a school sports crisis."

"Recognizing the important role athletics play in our youngsters' educational experience, we are anxious to maintain the quality and diversified programs we enjoy in Charlevoix" he continued, adding that "To this end is dedicated the Charlevoix Sports Boosters Club"

He went on to commend Jim and Faye Alger for their work in keeping the organization alive through some difficult years, adding that their names will always be affiliated with Sports Boosters.

"Now we must all recognize that if we are to meet the growing needs of our athletic-related activities, we must expand our membership base and activity program" he continued. "To succeed, our goals can only be realized with a large, active and dedicated membership. The point is, your participation is needed if the Sports Boosters are to be a success. Only through your participation by expressing your views, supporting your special interest areas and having a part in financial decisions and policy making can this organization continue with the fine support it has given the sports program in the past," Dr. Trimper explained.

A change in the format of the club has been proposed and will be presented for approval. It is proposed that various committees be organized to share in the work load of the group such as membership, public relations, financial steering, projects, by-laws and a board of directors. The projects division would be broken down into sub-committees to work on a variety of projects.

Membership is open to anyone in the community interested in supporting the sports programs in the Charlevoix High School.

"With the local interest in high school sports and with more than 250 boys and girls participating in the various sports offered, we should have a bang-up organization," Dr. Trimper said in conclusion.

The bride and bridegroom have been making their homes in Naples, Fla., but their parents are residents of Charlevoix. They are Mr. and Mrs. Louis McKenzie and Harland Speer and Mrs. [illegible]

The church was decorated with peach gladiolus, pink phlox, and evergreens for the double-ring ceremony, performed by Father Nicholas Meyer.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a bridal costume designed and made by her sister, Dawn McKenzie. It was fashioned with a white satin underlay with Irish crocheted flowered lace overlay. A white satin bow accented the waistline, and the headpiece was a wreath of red sweetheart roses and baby's breath. She carried one long-stemmed red rose sourrounded with baby's breath and tied with white lace.

Music for the ceremony was provided by Prof. August Huybrechts and soloist Mary Ann Cudd.

Mrs. Robb Stebe served the bride as matron of honor. Mrs. Daniel McKenzie, sister-in-law of the bride, and the bride's two sisters, Diana Pathopaidas and Dawn McKenzie, were bridesmaids.

Dawn McKenzie also made the costumes of the attendants. They were strapless long gowns fashioned from a floral print on a white background. The peach, yellow, blue, and green colors of the print were accented by yellow satin ribbons around the waists and peach-colored rose chokers. Each attendant carried a single peach-colored carnation with fern greenery

Kevin Speer served his brother as best man, while Dan McKenzie, Robb Stebe, and Ron Paul were groomsmen. Dave Taylor and Jeff Wellman seated the guests

A reception, hosted by the bride's parents, was held at the American Legion Hall following the wedding. The rehearsal dinner, hosted by the bridegroom's father, was held at Jonathan's Landing in Oden

The newlyweds are now at home in Naples.

Hinds-Pierce

Peach and white gladiolus decorated the United Methodist Church of Charlevoix for the wedding of Karen Anne Hinds and Barry D. Pierce on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 16.

The bride is the daughter of Spencer C. Hinds and Barbara D Hinds of Bloomfield Hills, and the bridegroom is the son of Claude and Doris Pearsall of Charlevoix.

The Rev. Austin Regier performed the double-ring ceremony, in which the bride was given in marriage by her father

The bride's gown was of dacron polyester organza, fashioned with an Empire bodice accented with lace and narrow white satin ribbon, lace and ruffled neckline, and bishop sleeves with ruffled edge cuffs. The A-line skirt featured lace and a wide flounce with ruffled edge. A Juliet cap of lace held the fingertip illusion veil, which was also edged in lace.

The bride's bouquet was made of silk lillies of the valley, white roses, and peach carnations.

Music for the ceremony consisted of traditional hymns, "Hawaiian Wedding Song", "We've Only Just Begun, "Laura's Theme", "The Wedding Song", Lohengrin's Processional and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" Recessional.

Catherine Thurston of Three Rivers served the bride as matron of honor, and Sheryl Bergmann served as bridesmaid. They wore floor-length peach floral gowns with matching short jackets and carried baskets of silk flowers in various shades of peach and white.

Father R. Dale Magoon performed the double-ring ceremony before approximately 200 guests. Candelabra and a unity candle with a floral arrangement of garden flowers graced the altar, and white bows with roses and baby's breath marked the pews. The bows were made by the bride.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown fashioned with a raised waist, Mandarin collar, and long, fitted sleeves. The bodice front and back featured a see-through circular yoke of Point Des'pre, and the rest of the bodice and the sleeves were also of Point Des'pre. The collar, bodice front and back, and the sleeves from wrist upward were trimmed with Venise lace, rhinestones, and seed and oat pearls. The full skirt of chiffonet extended into a full chapel-length train falling from a Watteau effect in back.

The finger tip veil was of bridal illusion, edged with silk Venise fleurettes attached to an open Camelot cap, overlaid with silk Venise and adorned with rhinestones and seed pearls.

There were also two ringbearers – Chris Castelein, nephew of the bridegroom, and Jason Parrish, nephew of the bride.

The rehearsal dinner party was held Friday evening at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

Guests attended the ceremony from Sandusky and Castalia, Ohio and many Michigan cities.

The newlyweds departed on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, Atlantic City, and Washington, D. C. Upon their return, they will make their home on Mercer Blvd. in a house built by the bridegroom, who is a licensed builder and co-owner of Boss [illegible].

Chx Market Livestock Club set for sale

This is the big week for the Charlevoix Market Livestock Club.

This is the week that the 12 area 4-H members have been waiting for since last year when they all purchased young steers and began the arduous task of grooming them for the show ring.

At 10 a.m. Tuesday, the animals will go before the judges. On the basis of showmanship and carcass evaluation, ribbons will be handed out to the best entries.

At 3 p.m. Thursday, however, the real excitement comes when the project animals are auctioned to the highest bidders in what has become an annual event that rewards the 4-H'ers for their work and gives several local businesses and individuals a chance to purchase top quality beef on the hoof with the money going to a good cause.

According to Charles Elzinga of Charlevoix, an advisor to the club and organizer of the auction, several large corporations and local businessmen get into the action each year. Some buy the project cattle for their own use while others do it to further the program and donate the carcass to a hospital or nursing home

This auction is unique from similar ones held in other states, said Elzinga, in that the purchasers are free to do anything they want with the animals. The only stipulation in the auction is that the youngsters receive market price or higher for their efforts.

The sale and auction will be held in the livestock area of the Emmet County Fair in Petoskey.

Fashion Cents

By Mary Lee Huber

For several weeks now, all I've heard is, "where has the summer gone?" Well I for one know. It's gone into many hours of hard work on the Courier, co-ordinating fashion shows, canning and freezing my garden produce and a political campaign. Too late I've realized summer's almost over and it's time to think about going back-to-school, heading South, and cooler weather. And time for all of us to re-consider our fall and winter wardrobe

For me it's fairly easy It takes about two hours to re-organize my closet and a constant awareness of what's happening with the fashion trends in order to update my wardrobe on a limited budget. How do I do it? Well here are three of my well kept secrets.

1. Never, never throw any piece of your wardrobe away Why? Because fashion trends are just that . . . trends. Anything that is not a classic will eventually return and become a "new" fashion essential. Of course a major pre-requisite is to keep your figure intact. For example several years ago in eighth grade, a friend gave me a black blazer that was accented with rhinestone buttons At the time it was passe. But you all know that recently black and rhinestones have been a big fashion must. So I pulled the blazer out of my closet and had it cleaned, and didn't have to spend a penny on a new trend

2. Avoid frivolous purchases and fashion fads, because they can become costly mistakes.

Here's what to do Before you shop, empty your closet and drawers and separate what you have into piles: blouses in one; pullovers in another, cardigans in another; pants, two piece dresses, one-piece dresses, and skirts all in their separate piles. You have probably heard this advice before, and chances are you may have been discouraged by the lack of "go-togethers" you were able to come up with. Rest assured that this time you will be able to come up with some pretty terrific combinations ---- if only because "being in fashion" has more flexibility these days and is more than ever an individual look

Start "playing" with the clothing piles you have Try to think of all the combinations, and don't just imagine, hold them up side by side Now that you know what you have, remember that the newest shades and colors plus styles that are in for the season; think of what they'll go with in your wardrobe and go out and buy to update and existing wardrobe

3. Classics are Forever . . . Classics are basics. They are the lifesavers, (moneysavers), the backbone of any good wardrobe; the clothes that never go out of style

A classic stays with you for life and you'll probably pass it on. Recently Americans have re-learned that it's quality not quantity that counts. OK ... so that new blazer can cost from $100 to $500. Divide that by a lifetime and the result is pennies. Besides blazers, some other classic examples are: Hacking jackets. Fair Isle sweaters, crewneck Shetland sweaters, Irish Tweed turtlenecks, tailored skirts, and basic black, brown or navy pants with a medium leg width

So whether your headed back-to-school, South or are just re-vamping a fall and winter wardrobe, keep these three principles in mind. And before you buy anything new, be sure it's in a color that will go with clothes that you already have.

P.S. Sweaters are a great addition to any wardrobe and again a hot item this fall

Slow Down You Move Too Fast

By Lizette Belanger

It's that time of year again. The autumn tingle sways us out of our thongs and into our sneakers and running shorts and we're ready to plunge into the stream of runners once again.

Painfully we push ourselves to limits that exceed the abilities of our bodies and wonder why we feel like we've been in a fool's paradise. Slow down all of you impatient runners. Look at it this way...According to Tim Fischer, owner of Le Cycliste "your running should be a slow, progressive endurance build-up.

Tim claims, that it takes a least six weeks to condition yourself into becoming religious with your running.

Every runner is a beginner," says Tim. "Start out with a fast walk, the cardio-vascular workout is just as stimulating as short sections of jogging."

More importantly Tim discourages judging your success at running by time or distance. Enjoy the psychological affect of running. Stop trying to beat the clock, don't force yourself to the next stop sign a mile down the road. Slow down you move too fast, you got to make your running last. Here's a fact to play with -- 80% of the runners that schedule their running in the evening inevitably box up their NIKES.

Early in the morning when the alarm stirs you out of bed there's no time to make-up excuses why you shouldn't go running. Plan a morning venture.

Get smart this fall and condition your body through a training process and I'll see you out at sunrise.

AFTER THE STORMS...
A note of thanks to our customers.
Disaster struck Michigan.
Four separate storms with winds of up to 80 miles per hour rocked the Consumers Power Company service area between July 15 and July 20. More than 250,000 of our customers were without electric power at some time during the week. The storms brought down some 2,100 spans of high-voltage wire, damaged almost 200 utility poles, burned out some 275 transformers and affected more than 10,000 secondary and service wires.
To deal with the storms, line and tree trimming crews moved around the state from one damaged area to another and put in exhausting hours in each. Crewmen worked with only 4 or 5 hours rest. Some slept on cots in meeting rooms and school auditoriums. Meals were fast, clean clothes a luxury.
There was much to do. In some cases, a single repair restored power to many customers, but in other areas, restoration work was a lengthy, almost house-to-house effort.
Even now, with power flowing again to all our customers, the cleanup is continuing. Temporary connections must be made permanent and the diversion of Company crews to that effort will mean delays of up to four weeks for new customers awaiting service.
To our new customers ... and to all our customers affected by the Week of Storms ... we express sincere gratitude for your patience and cooperation. Efficient, reliable service is what our business is about ... especially [illegible]
The Week of Storms was one of those times.

WILL YOUR CHILDREN BE READY TO GO TO SCHOOL?

It will soon be school time again, when all that summer fun and freedom will come to a screeching halt, and assuming that their clothes and the other essentials are ready, let's take a look at the children themselves. The older ones will be returning to a routine from which they have been away for three months, while the beginners will be introduced to the strange new environment of the classroom. In either case, can you trust them to behave and show the proper respect for the teacher, the bus driver, the crossing guard and yes, their classmates? You should be able to, if you have trained them right, particularly with the aid of the Sunday school at your House of Worship. There is no better preparation for school [illegible]

Building permits take dramatic drop

The number of building permits issued in Charlevoix County in July dropped to 47 from the June high of 76.

While no definite reason for the drop could be determined, Building Inspector Howard Carson told the Courier that his department issued "quite a few" partial permits which do not show up in the monthly report. He also said that many building projects on Beaver Island are not included because he has not been able to get over there to review the plans.

Carson explained that when his department is extremely busy, as it has been this summer, the department often issues partial permits, which allow the builders to start excavations and lay the groundwork while the building plans are being reviewed by the Building Inspector.

The permits issued cover building starts in all parts of the County, with no great flurry of construction in any one area. Six permits were issued for the City of East Jordan, the largest number for any municipality. Five were issued in Hayes Township, Melrose Township, the City of Charlevoix, and the City of Boyne City. These were followed by Marion Township, four; Bay Township, three; Boyne Valley Township, three; Chandler Township, three; Evangeline Township, three; Eveline Township, two; Charlevoix Township, one; Norwood Township, one; Peaine Township, one; and Boyne Falls, one.

Among the permits were 13 for new residences, 11 for residedntial additions and remodeling, five for residential garages, four for residential decks and porches, and six for residential outbuildings. In the commercial category, one permit was issued for a new building and three for additions and remodeling. There were also three permits for mobile homes and [illegible]

No. AB 18 (Sub No. 33F)

NOTICE OF INTENT TO ABANDON AND TO DISCONTINUE SERVICE

The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company hereby gives notice that on or about September 16, 1980 it intends to file with the Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D.C. 20423, an application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity permitting the abandonment and discontinuance of service on the following lines of railroad known as: Traverse City and Petoskey Subdivisions from Valuation Station 133+00 (Milepost 113.88) at Manistee, Mi. to Valuation Station 19885+91 (Milepost 247.98) at Bay View, Mi. [illegible] of 134.30 miles in Manistee, Benzie, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Antrim, Charlevoix, and Emmet Counties, Mi., and the Suttons Bay Subdivision from Valuation Station 3784+44 (Milepost 0.00) at Traverse City, Mi. to Valuation Station 3638+00 (Milepost 2.77) at Rennies, Mi., a Distance of 2.77 miles in Grand Traverse and Leelanau Counties, Mi. The lines for which the abandonment and discontinuance application will be filed include the stations of Wealthy at Milepost (M.P.) 117.8, Douglas at M.P. 120.3, Norwalk at M.P. 123.8, Chief Lake at M.P. 127.1, Kaleva at M.P. 131.8; Thompsonville at M.P. 142.6, Bendon at M.P. 152.2, Interlochen at M.P. 156.8, Grawn at M.P. 159.7, State Hospital at M.P. 168.7, Traverse City at M.P. 169.5, Rennies at M.P. 2.5, Bates at M.P. 178.5, Williamsburg at M.P. 180.4, Barker Creek at M.P. 185.4, Rapid City at M.P. 190.3, Alden at M.P. 193.3; Bellaire at M.P. 205.3; Central Lake at M.P. 213.0, Harpers at M.P. 218.2, Ellsworth at M.P. 220.0, Charlevoix at M.P. 231.0; Lamson at M.P. 243.2, Petoskey at M.P. 247.0, and Bay View at M.P. 248.0 (all stations located in Michigan).

The reasons for the proposed abandonment are that the operation and ownership of the lines has not been profitable, the lines require rehabilitation and the involved assets can be better utilized by applicant.

The lines of railroad have appeared on the system diagram map in Category 1 since April 28, 1980.

The interest of railroad employees will be protected by the imposition of Oregon Short Line conditions and/or such other conditions as the Interstate Commerce Commission may deem appropriate.

1. File with the Interstate Commerce Commission written comments containing:
(a) Exact name and address of the commenting party.
(b) Brief statement of interest in the abandonment and discontinuance proceeding.
(c) Specific statement of position and summary of evidence with regard to any or all of the following:

(5) Recommended provisions for protection of the interests of employees.

Written comments will be considered by the Commission in all proceedings in developing conditions and in determining whether to conduct an investigation on its own motion. In the event an investigation is conducted, then the commenting party may participate in the proceeding as its interests may appear.

2. File with the Interstate Commerce Commission a petition requesting that the application and proposed abandonment and discontinuance be investigated.

The petition to investigate shall be in the form of a verified statement, and at minimum, contain:
(a) Identification of petitioner including its name, address, and business.

(d) Any rebuttal of information or material submitted by applicants, and
(e) Request for oral hearing and reasons therefore if desired.

Upon receipt of a petition to investigate, the Commission shall determine the extent of the investigation to be instituted. Those parties filing petitions to investigate should be prepared to participate actively in either oral hearings or via the submission of additional material in the form of verified statements. Parties seeking information concerning the filing of petitions should refer to 49 CFR 1121.38.

Petitions to investigate and written comments should indicate the proceeding designation No. AB 18 (Sub No. 33F) and should be filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D.C. 20423, no later than October 21, 1980. Interested persons may file either a written comment or a petition to investigate with the Commission to become a party to this abandonment and discontinuance proceeding. A copy of each petition to investigate or written comment shall be served upon the representatives of the applicant, Rene J. Gunning and Peter J. Shudtz (1131), Chessie System, Suite 2204, 100 N. In the event a petition to investigate, prepared in accordance with the above instructions, is filed, then the commission will conduct an investigation of the abandonment and discontinuance. Written comments filed with the Commission will be considered by the Commission in all proceedings in developing conditions and in determining whether the Commission should conduct an investigation on its own motion in the event no petition to investigate is filed. Additionally, if an investigation is conducted, then parties filing comments may participate in the investigation as their interests may appear.

Persons desiring further information concerning abandonment procedures may contact the Interstate Commerce Commission's Section of Finance, Office of Proceedings, or refer to the full abandonment and discontinuance regulations at 49 CFR 1121. Persons desiring information concerning financial assistance for the continued operation or acquisition of the involved line should contact the Commission's Rail Services Planning Office. The carrier's representative to whom inquiries may be made is A.B. Affuso (314) 100 N. Charles St., Baltimore, MD 21201. A copy of the application will be available for public inspection on or after September 16, 1980 at The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company's stations, located at: 250 First Street, Manistee, Mi., 346 Freeman Ave., S.W., Traverse City, Mi., and 325 Cherry Street, Charlevoix, Mi. Carved Stones

The ignorance in the Middle Ages of the art of gem engraving often induced the belief that engraved stones were the work of nature

A striking instance of this was the celebrated stone over the figure of the Mother of Jesus on the tomb of St Elizabeth of Marburg On this gem appeared two heads touching each other and it was, according to tradition not a work of art but a freak of the Sculptress Nature An oft repeated legend tells us that a former Elector of Mainz offered the whole district of Amonberg for this costly stone which had been stolen It is in reality a fine onyx engraved with the heads of Castor and Pollux

County to start plan on solid waste disposal

By PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix County Planning Department will soon begin the task of writing a plan for the disposal of solid waste in Charlevoix County.

The problem of what to do with the ever-increasing amount of garbage and rubbish generated by local citizens has been in limbo for some time while the Department of Natural Resources worked out guidelines for disposal facilities that will meet their requirements.

These guidelines have now been spelled out, and county officials feel that they can devise a plan that will meet DNR approval

State law requires that each county undertaking the writing of a solid waste disposal plan be advised by a special 13-member board, to be appointed by the County Board of Commissioners.

That board must consist of four persons from the solid waste management field, two environmentalists, one representative each from the county, the townships, and the cities, one representative from the Northwest Region, and three representatives at large.

Anyone desiring to serve on the board, or wishing to nominate another person for a position on the board, should present the name to Clyde Cunningham, Chairman of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, County Building, Charlevoix.

Drainage pond fence too high

Five-foot fencing has been erected on the fourth side of the drainage pond area adjacent to the newest units of the May St. Apartments, (CC Aug. 6, 1980). City Manager James Brinker has indicated that this will prompt an ordinance complaint to be filed in District Court since a variance has not been sought from the Planning Commission to allow a fence higher than 42 inches. Fencing on the other three sides of the drainage pond is 42 inches high as dictated by the ordinance.

Attorney John Michael, representing the developers of the apartment, said he would be meeting soon with members of the County Board of Supervisors and the Drainage Commissioner to try and work out a settlement of the drainage pond issue. Opposition to the pond has been mounted by neighbors and city council member Shirley Roloff on grounds that it is unsightly and unsafe.

Windmill generator passes tests

Bill Huber's windmill generator works, (CC July 16, 1980). The home-built system, designed by Huber, has passed its shakedown tests since its erection in early July and has been turning frequently enough to generate sufficient current for home use.

Huber now plans to continue work on further wiring and storage capacity for the system.

Sidewalk sale goes to three days

Sidewalk sale days will last three days with an optional fourth next summer following a decision last week by the Retail Committee of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. Concerns had been raised by the City Council, (CC Aug. 6, 1980) over some stores putting merchandise out early at this year's sale.

The committee voted to hold the sale on a Thursday, Friday and Saturday next year with merchants having the option to continue through Sunday if they wish. In another change, the committee voted to hold the sale the weekend following the [illegible] Art Fair.

Montessori to continue at church

The First Congregational Church of Charlevoix has granted an extension of the lease held by the Montessori day care program to hold classes in the church basement. The lease will be for one year or until the program is able to find suitable quarters elsewhere.

The Montessori program was rejected in its attempt to move into the former Bergman Center on E. Garfield, (CC July 9, 1980), when neighborhood residents objected and the Board of Appeals turned down a special use permit for the program. Classes are set to start again in the church basement in September.

Alumni Club plans tour

The Top of the State Alumni Club of Michigan State University has set plans for its first group tour to Spartan Stadium. Alumni and friends of MSU will leave Petoskey by bus on September 27, 1980 at 8:00 a.m. sharp. An early evening dinner stop is scheduled on the return trip from East Lansing

The Spartans of MSU will meet the Broncos of Western Michigan University in the season opener. It will be the Spartans first gridiron test against new head football coach Chuck "Muddy" Waters.

Because space available on the tour buses is limited to the first 90 persons, reservations should be made as soon as possible, but no later than September 1, 1980. Act now, call Dan Vreeland for reservations at: 1-616-347-8167 (office) or 1-616-347-5934 (home).

Historic Beaver Island

Bill Wagner is DNR island guardian

Life in a one-man DNR office in St. James on Beaver Island would be rather lonely for some people. But to Bill Wagner, it's the good life

Wagner has manned the DNR post for 16 years. The station was established on the island in 1942 to serve mainly as a fire prevention headquarters for Beaver Island and the other smaller islands nearby

Fire prevention is still Wagner's primary duty but he is also responsible for maintaining the thousands of acres of primitive camping area owned by the state on Beaver Island. State land open to campers comprises about one third of the island

This year, for the first time in history, campers are being charged a fee to camp on state land on Beaver Island. In a move that now applies to all previously free state park camp grounds in Michigan, campers pay a $2 fee Although the camping pressure is slightly down on Beaver Island this season, Wagner does not attribute the drop to the new fee policy.

"I don't think a $2 fee is enough to keep people away," said Wagner, "Of all the campers I've approached to collect it this year, I have not received one complaint."

Instead, Wagner thinks that, with the economy the way it is, people just aren't doing much traveling this year.

In his 16 years on Beaver Island, Wagner has not seen a major forest fire. In fact, there has not been a bad one for the past 25 years. If a blaze should get started, however, Wagner thinks he is ready. In his garage at the DNR station, Wagner has a four wheel drive pumper, a tractor-plow and a tilt bed truck to haul it

In a pinch, he could also round up a lot more equipment from the community.

Another hat worn by Bill Wagner is that of game warden. He is deputized by the state to enforce all fish and game laws and takes part in other related activities such as habitat surveys

Hunting pressure on Beaver Island becomes intense only one week of the year - deer season. Last year, 448 hunters took part in the bucks-only hunt on Beaver Island. There has not been a doe season on the island since 1970.

Wagner's expertise and background is in forestry. That was his field when he joined the DNR in 1957. With literally thousands of loggable acres on Beaver Island, it is another of Wagner's jobs to coordinate when, where and how much logging is to be done each year on the public [illegible]

Although most of the logging is done by local firms, sometimes larger companies, such as Louisiana Pacific, contract for sizeable plots.

Despite the rigors of a seven-day-a-week job and the isolation of life on Beaver Island, Bill Wagner would have it no other way

"I love it here," he says. "I wouldn't want to live anywhere else."

C&O abandonment notice renews threat to terminate area rail service

Persistent in its effort to abandon 137 miles of Northern Michigan rail lines, the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company has indicated that, on September 16, it will file once more to discontinue service between Manistee and Bay View.

Citing the unprofitability of the lines, the expense of their upkeep and the need for funds elsewhere in the system, the C & O issued notice last week of its intent to seek permission from the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) to abandon the trackage.

Affected by the proposed abandonment would be several cities in Manistee, Benzie, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

About three freight trains a week now travel through the City of Charlevoix and across the swivel bridge spanning the Pine River channel.

The C & O has filed abandonment notices at least three times in the recent past, the last being two years ago. At that time their request was turned down following the efforts of rail users and rail travel supporters to petition the ICC for continuance of service.

A similar coalition is expected to mount opposition to the latest C & O [illegible].

Jerry Smith, head of Michigan Maple Block Company in Petoskey and a past president of the Northern Michigan Rail Users Association, indicated that the association will be taking up the matter at its September 11 meeting in [illegible].

Smith said that the association will most likely file a petition with the ICC requesting that the application for abandonment be investigated. An October 21, 1980 deadline has been set for the filing of such a petition.

Following acceptance of the petition, the ICC will either hold a hearing on the matter or solicit further written information before acting on the C & O request.

Smith pointed out that, although area rail use has dwindled substantially from past eras, several local firms still depend on it for shipping purposes.

"We cannot afford to let the rail lines go," said Smith, "Trucking costs are getting prohibitive for many companies. Obviously the railroad is the best alternative for the future and we should be getting together to support it now."

Smith mentioned several local interests served by the railroad including Consumers Power Big Rock nuclear generating plant to which radioactive fuel can be transported without use of heavily traveled roadways. He also pointed out that the large industries in this area depend greatly on rail service to transport heavy equipment.

One widely discussed answer to the problem of inaccessability of the railroad to potential users without spur lines of their own has been "piggybacking".

That process involves the use of large container units that can be hauled by semi-tractors from local plants to rail yards where they are loaded onto train cars. The advantages of piggybacking are that trucks can still be used for short hauls and railroads for long haul shipping.

Beth Andrus, president of the Michigan Northern Railroad headquartered in Cadillac, says that her company has sanctioned a survey of the feasibility of an expanded piggybacking system in Northen Michigan and that the early results are [illegible].

She acknowledges that Charlevoix, for instance, currently bears out the C & O claim of unprofitability since there are only an average of about 60 train car loadings a year among local rail users.

The true potential of area use has not been tapped, however, according to Andrus. The C & O has not actively pursued such venues as piggybacking and has thus aided its own demise, she claims.

Michigan Northern, a partially subsidized rail line with a relatively small regional service area, is presently studying the possible acquisition of rail lines into the northern reaches of the lower peninsula. The use of piggybacking, says Andrus, figures significantly in their plans.

Rail passenger service has been discontinued in Northern Michigan for many years but Smith says it could be brought back with proper promotion.

"The C & O lines north from Manistee are some of the most beautiful and scenic rail lines in the country," he said, "With gasoline prices forcing people to drive their cars less, improved railroad passenger service could be the greatest thing to happen to tourism in this area in a long time."

Any individuals interested in commenting on the C & O's intention to abandon its service between Manistee and Bay View are invited to send written comments to the ICC, Washington, D.C., 20423. Such statements should be filed no later than October 21.

Where teachers were taught

The old Charlevoix County Normal School trained many young women to teach in area schools until it was terminated in the 1920s. The school, Charlevoix's only institution of higher learning, was located in the former elementary school building, occupying space on the second floor. It is shown above in a vintage photo. Courier reporter Peg Ohle, to commemmorate the start of the school year, found some local people who attended and taught at the County Normal. Her story is on page three of today's Courier.

Chapman won't quit, vows write-in drive

Although soundly defeated in the August 5 Republican primary election for Charlevoix County sheriff, Wayne Chapman has vowed to carry on his personal cause against nominee and current sheriff George T. Lasater

Chapman has declared himself a write-in candidate for the office of sheriff in the upcoming November election and says he is still actively seeking the post.

Of the five candidates on the August 5 primary ballot, Chapman received the fewest votes with a total of 149. Lasater won the balloting with 1,692 votes.

Chapman said last week, however, that he expects a groundswell of support to develop when the details and outcome of a current court case involving him and a former sheriff's deputy on Beaver Island are made public.

The legal dispute started with the claim by Chapman that Paul Welke, who had been running a gasoline and oil distributorship on Beaver Island for Chapman, was guilty of mismanagement and had kept inadequate records. Paul's father, William Welke, a Charlevoix County sheriff's deputy, was also named in the action which included claims of gas tank theft and trepass.

When Chapman was unsuccessful in his attempt to prosecute the Welkes in criminal court, he sent a letter to all Charlevoix County commissioners and to the township supervisors claiming the Welkes were guilty of the charges he listed and that he had not been dealt with justly

That letter prompted a defamation suit filed by the Welkes against Chapman.

Judge Martin B. Breighner presided over negotiations between Chapman and the Welkes and eventually approved an offer by the Welkes to pay Chapman $2,500 and withdraw their suit if Chapman would, in turn, drop his action.

Chapman turned down the offer and opted for a jury trial which was waived by Breighner although Chapman claims he authorized no such waiver. In a May 22 decision, Breighner ruled in favor of William and Paul Welke and awarded them each damages of $12,500 for defamation.

Chapman was represented before Judge Breighner by Attorney Richard H. Scholl of Petoskey whose firm had successfully opposed a business venture involving Breighner in an earlier, unrelated court action.

Scholl maintains, in a motion now awaiting action, that Breighner should have disqualified himself from the case because of prejudice against Scholl and that Chapman should have a new trial.

Chapman draws Lasater into the picture saying that the sheriff provided him with no cooperation or assistance in his efforts to pursue the case against the Welkes.

Says Chapman, "I realize that it is always hard for a write-in candidate to upset an incumbent and I am not optimistic about my chances of being sheriff. I came into this race to make a point, though, and am willing and ready to take the office of sheriff if the voters support me."

A public demand for Lasater's withdrawal from the race has been made by Chapman who added that he plans to initiate an intensive campaign starting September 1

School bells set to ring; teachers are ready to go

By FRAN MARTIN

Charlevoix Public Schools will open Wednesday, Sept. 3 for the 1980-81 school year Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren has announced.

At this time, all but one position on the faculty has been filled. That position is for Home Economics and English, he said. This vacancy occurred when the instructor hired earlier this summer, Sally Kahle of Fruitport, notified Supt. VanWieren that she would be unable to fill the position because her husband had decided to remain in southern Michigan and work on his degree. It is felt that the position will be filled by the time classes begin next week.

Though there are no new names on the list of faculty members, there have been some changes within the system and others returning to former positions.

Among the latter is Mrs. Mary Seaman who taught in the high school for three years prior to 1971 and who is now returning to teach English.

Mercedes Mathers, art teacher at the K-6 school for the past 10 years, will now be at the high school and Beth McGraw, a recent Central Michigan University graduate who did her practice teaching here and who worked with the art department the second semester last year, will take over the position in the Elementary School.

James Glynn, who substituted at the high school last year, will now teach Sixth Grade Science at the Middle School. An Eastern Michigan graduate with B.S. and M.A. degrees, he taught at the Heilbronn American School at Heilbronn, Germany, for three years and at Romulus for four years prior to coming to Charlevoix.

Another change finds John Mills who taught Building Trades come into the system as an Industrial Arts instructor. A second teacher became necessary because of the interest in the course David Anderson who has been with the Building Trades program for several years will now take it over.

Still other changes will find David Moyer going to the High School to teach Physical Education and Health and Norman Probert replacing him in that position at the Middle School. Probert formerly taught these subjects at the high school.

Vane H. Smith is the Principal at the High School and David J. Smith the Assistant Principal.

The faculty will include the following: Barry Anderson, Vocational Education, Coop. Dist. Ed., General Business; David Anderson, Building Trades, Voc. Custodial-Maintenance Services; Kenneth Bartley, Mathematics; Charles Bentley, Counseling, Behavioral Science; K. Dale Burge, Athletic Director, Social Studies; Donald Carey, Social Studies; Brian Carta, Industrial Arts; Edwin Crook, Math.; Sandra Fassett, Business Education

Doris Robinson, Business Education; Mary Seaman, English; Pamela Smith, Learning Center; Peter Speiles, Science; Steven Stargardt, Vocal Music; Glen Taylor, Math; Dennis VanGuilder, English, Social Studies; Yvonne Wendt, French.

At the Middle School where Vincent Chew is the principal the faculty includes: Barbara Bump, Social Studies (6th); Dennis Carr, Learning Center; Barbara Cook, Home Economics (7th, 8th), Condit Drury, Counseling Center; Halbert Evans, Reading; Toni Felter, Physical Education (6th, 7th, 8th), Reading; Kay Fiedorek, Math (8th); Michael Filkins, Band (7th, 8th), Teri Fisher, Math (7th), Reading; James Glynn, Science (6th); Kathleen Gowell, English (6th)

Buying and Selling Real Estate by Gene Steele

A REALISTIC APPROACH

During inflation (and we're in it), there's an excellent case for investing in real estate. Most of the investment is paid for with borrowed money. Someone else's fixed-dollar savings provides your mortgage money. Even though home prices have risen several notches each year, a mortgage loan is the only way the average consumer can borrow long term money.

This, then, is your big chance to turn inflation to your advantage. Your mortgage gives you full-price dollars to work with today. You then pay them back with cheaper dollars you will be earning for the next 20 to 30 years. On top of that, if your home increases in value by a very conservative 6% per year, it will double its value every 12 years.

This isn't a cynical approach. It's realistic. In fact it's one on the main reasons why many wealthy individuals continue to make big real estate investments. And you can do the same with a home that you own and need anyway.

"REOMAR IV" was one of a successive number of yachts owned by R.E. Olds and operated from the huge boathouse which later became the Browe Marina. Kindergarten bus run

The special bus run for the benefit of all kindergarten children who will be entering school for the first time this fall has been scheduled for Thursday, Aug. 28, Vincent Olach, Business Manager, has announced.

The buses will depart from the bus garage at 9 a.m. Thursday and, following designated routes, will stop at the home of every child registered for kindergarten.

Parents are asked to be present at the time the child meets his or her bus driver who will then take the child on a tour of the bus, explain bus etiquette, answer any questions the child might have regarding the bus.

Starting school can be a traumatic experience for a child even though it is something he has looked forward to with pleasure. By acquainting the child with his new mode of transportation we feel it will help make the experience a happy one Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren explained.

Parents were asked to bring their kindergartners to school on Sept. 3, the first day of school, and, after taking them to their assigned classrooms, to return to their home.

Terri Howard, above, was one of the Charlevoix County 4-H members who participated in the state horse show last Tuesday.

Charlevoix County 4-H horse projects participate in state show

Seven Charlevoix County 4-H members competed in the 1980 State 4-H Horse Show at Michigan State University on Tuesday, August 19. 4-Hers from across the state traveled to East Lansing to participate in the show.

The annual horse show gives youngsters the opportunity to observe and compete against horse project members from other Michigan counties.

Participants from Charlevoix County included Sheila Michaels, Terri Howard and Kelly Kenifeck with Patsy Puroll, Cinda Crozier and Jenny Michaels as alternates.

More than 200 classes were judged at the day long event. Classes ranged from Western and English riding to trail classes and showmanship. In addition to various competitions, the show allowed participants to learn horse show management. Nearly all of the 75 horse show officials are volunteers from 4-H clubs across the state.

Olds biography to highlight Historical Society meeting

The September meeting of the Charlevoix Historical Society will feature a review of the recently published biography of R. E. Olds, longtime summer resident of Charlevoix.

The meeting is scheduled for Tuesday evening, Sept. 2, at 8 p.m. in the Harsha House at 103 State St.

Eleanor Carson will present the program, based on George S. May's new book, "R. E. Olds: Auto Industry Pioneer."

Olds was one of several pioneer Michigan automobile makers who maintained summer homes at Pine Point and in Charlevoix. He was an avid yachtsman and is remembered by many local residents for his devotion to that avocation. Glenn Snider has recalled some of his experiences when he served as a messboy and deck-hand on Olds' yacht during seven summers, making it possible to finance his college education.

Everyone is invited to the meeting, especially those who may have anecdotes to relate about Olds, or pictures that may bear on the story of his life.

Bruce Bergmann, left, presents a check for $200 to Lisa Bergmann, winner of the now annual Odd Fellows Scholarship. Bruce is the Noble Grand of the Round Lake Lodge No. 293 which, starting this year, will award an $800 college scholarship to a relative of a lodge member each year. The money is awarded in four $200 installments. Lisa is planning to attend Ferris State College and major in pharmacy.

Low cost firewood to be available

Area citizens with limited incomes may be eligible to receive firewood at a nominal cost through a program sponsored jointly by the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) and Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency.

The firewood project is primarily an on-site work experience and classroom training for forest management techniques, through CETA.

However, the end product is firewood, and that will be made available to qualified persons who apply for it.

To qualify, a single person not living on a farm must have a total annual income not exceeding $4,737, and those living on a farm must have a total annual income not exceeding $4,062.

$1,525 for each additional member may be added to each non-farm family, and $1,285 for each additional member of a farm family.

A charge of $10 per cord will be made for the firewood, which will be delivered by CETA crews.

Application blanks and further information may be obtained from Bill Knapp at Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency, phone 347-9070, or Jeannie Stetz at the Wood Training Program Boyne Falls office, phone [illegible].

County Normal was city's own college 60 years ago

Mrs. Ethelyn Edwards

With the start of the new school year, many Charlevoix area young people are leaving for colleges and universities, and some of them will be studying to be teachers.

Sixty years ago, they could have remained in Charlevoix and received enough education to teach at least in a country school.

That's when the Charlevoix County Normal School was in operation. The Normal School took high school graduates and gave them a year's training in elementary school subject matters and methods of teaching. Then the Normal School graduates went forth to teach in the many rural schools that were a significant part of life in northern Michigan until the consolidation of school districts within the last few years.

One who remembers the Charlevoix County Normal School well is Ethelyn Morrison Edwards, who taught there from 1918 through 1920.

Mrs. Edwards was a "critic teacher" which means she taught students how to teach, then witnessed and criticized their teaching performances. The Normal School students "practiced" on the young boys and girls who were attending elementary school in Charlevoix.

The Normal School occupied a couple of rooms on the second floor of the elementary school building, which was located where the present middle school now stands.

Mrs. Edwards recalls that there were nine members of the 1920 graduating class. Fifty years later, six of them returned for a golden anniversary class re-union. Two years earlier, seven of them had returned for the first re-union the class ever had.

Members of the class of 1920 were Mae Tilley of Beaver Island; Beryl McDonald and her sister, Dorothy McDonald of East Jordan, Lillian Thorn of East Jordan, Ruth Whitney of Central Lake; Alda Emery of Charlevoix; Leone McNeill of Charlevoix, Marian Meech of Charlevoix; and Irene Boyle of Beaver Island.

Mrs. Edwards, who had graduated from Michigan State Normal College at Ypsilanti, was paid $900 a year for teaching at the Charlevoix County Normal School. She left to take a teaching position in Battle Creek, but before she left, she became engaged to Ed Edwards of Charlevoix. Her subsequent marriage to Edwards meant the end of her teaching career, because, in those days, married women were not permitted to teach.

The best information available indicates that the last class graduated from the Charlevoix County Normal School in 1924. Among its graduates still living in the area is Mrs. Hilda [illegible].

Knight on the Town

Thoughts on a waning summer

Like a great bear, fattened by the season of plenty and ready for a long winter's rest, the summer of '80 this week lumbers toward a quiet conclusion

Labor Day weekend marks a yearly change of life in summer resort country. In these parts, it is no less important a holiday than Christmas and is anxiously anticipated by many people a full three or four months beforehand.

To different people, Labor Day has come to mean different things, none of which, strangely, have anything to do with its original reason for being. Just as Memorial Day now serves as little more than the whistle for the summer kickoff, Labor Day has become the final gun. Little is remembered by the average person of the meaning its originators intended

College and high school students finishing summer jobs get loose and loony about this time each year. Three months of bowing and scraping for the tip that always seemed so meager or to the foreman who could never be pleased are now behind them. It's Drink, drink and be merry for tommorrow we register for classes!"

Deep down, we all must envy these soldiers of summer. They taste the rigors of the working world for three months and then retire for the rest of the year to the contemplative life of academia. Would that we could all chuck our jobs on Monday and move [illegible].

To those owners and bosses whose stock in trade leaves with the last Illinois plate disappearing over the southern horizon, the stillness of Labor Day always comes too soon. As they compare the balance sheets with those of seasons past, they can't help but second guess. What if it hadn't rained on that weekend that was so great last year? What if the plumbing would've lasted through August?

'Tis a wild, wicked game making a twelve month living in a four month period. Only the strong survive.

For the summer residents, those who arrive in June and last the duration, Labor Day comes with a melancholy sadness. As sails are furled and clothes are packed, thoughts hearken back to the good times had over the summer. A glass or two is raised, pledges are made to keep in touch over the winter and it is goodbye for another year

In their minds, the sunsets and beach parties are safely stowed away to be recalled on some snowy day in some busier place.

Perhaps it is the natives, though, those who call the north country home, to whom Labor Day has the greatest impact. The past three months have required patience during downtown traffic snarls; tolerance of the vacationing, carefree masses; and understanding of the importance to everyone of the temporary inconvenience.

To them, the end of the siege is at hand

By Monday afternoon, the streets will again be clear and a deadening quiet will settle over the campgrounds and parklands. The solitude that draws people to live in the arboreal north will reign again. That atmosphere of peace and beauty which has been generously shared with those less fortunate for the past three months is now returned intact

To them, Labor Day brings a sigh of relief that next summer is a full nine months away

A Prayer to Ponder

from the Michigan Farm Bureau

The Des Moines Register recently printed a prayer that we believe is worth sharing. No doubt many farmers have wondered about the same things the author writes here:

"As farmers and ranchers, dear God, give us wisdom and patience to understand why a pound of T-bone steak at $1.80 is high, but a 3-ounce cocktail at $2.20 is not.

"And a 50-cent cup of soft drink at the ball game is cheap, but a 20-cent glass of milk for breakfast is inflationary.

"And, Lord, help me to understand why $5 for a ticket to the picture show is a bargain but $3 for a bushel of wheat is unthinkable.

"Cotton is too high at 65 cents a pound, but a $20 shirt is on sale for $18.50.

"And corn is too steep at 3 cents worth in a box of flakes, but the flakes are just right at 50 cents a serving.

"And, also, Lord, help me understand why I have to give an easement to the gas company so they can cross my property with their gas lines and then double the price of gas.

"And, also, dear God, help me to understand the consumer who drives by my field and scoffs at me for driving a $30,000 tractor that he built so he could make money and drive down that right-of-way they took from me to build a road on, so he could go hunting and skiing.

"Thank you, God, for your past guidance and help. And please help me make sense of it all."

Successful season

According to the papers, the 1980 summer tourist season is shaping up as the second best on record, which is mildly surprising considering the condition of the Michigan economy.

Gasoline prices are near record highs, although they have been dropping as consumption tapers off. Almost a quarter million Michigan auto workers are on long-term layoff. Inflation continues to demolish big chunks of our weekly paychecks.

But the resort industry is booming-due in part to our foundering economy, according to experts in the field.

It seems that in times of economic distress, folks still vacation, but they vacation closer to home. This means that a lot of people who have stopped in Charlevoix this summer normally would have spent their vacations in Europe or other exotic places.

Furthermore, many of our laid-off auto workers are not feeling the effects of the economic downturn yet, thanks to state unemployment compensation and Supplemental Unemployment Benefits (SUB) for their employers. (Actually, employers pay both, but let's not quibble)

Of course a big plus, from the standpoint of the tourist industry, is that laid-off workers have time on their hands to travel. Lots of it. And a good many of them have seen fit to spend at least part of it in Charlevoix. PTL!

Speaking of tourists, have you noticed that our summer people get younger every year? It used to be that most of the folks downtown on a pleasant August evening were middle-aged, or older. Now most of them seem to be in their late teens or early 20s, with a sprinkling of young parents with toddlers.

I have heard speculation that the rock concerts at Castle Farms have had something to do with attracting a younger crowd to Charlevoix, and there is probably something to it. The kids were introduced to Charlevoix via Castle Farms, they liked the town and have returned to spend their vacations.

Of course, that's just speculation, but how else do you account for all the young people on Bridge Street?

Unkind friends claim that it's not our visitors who are getting younger. It is I who am getting older. But who needs friends like that?

MY CLOSEST contact with the tourist industry is daughter Katie who is working parttime this summer as concierge at a Charlevoix motel.

Katie says tourists are making their travel dollars go further by doubling up on accommodations. She claims it is not unusual for married couples traveling together to ask to be bedded down in the same room.

Senior citizens - particularly older women - also have no reservations about bunking together. Katie recently wedged five older women into one room, using two double beds and a roll-away.

The more the merrier!

One of the principal attractions at Katie's motel is the water bed. King size, no less.

Quite often, the "water bed room" is the last room to be rented for night, since there is a premium in the price department.

Young people apparently take to the water bed like ducks to you-know-what. But older folks, when they learn that the only room available is equipped with a water bed, dissolve into embarrassed giggles. And they always move on in search of less erotic accommodations.

Needless to say, the water bed room is popular with honeymooners. It is sometimes booked weeks in advance for a Saturday night by the amorous bridegroom.

HOW WAS your summer? Have a nice Labor Day.

Letters: Defense platforms, farewell, thank-you

Both are right

To the Editor

During World War II many idealists believed that we were fighting to establish the Four Freedoms in the world, as proclaimed by Roosevelt and Churchill. Others, equally naive, thought that we were fighting to eliminate military dictatorships from the world. More practical minds thought that we were fighting to prevent the conquest of a European empire by Germany and Italy, and an Asian empire by Japan.

For a long time England had prevented any conquest of the European continent, by any nation, by being the balance of power in Europe

Much of the burden of fighting those conflicts fell upon Americans

After World War II, in an effort to end the endless series of European wars, we supported the peaceful formation of the European common market and West Germany has emerged as the dominant nation in that union

In Asia, Japan has developed into the dominant industrial power, forming alliances with nations that she could not conquer during World War II

Now, the European common market is a stronger economic power than either the Soviet Union or the United States, and is beginning to develop its own political foreign policies in the absence of consistent realistic American leadership, and the Asian alliance is not very far behind.

These developments were aided by American political; financial, and military support because Germany and Japan could not be trusted with military power. We assumed that world domination would gravitate to the strongest military power that survived World War II, either the United States or the Soviet Union. Together, we have armed the world in the belief those who received our arms would follow our policies. They don't.

If "peace through strength" were a valid concept we would have never gone to war with either North Korea or North Vietnam.

Compare our military budgets with theirs.

We have given Vietnam air and naval bases and billions of dollars worth of arms by default, and then sent more arms to their neighbors to defend themselves from Vietnam.

We have armed all sides in the Middle East, with a large amount going to a now unfriendly Iran, and then our political and military leaders tells us that we must spend more on arms because our foes are getting stronger. In the future, we may regret that we did not collaborate with the Soviet Union more often. In 1974, when the Middle East oil embargo was imposed and O.P.E.C. started raising prices drastically, we could have used leverage to circumvent those policies by trading our wheat to the Soviet Union for their oil. A mutually beneficial arrangement. Obviously, the oil companies and our government preferred the embargo and price increases to that alternative. We may achieve peace through insight and wisdom, but never through military strength alone.

As long as nations are structured so that if their governments go to war the people are conscripted to fight one another, and are considered the first to be expendable, and the governments are the last to go, you will have national wars. When national governments that go to war are the first to be expendable, and their citizens are the last to go, then you may have a chance for peace.

Both candidates promise a greater military effort in the future. Ronald Reagan thinks that we will gain, not only peace but respect, if we have enough weapons. Where is there a candidate with insight to our problems? The candidates domestic policies are as confused as their foreign policies. Both candidates say that the election of their opponent would be a disaster for the nation, and for once, they are both probably right.

Fond farewell

Dear Charlevoix and Beaver Island Residents:

I deeply regret having to leave your area to seek employment elsewhere.

I was very fortunate to have had the opportunity to direct the Beaver Island lighthouse project for the past two years. The combination of your beautiful area, cooperative people and a fine group of the area's youth provided me with the most rewarding employment experience of my life.

You should all be proud of the great deal of quality work performed by your young people at the project. They continually demonstrated that with a little encouragement they can become highly productive employees and responsible members of society.

Thank you for your cooperation and friendship.

Brian D. Molitor

Heartfelt thanks

To the Editor:

A special thanks to all those special people who helped our son, Todd, during his near tragedy while he was swimming on your beautiful beach.

We have already said our thanks to God, and now we want to express our heartfelt thanks to all of you who were so ready to help, and who saved his life while doing so.

You can replace material things, but you cannot replace a life. We can never repay our debt to all of you, lifeguards, police, sheriffs dept., doctors and nurses, and ambulance people.

Thank you from the bottom of our hearts for all you did for Todd, and God bless you all.

AUTO COLLISION WORK
WHAT DOES YOUR PAINT JOB LOOK LIKE UNDER THE PAINT?
The final coat of paint amounts to about 10% of the total work done on most body repairs. Proper preparation of the subsurface is most important to get that "NEW CAR" look, and through the use of zinc chromite, primers, and undercoat, the new repair should be more resistant to rust than the original finish. Check under the paint the next time your auto body is repaired.

With Equi-Loan, your home's equity works for you.
If you need money now for college tuition, home remodeling, a family vacation, an investment opportunity - or any other use you think important, Equi-Loan could make it possible. This special loan lets you use your present equity as collateral to borrow money at a reasonable simple interest rate and with liberal repayment terms.
EQUI: LOAN
An Equi-Loan is not a remortgage.
An Equi-Loan is a second mortgage. It will not alter your present mortgage interest rate.
The amount of equity in your home is the difference between its appraised value and your first mortgage (if any). This equity provides the basis for borrowing a substantial amount of money, with the maximum loan size being determined by the size of your equity.
An Equi-Loan can save you interest charges.
The earlier you pay back your Equi-Loan, the less you'll pay in interest charges. So every time you make an early payment or an additional payment, you reduce the amount of interest you pay on the loan, and this can amount to significant savings over the life of the loan.
How much can you borrow?
Each transaction is different and subject to credit approval; however, we are flexible in our lending policy. In general, you can expect that the total of your first and second mortgages will amount to 80% of the valuation of your home. For example:
Appraised Valuation $30,000
.80
Total Loan Value 24,000
1st Mortgage Balance 12,000
Available for 2nd Mortgage $12,000

Hannah discusses rural electricity

By [illegible]

Tom Hanna of Charlevoix is general manager of the Top o' Michigan Rural Electric Company, which just completed 42 years of service. This week the Courier talks with him about the Top o' Michigan and what it means to the area.

COURIER: How many members are you serving at the present time?

HANNA: We are serving 33,000 meters, which represent about 29,000 customers, and we have over 4,500 miles of distribution lines.

COURIER: What territory do you serve?

HANNA: Twelve counties. We have six what we call major counties because we serve most of the areas in those counties, and six minor counties in which we serve only part of the area. The major counties are Charlevoix, Emmet, Otsego, Antrim, Crawford, and Cheboygan. The minor counties are Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Missaukee, Montmorenci, Oscodca, and Wexford. These represent 83 townships, all rural areas with the exception of the cities of St. James on Beaver Island, and Fife Lake, which we also serve COURIER: Is your membership still growing?

HANNA: Yes. In recent years we have been adding about 1,000 new members a year. Last year it was 1,068.

COURIER: How many members did you have when you started out?

HANNAH: The lines were first energized on October 15, 1938, and one month later, 51 members were being served. Then we began to grow rapidly. We we hired our first manager, in 1940, 652 miles of line had already been energized and 1,628 electric services had been installed.

COURIER: With such a large area, your members must be spread out.

HANNA: Yes, we have fewer than seven members per mile of line. Investor-owned companies average about 40 customers per mile.

COURIER: How has the use of electricity changed during the years?

HANNA: In the beginning, people in the rural areas wanted electricity for light. Then we picked up seasonal members who live outside our service area, even outside the state or outside the country. We hired a Member Services Advisor who encouraged the use of electric heat, electric stoves, refrigerators, milking machines, etc. Now we have shifted to promoting the wise use and conservation of electricity and all our natural resources.

COURIER: But electricity had a lot to do with developing the area, didn't it?

HANNA: Yes. We only have to look around at the ski resorts and other recreational facilities which would never have developed without electricity. Electricity has broadened the tax base and created jobs all over northern Michigan.

COURIER: You must still have a good many seasonal members.

HANNA: About 50 percent of our members are seasonal.

COURIER: How is the rural electric business structured?

HANNA: Top o' Michigan is really the retailer. We sell electricity directly to our members. We buy our electricity from the Northern Michigan Electric Cooperative. They are the wholesalers. The Presque Isle Rural Electric Company and the Cherryland Rural Electric Company also buy their electricity from the Northern Michigan Cooperative – we each buy about one third.

COURIER: Then what is the R.E.A.?

HANNA: It is the Rural Electric Administration, a branch of the Department of Agriculture. It was formed in 1935 to offer low interest federal loans to existing investor-owned or municipality-owned companies for the purposes of providing service to rural communities. In northern Michigan, these electric companies were not interested. They were having their own growing pains in the urban areas and had no desire to establish electric lines in unprofitable rural areas. Then, in 1936, Congress passed the Rural Electrification Act, establishing the R.E.A. as a federal agency. The Federal Government then made loans available through the Department of Agriculture through state and county agricultural agents. That's how we got started – when Bert C. Mellencamp, Charlevoix County Agricultural Agent, became aware that money was available through the R.E.A.

COURIER: And they're still lending money to electric companies?

HANNA: Yes. Since the inception of the program, they have loaned over $30 billion and have had to write off only $40,000. That says a lot for rural America.

COURIER: The rate of interest was very low, wasn't it?

HANNA: It was two percent for a long time. Now we pay five percent to the R.E.A., but we don't borrow all our money from them. The rural electric companies formed the Cooperative Finance Corporation (C.F.C.), through which we borrow from private money markets. C.F.C. is well respected on Wall Street. Right now we borrow about 70 percent of our money from R.E.A. and 30 percent from C.F.C.

COURIER: You're big business.

HANNA: We have a book value of $30 million and annual revenues of over $12 million. It's also a complicated business.

COURIER: How does a prospective member go about signing up for electricity?

HANNA: He makes application, and along with the application we ask for some show of permanence – a well, septic system, that sort of thing. We can't provide service for something as transient as a camp trailer, for instance. He pays a $5 membership fee, and the rest of the fees are charged in accordance with rules and regulations of the Michigan Public Service Commission.

COURIER: How does the cost of electricity compare with other types of fuel?

HANNA: Cost of fuel oil has increased 132 percent in the last five years and the cost of natural gas has increased 94 percent, but nationwide, the cost of electricity has increased only 36 percent. Top o' Michigan has not had a rate increase since February, 1976, except for fuel cost adjustments, which are up and down because the cost of fuel varies. The cost of power is 70 percent of our operating cost, so we really have control over only 30 percent of our money. Also, Northern Michigan Electric has to buy about 50 percent of its fuel, so it is at the mercy of suppliers.

COURIER: You elected some directors at your recent meeting. Who were they?

HANNA: Warner Cheyne and Emma Reinbold were re-elected and Fred P. Foltz, Jr. is a new director. Cheyne is a store owner from Lovells. Mrs. Reinbold is a homemaker from Pellston, and Foltz is a dairy farmer from Petoskey. Other members whose terms did not expire this year are John Tanner from Kalkaska, who is the new president of the board; Truman Cummings, Jr. of Harbor Springs, who is the vice-president; Arthur Biehl of Mancelona, who is secretary-treasurer; Howard Carson of Boyne City, David Matchett of Ellsworth; and Dale Fox of Johannesburg. As you probably know, William A. Parsons of Norwood retired this year after serving on the Board of Directors for 24 years. We will miss him.

COURIER: How long have you been with Top o' Michigan?

HANNA: For six years. Before that, I worked for Medusa Cement, served the City of Charlevoix as City Administrator for four years, and worked for one year for the Weathershield Company. I came to Charlevoix in 1965 as a resident engineer for Medusa but had to leave there for health reasons. However, I had fallen in love with the area and wanted to remain, so here I am.

COURIER: Where did you grow up?

HANNA: I was born and raised in Chardon, Ohio, east of Cleveland, a town about the size of Charlevoix. I went to Fenn College (now Cleveland State University) and earned a degree in Civil Engineering.

COURIER: Do you have a family?

HANNA: My wife, Ann, and I have two sons, both at Michigan State University. Tim is studying Parks and Recreation Management, and Chris is studying Business Management and Marketing.

COURIER: What do you do in your spare time?

HANNA: I do some running, but mostly we collect and restore antiques.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Elzinga of Atwood are parents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Whiteside of Clio are parents of the bridegroom.

Father R. Dale Magoon performed the double-ring rites before approximately 200 guests.

Music for the ceremony was provided by Mrs. Jeanne Brewster, organist, and Dan Hall, who sang, "Wedding Song", "Longer", "All Good Gifts", the "Lord's Prayer", and "Beginning Today"

For her wedding, the bride chose a gown of dacron polyester organza trimmed in beruffled Chantilace featuring a Princess Anne neckline, seedpearl accents on the fitted empire bodice, and long Bishop sleeves of Chantilace. The A-line skirt extended into an attached ruffled Chapel train. Her fingertip veil of bridal illusion was attached to a Juliet cap trimmed in matching lace and seedpearls. She carried a large white orchid surrounded by miniature yellow rosebuds.

Cheryl Elzinga served her sister as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Dena Shafer, sister of the bridegroom, and Coleen Elzinga, Jan Bolser, and Julie Bolser, all cousins of the bride. They wore identical gowns of ice mint green polyester knit fashioned with spaghetti-strapped Empire bodice, softly shirred A-line skirt, and removable sheer print jackets with three-quarter sleeves. Their bouquets were miniature white and yellow [illegible].

Kevin Pardee served the bridegroom as best man, Paul Whiteside, brother of the bridegroom, and Rod Berry were groomsmen, and Dave Anderson and Don Gairhan were ushers.

The reception at the American Legion Hall following the ceremony was hosted by the bride's parents. Parents of the newlyweds are Mr. and Mrs. Keith E. Carey and Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Russell, all of Charlevoix.

The church altar was decorated with white daisies, white carnations, baby's breath, and ivy as the Rev. Austin Regier performed the double-ring ceremony.

Mr. Carey escorted his daughter down the aisle past pews decorated with white bows and gave her in marriage.

The bride's gown was a peasant style with flounced neckline, Empire waistline, and knife-pleated lace overlay. She wore a garden hat with veil and carried a bouquet of daisies, stephanotis, baby's breath, roses, and ivy

Soloist Cathy Bagnasco provided music for the ceremony with offerings of "Bless This House" and "One Hand, One Heart".

The rehearsal dinner was held on Friday evening at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

Mrs. Carey wore a street-length gown of teal blue chiffon for her daughter's wedding, and Mrs. Russell wore a dark blue knit gown fashioned with spaghetti straps and a cream-colored jacket.

Upon returning from a wedding trip to Mackinac Island, the couple will make their home in Charlevoix. The bridegroom is employed as assistant cashier of the Charlevoix County State Bank, and the bride is a May graduate of Central Michigan University.

GEMWISE

THE BRIGHTEST AND THE GREATEST

The brightest and the greatest as far as diamonds are concerned reside in museums, government coffers and private collections throughout the world.

One of the most spectacular diamond finds of all time occurred in 1905. During a routine inspection of the Premier Mine in South Africa, the superintendent's eye was caught by a shiny object on one of the mine walls. It turned out to be the largest diamond crystal ever discovered - 3601 carats, or about one and one third pounds, and measured 2 x 2½ x 4 inches. It was named after Sir Thomas Cullinan, who had opened the Premier Mine and just happened to be visiting the day of the discovery.

The stone was sold to the Transvaal Government which presented it to King Edward VII on his 66th birthday. It was cut into nine major gemstones and 96 smaller stones.

The nine largest stones remain either in the British Crown Jewels or in the possession of the Royal Family. The 530.20 carat Cullinan I, also called the Great Star of Africa, is the largest cut and polished diamond in the world. It sits in King Edward's royal scepter. Cullinan II, the world's second largest cut diamond, weighs 317.40 carats and adorns the band of the Imperial State Crown. Both are on display with the rest of the Crown Jewels in the Tower of London.

Have you given any thought to your family jewelry collection? Jewelry is a good choice to consider for an estate. It retains its value and provides enjoyment for your heirs.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO ABANDON AND TO DISCONTINUE SERVICE

The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company hereby gives notice that on or about September 16, 1980 it intends to file with the Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D.C. 20423, an application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity permitting the abandonment and discontinuance of service on the following lines of railroad known as: Traverse City and Petoskey Subdivisions from Valuation Station 133+00 (Milepost 113.88) at Manistee, Mi. to Valuation Station 19986+91 (Milepost 247.98) at Bay View, Mi., a distance of 134.30 miles in Manistee, Benzie, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Antrim, Charlevoix, and Emmet Counties, Mi., and the Suttons Bay Subdivision from Valuation Station 3784+44 (Milepost 0.00) at Traverse City, Mi. to Valuation Station 3638+00 (Milepost 2.77) at Rennies, Mi., a Distance of 2.77 miles in Grand Traverse and Leelanau Counties, Mi. In the event an investigation is conducted, then the commenting party may participate in the proceeding as its interests may appear.

2. File with the Interstate Commerce Commission a petition requesting that the application and proposed abandonment and discontinuance be investigated.

The petition to investigate shall be in the form of a verified statement, and at minimum, contain:

(d) Any rebuttal of information or material submitted by applicants, and
(e) Request for oral hearing and reasons therefore if desired.

Upon receipt of a petition to investigate, the Commission shall determine the extent of the investigation to be instituted. Those parties filing petitions to investigate should be prepared to participate actively in either oral hearings or via the submission of additional material in the form of verified statements. Parties seeking information concerning the filing of petitions should refer to 49 CFR 1121.38.

Interested persons may file either a written comment or a petition to investigate with the Commission to become a party to this abandonment and discontinuance proceeding. In the event a petition to investigate, prepared in accordance with the above instructions, is filed, then the commission will conduct an investigation of the abandonment and discontinuance. Written comments filed with the Commission will be considered by the Commission in all proceedings in developing conditions and in determining whether the Commission should conduct an investigation on its own motion in the event no petition to investigate is filed. Additionally, if an investigation is conducted, then parties filing comments may participate in the investigation as their interests may appear.

Persons desiring further information concerning abandonment procedures may contact the Interstate Commerce Commission's Section of Finance, Office of Proceedings, or refer to the full abandonment and discontinuance regulations at 49 CFR 1121. Persons desiring information concerning financial assistance for the continued operation or acquisition of the involved line should contact the Commission's Rail Services Planning Office. The carrier's representative to whom inquiries may be made is A.B. Aftoora (314) 100 N. Charles St., Baltimore, MD 21201. King Strang is island's oldest hotel

For the Beaver Island visitor looking for comfortable lodging flavored with a touch of history, the King Strang Hotel is the place.

Located in the heart of St. James about one block from the ferry dock, the King Strang holds forth in a peaceful setting of stately shade trees and neatly manicured grounds. It is definitely a hotel in the old tradition with a long, open front porch from which guests can look out over Paradise Bay

The King Strang was built in 1901 by Captain Manus Bonner, a Great Lakes sailing captain. It was originally known as the Beaver Hotel and catered primarily to travelers en route between Chicago and Detroit. Capt. Bonner built the hotel for his retirement years using lumber entirely logged from Hogg Island and floated over in huge rafts. Construction took two years.

In 1921, the hotel was bought by a Mr. Cole who renamed it after Beaver Island's most famous settler, James Jesse Strang, self-proclaimed king of the island from 1847 to 1856. In all, the hotel has had five owners. It is presently owned and operated by George and Florine Bennett who have been in charge for the past five years.

George is a former veterenarian who retired from his practice in 1968 to lecture periodically at the University of Michigan on physiology and cruise during the summers with his wife on their 35-foot boat. In the off-season, the Bennetts make their home in Northville, Michigan near Ann Arbor.

In an effort to preserve the rich heritage of Beaver Island's oldest hotel, the Bennetts have been careful to retain the King Strang's authentic decor and appearance as they refurbish a few rooms each year. Although the hotel originally featured dining for its guests, the owners have now found it more practical to furnish a continental breakfast and transportation to other island eateries for the midday and evening meals.

Eighteen rooms are available to island guests, most of whom stay two or three nights with some staying the summer. Bennett estimates half of the guests arrive by ferry and half fly in. The hotel's season normally lasts from about May 15 to Labor Day.

Being innkeepers at the King Strang has been a labor of love for the Bennetts who are committed to retaining Beaver Island's image as a world apart from the hustle and bustle of other tourist areas.

Their only complaint? Having to ship the laundry to Petoskey and back.

Race Week is on!

The Charlevoix Yacht Club this week brings its racing season to a climax with Race Week '80 featuring the Red Fox Regatta, the prestigious National Santana 525 and Regional Santana 520 Championships and, for the first time, the Budweiser Olympic Triangle.

Action started on Saturday with the Red Fox Regatta in which sailors negotiate a two-day voyage on Lake Charlevoix to Boyne City and back.

On Monday through Friday the Santana 525's and 520's will be the center of attention as they vie for national and regional titles respectively. The Santanas, built on the West Coast, have become very popular in the Charlevoix area and race every Wednesday night during the summer. The series will be held on Lake Charlevoix.

Topping off the week will be the inaugural Budweiser Olympic Triangle races scheduled to start at 11 a.m. Saturday, September 6 on either Lake Charlevoix or Lake Michigan, depending on the weather.

State treasury, liquor control agents seize Reibel records

Five cardboard boxes of financial records and a filing cabinet safe belonging to Arthur Reibel of Charlevoix are locked up at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department this week after being confiscated from Castle Farms Music Theatre and the Reibel residence at 210 Belvidere Ave. last Thursday.

At 12:13 p.m. that day, Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater and City Police Chief Jack Mol simultaneously served, at the two locations, search warrants issued by the state Attorney General's office and authorized by the Charlevoix County District Court.

Participating in the search of the Reibel home and the Castle Farms complex were three sheriff's deputies, four special agents of the Michigan Treasury Department and two officials of the Michigan Liquor Control Commission.

Also turned up in the search at Castle Farms were 72 six-packs of out-of-state beer which were impounded on the premises.

Reibel's financial records were sought as part of an investigation by the state Treasury Department into allegations that Reibel did not file personal income tax or business tax returns from 1976 through 1979.

Reibel is president of the Castle Farms Foundation which was registered with the state in March, 1980, as a non-profit foundation dedicated to the preservation of the "historical and architecturally significant" Castle Farms property, formerly known as [illegible] Farms.

Last Thursday's search took almost 12 hours to complete. Officials were on the Reibel property until shortly after 11:30 p.m. that evening. In addition to Reibel's home, the entire complex of Castle Farms was searched including

Township speakers take dim view of consolidation at hearing

Courier Coverage
by Dave [illegible]

"Who needs it?" was the collective response of several Charlevoix Township residents at a public hearing last Wednesday to a proposal by the City of Charlevoix to consolidate the two governments.

The hearing, held before the State Boundary Commission at Charlevoix High School, was the result of a petition filed with the commission by the city this past spring.

Efforts by Charlevoix Mayor Sam Supernaw and the City Council to consolidate the township and the city are the latest of several past attempts, the last one being about three years ago.

Township residents and officials who spoke at the hearing based their opposition to consolidation mainly on the higher taxes that would result. Many felt that the additional services offered by the city would not warrant such an increase in their taxes.

Currently the city taxes at 16.5 mills plus 1.5 mills for debt retirement. The township operates on a 2 mill limit.

Don Smith, a Charlevoix teacher and township trustee, estimated that the average township resident would pay between $200 and $300 more in taxes if the city and township consolidated.

Supernaw and Commission Chairman David E. Calhoun were careful to point out, however, that no concrete figures could be determined at this stage of the process. Only when a charter commission sits down to develop a charter agreement, said Calhoun, would the actual effect on taxes be known.

In answer to questions from the floor, Supernaw added that a comprehensive cost benefit study would be too expensive a project to undertake until the consolidation process advanced to a further stage.

In outlining the city's position, City Attorney Frank Hoffman cited growth pains as a major reason for the consolidation effort. Said Hoffman, "Growth by the city is currently prohibited. It is surrounded by the township and there is no land available for new housing."

Hoffman added that the services rendered by the city would greatly benefit the township by eliminating those services now being duplicated and upgrading others. He cited water and fire department services as two areas where the benefits of consolidation would more than justify a higher millage.

Why not a charter township?

Charlevoix Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud, among others, has strongly advocated the formation of a charter township government as an alternative to consolidation of the city and township into a home rule city. This was also supported at the Boundary Commission hearing by township resident Dale Bess who called it a "proven, grassroots form of government." In a scenario outlined by Stroud and Bess, such action could be taken in a matter of months and would accomplish as much as consolidation but without the time and expense of forming a charter commission. Boundary Commission executive secretary Joseph Hyde said, however, that forming a charter township out of the city and township of Charlevoix would be "humanly impossible." According to Hyde, the city would have to abandon its charter by attracting at least two thirds of its registered voters to the polls to vote in favor of such action. Hyde pointed out that it is practically impossible to get that much of a voter turnout on any issue and to get 100 percent support besides. He said that nothing less than a special act of the legislature would be necessary to form a charter township in Charlevoix.

Kids plus traffic on Division means trouble

by Anne Kelly

It is 3:35 P.M. The Charlevoix Elementary School on Division St. has been dismissed, buses have been loaded. There ensues an onslaught of weaving bikes, playful walkers, buses headed west on Division Street and parents either arriving to pick up their children.

The effect is pandemonium. There are calculated risks by bikers who weave back and forth across the road popping occasional "wheelies" in front of or in the face of traffic. There are walkers who have even been reported hitting the side of buses in motion with their hands or running along side of them. There are parents who proceed at a snail's pace along the road for fear of side-swiping a child or having a bike dart out in their paths – and there are those that don't take special precautions.

There are neighborhood residents who say they can't bear to look out their windows at that time of day because the possibility of an accident occurring makes them nervous.

Safety is the problem, but whose problem is it?

Some says it's the school's problem. We talked to elementary school principal Ralph Raymer who has been aware of the condition for some time. His comments would lead us to believe that there is no easy solution. He notes that the school itself is on the Township side of the street, while across the street is part of the City of Charlevoix. Perhaps there is a conflict that prevents proper safety measures to be taken by local authorities.

Some possible solutions have been presented and discussed in the past by interested and concerned parties but no policies have as yet been enacted. These suggestions include: "ticketing" violators in some way, hiring a traffic guard with CETA funds (which always seem to be questioned in amount available and duration of funding), a patrol of volunteer parents who would take

LET HOUSE CUT TAX BILL

Your home should be besides your nest of dreams an income tax saver. From the moment you take title to the day you turn over the key to the next inhabitants, you are endowed with opportunities to minimize your tax bill.

While you own the home, your two major annual deductions are property taxes and the interest on the mortgage. These can be considerable deductions.

Keep in mind that it doesn't matter whether you pay property taxes directly or through an escrow account held by the bank. In either case you deduct the sum actually paid to the local taxing authority.

Also, using part of your home for business purposes constitutes a deduction for that portion of the home expenses used for the business. It is based on the square footage of space used for business. However, it must be used exclusively for business.

The first annual Shadowcatchers Photography Show was held Sunday, August 24, at the East Joedan Civic Center. Exhibits by several local photographers were shown.

Judging the entries was Richard Jackson, a former professor at the Cranbrook Academy of Arts.

Winners were named in categories including creativeness and use of medium, color, black and white and honorable mention.

Over 250 people who attended the show screened the exhibits to also award a Peoples' Choice ribbon.

Hazel Colburn, organizer of the show said that one of the reasons for its debut this year was to provide a good use for the Civic Center. She expressed hope that the show would grow and attract even more entries and observers next year.

Streeter honored by city

Mike Streeter, above center, was honored by the City of Charlevoix last week for his actions in a near drowning August 15 at the Michigan Beach park. Streeter, a city recreation department lifeguard, is credited with saving the life of Todd Wilkins, 16, of Reed City, who was swimming at the beach when he went under the water and was retrieved by Streeter. Mayor Sam Supernaw, left, and Recreation Director Ike Bean presented Streeter with a certificate of appreciation from the city.

The Charlevoix Public Library hosted an end-of-the-summer party last week for the Bookworm Club. Invited were all the area youngsters who participated in the summer reading program held at the library this year by librarians Mary Beth Wallick and Sue Oxton. Attending the party were, counterclockwise around the table from the center foreground, Tammy Holm, Janis Leadabrand, Kristen Terry, Lisa Dixon, Shannon Dreyer, Jen Terry, Kirsten Joy, Marty Joy, Tim Holm, Renee Hatley, Danielle Hamlin and Erin McGarry. Each of the Bookworm Club graduates received a certificate of participation from the library.

The Charlevoix Womens Club held a sequel to its annual book sale in the basement of the Charlevoix last Thursday and attracted many area book lovers to browse among thousands of books on every subject accumulated by the ladies. Helping with last week's sale were, above left to right, Margaret Duerr, Alice Bollinger, Eleanor Carson and Club President Nancy Murray. Proceeds from the sale will go toward improvements in the library's basement meeting room.

Three injured in weekend accident/concert traffic tied up by ambulance to Munson Medical Center in Traverse City with undetermined injuries. Snizik was admitted to Charlevoix Area Hospital. Buxton was treated and released from Charlevoix Area Hospital that night. Three passengers in the van were not injured.

Buxton was cited for driving left of center and a blood sample for alcohol content was taken from him to be sent to Lansing for testing.

The Volvo was totally demolished in the accident but there were no reports on the extent of damage to the van.

Sheriff George Lasater said, the accident caused an unusually large tie up of concert traffic which had to be diverted from the scene on back roads.

This, said Lasater, may have caused a rash of parking violations on one of those back roads, Loeb Rd., which is not posted for no parking or standing as are most of the roads in that area. A total of 27 vehicles were ticketed and towed away for creating a safety hazard by being parked on the travel portion of Loeb Rd.

Several concert-related complaints were filed with the Sheriff's Department again this weekend including one for criminal sexual conduct involving an 11-year old boy.

The incident, which occurred on the Castle Farms property during the concert, was of special concern to Lasater. He said his department has handled several such complaints from past concerts involving female complainants but that this was the first time a child has been involved.

Other complaints included two for malicious destruction of property, four for unregistered camping and six miscellaneous. Three arrests were made for drunk driving and one for assault of a police officer.

Numerous other citations and accidents were logged including five accidents involving property damage, three with personal injury and one hit and run.

Officials seize Reibel records for possible tax violations at least three separate buildings on the grounds.

According to Lasater, Reibel was present at Castle Farms when the search warrant was served but offered no resistance to the officials taking part in the action.

Special Agent David Nummer of the Michigan Treasury Department Intelligence Division said this week that the search was part of an investigation of Reibel that has been in process for "several months".

Nummer would not reveal why or how the investigation was intitiated. He said it will be "some time" before the information taken in the search can be analyzed thoroughly and charges brought if any wrongdoing is found.

The investigation was started by the state Treasury Department and was later joined by the Liquor Control Commission since Castle Farms holds a license from that agency.

Knight on the Town

The ring

Once upon a time, two people met and liked each other right away. Each found within the other a special warmth and confidence that soon forged a bond of friendship stronger than either had known before.

The friendship grew, as friendships do, into a closeness so natural as if to be part of some great design. When he and she walked together people smiled just because it seemed so right and good.

Each day, the sun would rise and set on a troubled, complicated world but the two were oblivious to almost everything around them except each other.

One day, they decided to make a statement to everyone that they would never part and that, from then on for the rest of their lives, the two would be [illegible] one.

They assured friends and family who were concerned about the finality of their decision that much planning and thought had gone into its making.

They also assured everyone who had known them as individuals before that individuals they would remain. Individuals together, now, though.

As the time drew near for the two to make the statement, it occurred to him that perhaps there should be more to their committment than just a spoken pledge. Words, he thought, can sometimes be forgotten. Even if they are written, they are still only words and the bond to be forged should be symbolized in some more permanent, lasting way.

A ring, he thought, a ring of gold that would glitter like their happiness, be unbending like their trust and last forever as a symbol of true devotion. Better yet, two rings! One for each.

When he told her of his idea, she happily agreed and they went together to seek out the finest goldsmith in the land. When they found the right craftsman, they told him of their wish and he went to work directly.

They came back to the goldsmith on the appointed day and he proudly showed them the fruits of his labor: two rings, one small for her dainty finger and one large and wide for his.

The two were very happy with the goldsmith's work. They paid him generously and went away with the sun shining brightly off their new rings.

To celebrate all the good that had come to them, he and she went to the shore to look out over the endless waves and dream about the long future before them. As they ran on the hot sand, they were overwhelmed by a certain abandon. Nothing, it seemed, could ever part them now.

The whole world, to them, was as beautiful as the many-hued clouds that gathered on the horizon each evening to [illegible].

During their happy celebration on the shore, however, his ring slipped off at an unknown moment. Before he even noticed the loss, the ring had fallen into the sands of the pounding surf so deeply that it was pointless to even search. Again, his hand was bare.

The two were heartbroken.

It was an omen, she thought, a bad omen; a sign that their bond of friendship was not to be. Some power of darkness had swallowed the ring and given them a warning that their happiness could be dashed away just as easily.

They left the shore downfallen as if they would never feel the warmth of the sun upon their faces again.

Many months went by and the two worked hard building for the day that their household would increase. They made plans and talked far into the nights about things happening around them. They enjoyed being with their friends, sharing many a hearty meal over gay laughter and singing.

By and by, the lost ring was forgotten.

And one day, it occurred to him that the grief he remembered from that fateful trip to the shore had been totally [illegible].

That a silly piece of metal wrapped around one's finger, as shiny as it may have been, could bode good or evil for two peoples' lives was just plain superstitious, he thought. Just another false idol to worship, as it were.

There had never been any threat to the bond between the two. In fact, without the ring to gaze at, he devoted more attention to her. They cared not that his hand went without the golden symbol.

To her, the only symbol that mattered was the kindness in his eyes and the strength of his touch.

This realization dawned upon them like the sun they once thought had abandoned their skies. They laughed when they remembered the pointless worries over the loss of the ring. And to prove to themselves how little the experience now meant to them, they returned to the shore to run again on the warm sands and feel the cooling spray of the waves.

As they sang and made merry with the others who had come to the water's edge for respite, one young man ran by them and hit his big toe on a hard object deep in the sand. He kicked his foot up and out flew a wide golden ring that glittered brightly as it fell before the astonished couple.

As its former owner silently slipped the ring back on his finger and clasped her hand in his, the clouds parted over a distant horizon and their faces were bathed in a golden glow.

To the Editor,

Just a short note to take special note of the "Shadow Catcher's Show" in E. Jordan last Sunday. Hazel Colburn, organizer of this photo show did an excellent job and I hope it is the first of many. I was very impressed by the quality of work shown and the friendliness of everyone involved. All in all it was a most enjoyable experience and I thank you all for letting me be a small part of it.

Some recommendations

Dear Editor:

As a summer resident and sometimes a winter skiing resident I would like to voice my opinion on a few subjects.

1. I would like to recommend that the bridge go up on the quarter hour and quarter to instead of on the half hour and hour. Really it makes no difference to us boaters, if we go out 15 minutes later or earlier and it would make a great difference to the year around people going to and from meals and work.

2. As the traffic is such a problem why can't Dixon and Ainslie be made back into two way streets? I see people using both streets many times as a two way street. Besides, the curve on Nicholls going to Michigan Avenue is such a hazard. Are you going to let someone be killed before you do anything about it?

3. I would like to see all bikes off the sidewalks. I have seen so many people "hit" while walking by some kid goofing around on their bike.

4. I would like to commend the people responsible for making my "adopted city" so pretty. The flowers in front of the post office, stores, banks and the hanging baskets are so pretty. The flower garden on Michigan Avenue as you come into the city is beautiful.

Thank you so much for "listening" and your time.

Don't leave girls out

To the Editor:

Let's Hear it for the Girls!

I would like to commend the City Recreation Department for a well run series of track events held August 13th and 14th. The events came off as scheduled, the officials were fair and supportive of the participants and there was evidence of good sportsmanship. However, I would like to register a complaint on behalf of a disappointed granddaughter and possibly other participants in that the promised picture of the award winners did not appear in the August 19th Courier. Two pictures of the boys appeared but if there was not room for all four division pictures surely one could have been of the girls who represented half of the contestants and need to be encouraged to compete. Besides a promise needs to be honored!

good sportsmanship,
Mrs. R.H. Giffin

More on spent fuel

Dear Editor:

I have noted the letter of Chuck Will in your issue of 30 July 1980, together with the letter of rebuttal from personnel at Big Rock Point nuclear plant.

This correspondence does not settle the issue of the hazard potential of expanding spent fuel storage at Big Rock Point. Indeed, the complexity of the issue is such that a public hearing, open to critical experts, would be necessary just to clarify the nature of the problem. As I am mentioned in this correspondence, I would like to provide some information.

During 1978 and 1979 I participated in a review of plans to construct a large nuclear fuel center in West Germany. This review was sponsored by the government of the state of Lower Saxony, and culminated in hearings before the state governor and members of his cabinet in March/April 1979. One of my contentions was that compact pool storage of spent fuel represented a significant hazard. This contention was accepted by the Lower Saxony government, which ruled that spent fuel storage using active cooling was not acceptable.

Expansion of spent fuel storage in reactor pools represents a major hazard from several perspectives. For example, a reactor accident could interrupt the cooling of the adjacent spent fuel pool for many days. My studies have shown that such interruption could lead to a major release of radioactivity to the environment, thereby greatly amplifying the consequences of the reactor accident.

In June 1980 I testified at a hearing before the Minnesota Energy Agency, concerning the hazard potential of expanding spent fuel storage at the Prairie Island nuclear plant. Much of the rebuttal testimony offered by Northern States Power Company concerned the improbability of severe reactor accidents. One must hope that they are correct; however, it would be prudent to assume that they are not.

Kids and traffic causing problems on Division turns supervising, establishing a student safety patrol, keeping walkers and bikers in school until after the buses leave or dismissing them first, and finally the possibility of sidewalks on Division Street.

Sheriff George Lasater has also been aware of the problem. Last school year, he comments, the sheriff's office provided a patrol car for the period of a month. During the time, he received as many as five complaints regarding the time spent by the car in front of school, callers wondered if there "wasn't something more important they could be doing." He has talked with Principal Ralph Raymer and plans to place an officer on duty once again this fall. He is also checking with the county prosecutor regarding the feasibility of issuing some sort of juvenile traffic citation for offenders.

What about the city police? Chief of Police Jack Moi sees no problem in jurisdiction, and in fact reminded us that in the past, a patrol car has been parked in front of the school for the purpose of supervision and inhibiting misbehavior.

However the results from that effort appeared only temporary. When the police were present there were no problems. When there was no officer visible, the kids became careless again.

"The problem is an educational one," he remarked. "Traffic safety programs have been run in the spring but by summer children and even their parents can be seen violating good bike safety rules ... it has to be a co-operative effort ... we would be most interested in meeting with parents and school personnel in devising an adequate safety training program."

Like everyone else, Moi expressed concern but regretted the fact that "they just didn't have enough people (City police) to do it (traffic supervision at the elementary school at dismissal time) on a regular basis."

Are sidewalks on Division Street a feasible solution?

City Manager James Brinker says that the possibility of sidewalks on Division Street involves individual property assessment. The price for property owners per square foot for sidewalks these days is $1.25 when the installation is performed by CETA workers. Is every property owner along the street in question agreeable? Will sidewalks be cleared for children in the winter? These are questions Brinker could not answer.

While parents, school officials and City police ponder the problem, the situation at the elementary school, particularly at dismissal time, causes everyone who witnesses the scene concern. Except maybe the children who remain somewhat oblivious to traffic safety despite efforts to the contrary.

"I don't like it myself," comments Mrs. Jim "Angel" Bearss, one of the choel bus drivers. "It's very dangerous ... I have personally stopped my bus and reprimanded kids." George Tompkins, another driver, worries that one day a child will be seriously injured.

Sometimes it takes a serious accident in order for a safety problem to surface and be satisfactorily resolved. Hopefully a solution can be found before a child is injured in Division Street.

Consolidation Hearing

"What happens ten years from now is what we should be thinking about," said Hoffman, "If present trends continue, the populations and mill rates of the two governments may be close to equal at that time. By taking this step (consolidation) now, it will be in the best interest of everyone in the long run."

Smith, however, took issue with several of Hoffman's statements. In his comments on behalf of the township board, he said, "My conclusion, after talking with many township residents, is that they are happy with their government and wish to continue with it in its present form."

The duplication of services alleged by the city is not as extensive as they claim, according to Smith. He acknowledged that parallel electric lines do exist and that the township may be better off eventually if that area was coordinated with the city.

But in the services of water, sewer, fire protection and recreation, Smith said that the township is now being adequately served and that consolidation would not significantly improve things.

Another concern voiced by Smith was that in a consolidated government, township residents would have much less representation on zoning issues and less control of land use in their neighborhoods.

Calhoun clarified the role of Wednesday's hearing saying that the Boundary Commission does not itself rule on the eventual consolidation. It only weighs the testimony given by both sides and decides whether consolidation is possible.

That decision, he said, could be as far as two years away because of the heavy work load facing the commission. If they rule in favor of some form of consolidation, a charter commission comprised of both city and township representatives would then have two years and two votes to develop a charter agreeable to the voters of both city and township.

Persons with an interest in the matter but who were unable to attend last week's hearing have 30 days to submit pertinent written testimony to the Boundary Commission at their Lansing office.

Bob Clock

There is nothing more discouraging at the start of a vacation trip than to have the old bus go putta-putta-bang-bang and stop dead on the expressway.

This is what happened to the Clocks Tuesday when we set off early from Charlevoix for a two-day trip to Detroit, Plymouth and environs.

After breakfasting on Eggs-McMuffin in Gaylord, we gassed up and headed south on I-75. We were still negotiating the pylons around the new construction when the engine started sputtering, followed by several rapid-fire explosions from the exhaust pipe that echoed like an automatic rifle through the woods.

Suddenly the dashboard lighted up like a cathedral in The Balkans, the engine gave a dying gasp and we weaved to an unsteady stop on the shoulder without power steering or power brakes.

Now this particular situation is devastating, even to the fellow who has a nodding acquaintance with the innards of the internal combustion engine. But to a man who doesn't know a distributor cap from a pith helmet, having your car stop dead on the expressway borders on catastrophe. Up until last year I thought a "universal joint" was a Mexican cigarette you shared with friends.

"Well, let's have a look under the hood," I said with mock bravado in response to the stunned silence emanating from the rest of the passenger compartment. I pulled the hood latch, climbed onto the highway, raised the hood and took a look inside.

To my surprise, I found something wrong. A hose from the air filter to the engine block had become disconnected and I jammed the hose back onto a metal gizmo with a hole in it.

"There, that should take care of 'er," I said confidently dusting off my hands and climbing into the driver's seat. I stepped on the gas, turned the key and - to my utter astonishment - the big engine purred to life.

"Disconnected hose," I explained to Judy and the kids. "The engine was over-heating."

But when we reached the Waters exit, I still wasn't sure everything was as it should be. I could feel the engine miss a few strokes every two or three minutes. I pulled off I-75 onto U.S. 27 in order to be closer to civilization in case the car stopped again.

"This is the scenic route," I told the kids.

By the time we reached Grayling the car seemed to be running better, but I made up my mind to stay on surface roads all the way to Detroit - just in case. However, before long I made a wrong turn and found myself back on I-75. Nobody said anything, so I didn't bother to explain. Fathers shouldn't have to explain everything.

At Roscommon, the problem cropped up again and I managed to leave the expressway and limp into town. Unfortunately, all the garages were booked solid until late afternoon. I decided to get back on I-75, point her toward Detroit and let the sparkplugs fall where they may.

The car ran like a Rolls-Royce for 130 miles. Then it stopped accountably 10 times in two miles. I finally pulled off an exit ramp near Brighton and found a garage.

"When's the last time you had a tune-up?" the cocky young mechanic asked, eyeing me like some kind of vermin.

"Four months," I lied. Actually it had been nine, but no matter what I say the mechanic always rolls his eyes and [illegible].

"Well, we can put her on the 'Scope' to try and find out what's wrong," he said when his eyes stopped rolling. "That'll be 15 bucks for starters."

"How much will it be if I need a new distributor?" I asked, trembling.

"A hunert-seventy-five," he answered with icy calm.

Now it was my turn to roll my eyes. They were still rolling when I struck off on surface roads for Plymouth, where the next morning a friendly neighborhood garage (Chuck's Service) replaced the gas filter and installed a new set of points for $17.95.

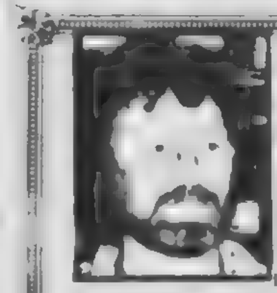
GEMWISE
JEWELRY FASHION & VALUE ...



John Reusch

THE MANY-COLORED SAPPHIRE

If you were born in September, you're a lucky person -- gem wise, that is. Your birthstone, the sapphire, can be obtained in many different colors, so you have a greater variety to choose from than most people.

Sapphires are found in many shades of blue, but the deep cornflower blue is the traditional favorite. Yellow sapphires sometimes approach a golden color. Even greens pop up occasionally. There's no such thing as a red sapphire, because that's what we call ruby, however, there are pinks and oranges. There's a particularly beautiful pinkish-orange sapphire known as padparadscha (Sinhalese for "lotus flower") which is very rare and highly prized.

We are currently seeing sapphires coming out of Burma, Sri Lanka, Thailand, Australia and Montana. The Kashmir area of India is the legendary home of the finest blue sapphires. In fact, the finest blue is sometimes called Kashmir blue. However, this gem-rich area is located high atop a mountain, where it is difficult to carry the proper equipment to unearth the gem material. There may be a wealth of sapphires left in Kashmir, but at present, no one is attempting to find out.

At Reusch Jewelry we carry a fine stock of sapphires and sapphire jewelry. Over the years we've found that people are very much attracted to the gem, not only because of its beauty but also for its durability. Sapphire and ruby (which, by the way, are two varieties of the same mineral) are the hardest gems next to diamond.

Firefighters from the Charlevoix Township and City volunteer departments had a rare opportunity to train under realistic conditions last week when Consumers Power Company held extensive fire training sessions at its Big Rock Plant

Part of the program consisted of orienting the local firemen to the layout and procedures at the Big Rock nuclear generating plant. Charlevoix city firemen are resposible for any fires outside the gates of the plant and may be called for assistance inside the main buildings in cases where Big Rock's fire brigade needs help. Township firemen back up the city's department.

Rich Mahaney, fire training specialist for Consumers Power, and his assistant Gary Watters held short classroom sessions last Monday and Tuesday nights for the firemen and then conducted field training exercises on the plant grounds

The local fire department members indicated that the field training, in which firemen actually used different extinguishing techniques and devices on various types of fires, was especially valuable. Such training is normally too expensive to be conducted regularly by small municipal departments

These photos taken of the city firemen last Tuesday, show, clockwise from upper left, some of the men using hand held extinguishers on a gasoline-on-water fire; the gasoline fire belching clouds of smoke that envelope the containment building and stack; a three-man crew edging close enough to a propane fire for one to turn off the valve; the firemen in a classroom session led by Rich Mahaney; and Mahaney silhouetted by one of his training fires.

BINDING ARBITRATION IS LIKE DECISION MAKING IN A BASEBALL GAME

Think about it!

The players can't go around making their own decisions about whether they're "safe" or "out."

The umpire makes decisions...because he's an impartial observer.

Once he makes a decision, both teams go along with it.

Arbitrators are like umpires.

When the Board of Education and Teachers do not agree on the meaning of contract language, an impartial professional from the American Arbitration Association is called in to make a fair decision.

East Jordan Teachers believe that an umpire (or arbitrator) would help solve problems between the Board and Teachers.

After all - it's the only fair solution for everyone!

Obituaries

DEBORAH ANNE FULLER

Deborah Anne Fuller, 32, died Aug. 24 at the Charlevoix Area Hospital after a long illness.

Funeral procession for Mrs. Fuller, left from the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, at 1 p.m. Saturday. The procession will proceed on foot following a horse-drawn buckboard through the cemetery.

Graveside services followed at Brookside Cemetery.

Debbe was born May 20, 1948 in Grosse Pointe and devoted a great deal of time to the raising and showing of purebred Appaloosa horses. In 1976 her horse "Pepper" won the Canadian Nationals in London, Ontario, the youngest filly ever to win this high honor. In that same year, she went on to win the Michigan State Championships and the Michigan Futurity. Mrs. Fuller's first generation mare, "Ginny", was retired undefeated after seven consecutive years of showing at the Emmet County Fair.

Deborah is survived by her husband, Len Fuller; two sons, Eric and Jeff; one daughter, Devon, all at home; her mother and step-father, Charles and June Hastings of Orlando, Fla.; four brothers Jon Muench of Malibu, Cal., James Muench of Chicago, Ill., Jeff Muench of Ketchum, Idaho and Robby Muench of Southfield; a step-brother, Mark Hastings of Orlando, Fla.; one step-sister, March Hastings of Orlando, Fla.; her step-mother, Charlotte Muench of Southfield; her grandparents Raymond Pillsbury and Marion Pillsbury of Holy Island, East Jordan and Frances Muench of Kissimmee, Fla.

The family suggests anyone wishing to honor the memory of Debbe Fuller, may do so by contributing to the Deborah A. Fuller Memorial Fund.

MRS. BRUCE L. HENLEY

Funeral services for Mrs. Bruce L. (Lillian B.) Henley, 55, who died Friday at the Charlevoix Area Hospital after a long illness, were held Saturday at the Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. James Plackner of the Bethany Lutheran Church officiated. Interment was at the Brookside Cemetery.

Born in Detroit April 30, 1925, the former Lillian B. Evers came to Charlevoix with her family in 1943. In 1946 she was married to Mr. Henley. They have always resided here. She was employed by the Michigan Bell Telephone Co. for more than 25 years prior to her retirement in 1975. She was a member of the Bethany Lutheran Church, Telephone Pioneers of America and the Charlevoix Chapter No. 72, Order of the Eastern Star.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Robert (Rona) Harrison of Virginia Beach, Va., and Mrs. Edwin (Penny) Gregory of Charlevoix; a son, Ned H. of Lowell; four grandchildren and a sister, Mrs. Alfred (Betty) Bergmann of Charlevoix.

The family suggests memorials to the American Cancer Society.

The Bergmann Center's new home in the former Charlevoix Chemical building, above, provides much more needed space than the center's previous quarters on Garfield Street (inset).

It's Kusina vs. City in legal battle over wall

An ongoing dispute over the repair of the crumbling cement retaining wall on the west side of Bridge Street between W. Hurlbut and Oleson's parking lot has resulted in a complaint filed in Circuit Court by the city against William Kusina and a charge by Kusina, in return, of harrassment.

At the center of the storm is a 214-foot section of wall possibly over 90 years old that has lately deteriorated into a dangerous state of disrepair. Loose chunks of cement falling from the wall have been labeled by both the city and Kusina as definite safety hazards to pedestrians.

The problem is that the city wants Kusina, whose property it abuts, to fix it and Kusina claims it is the city's responsibility.

In a complaint filed in court on September 2, the city ordered Kusina to rebuild or repair the wall citing a 1977 agreement in which Kusina was granted a zoning variance for improvements he planned for the property.

At a June 13, 1977 public hearing before the Board of Appeals, presided over by then-mayor Edward P. Hansen, a salesman at Kusina's car dealership, approval was given to Kusina for a zero setback requirement on an office building he proposed on the corner lot bordered by Bridge St. and W Hurlbut. The approval was granted, however, on the condition that reconstruction of the wall take place at the same time as Kusina's project.

Kusina says that he never took advantage of the variance and thus is not bound by the agreement to fix the wall. Originally, he says, a motel complex was planned for the property but did not materialize

He also claims that the wall falls within the original right-of-way of Bridge Street and is not legally his property to maintain

In a ruling received by the city from the Department of State Highways and Transportation this past June, District Engineer Carl P. Seufert stated that the wall is on private property and that unless Kusina had records proving otherwise, the state could not fund any improvements to it.

According to Kusina, the original records of the city pertaining to the Bridge St. right-of-way were lost long ago in a fire.

Said Kusina this week, "I am being harrassed by the city and the city manager. They want me to pay for damage to the wall done by their snow removal equipment and vandals while I believe that the wall does not even belong to me."

Kusina also said that he has been charged unfairly for utility service to unoccupied office space as part of the harrassment.

"This is just another example of city government trying to tell a private businessman what to do," said Kusina.

Kusina said that he will be meeting with his attorney, Roy Hayes of Charlevoix, this week on a response to the complaint. He has a period of 20 days from its issuance in which to respond.

Bergmann Center moves into north side home

Following their official move last week, the Bergmann Center work activity program is now settling into new, more spacious quarters.

Last spring, the Center purchased the former Charlevoix Chemical Company building on Martin Road behind the Will Flow plant north of the city. Extensive remodeling has transformed the facility from a chemical plant into a comfortable, modernized work area for the Center's staff and clients.

According to Director Ken Brill, the new location offers much more needed storage space and room for expansion than the Bergmann Center's previous location at 201 E Garfield in the city

On the new property are an office and secretarial area, work room and dining area in the main building; a storage area in a former garage structure and an entire other building for possible future use

At present the center employs about 26 mentally and physically handicapped clients from around the area but, by October 1, Brill expects that as many as 35 will be working there. The center is contracted with several manufacturing firms to provide such products as silk screened plastic seat cushions and luggage handle assemblies

The program is designed to provide gainful employment and supervised training for clients in hopes that they may eventually be able to join the competitive job market. It is supported by the Michigan Department of Mental Health through the Northern Michigan Community Health Services Board and the Charlevoix Board of Commissioners.

Ward Bros. plan questioned by City Council

The site plan for a new Ward Brothers Boat Shop building ran into stormy seas at last week's City Council meeting when it was learned that the proposed higher structure would block a neighbor's view of Round Lake.

Action was to be taken this week by the Plan Commission on possible changes in the building plan.

At their September 2 meeting, the council heard a description of the building by the Ward brothers who claimed that they needed the space provided by a larger, metal building to stay in business.

They pointed out that theirs is one of the last businesses zoned marine-commercial on Round Lake that actually fulfills the original purpose of that zoning category.

Henry Soderberg, who owns a home next to the boat shop, claimed, however, that the building proposed by the Wards would completely block the view of Round Lake from both the first and second stories of his home. He indicated that the resulting loss of property value would be unfair to him.

Council members also objected to the metal front of the building which, they said, did not fit into the motif of the neighborhood.

Possible adjustments to the site plan were to be taken up this week by the Plan Commission at which the Ward brothers were directed to appear with some alternative ideas.

In other action, the council

Those who know (and will tell) say it was a good summer

By PEG OHLE

It was a good summer for Charlevoix and the surrounding area. At least that's what some of those who should know are saying.

By "good", we mean lots of tourists and resorters, more business for local merchants, and more jobs for local people.

Jim Ance, Charlevoix Harbormaster, reports that he had a busy season.

"The number of boat days was up only about five percent," Ance explained, "but the number of boats was up about 20 percent. They didn't stay as long, but they brought in more individual people.

"We added four new docks this summer and increased our capacity from 66 to 75. We were full from the middle of June until the middle of August. We're still half full," he added.

Joe McPhillips, manager of the Charlevoix Airport, says that air traffic was up somewhat over last summer.

"It was up in general, not a whole lot, but we did have more planes and more passengers," McPhillips noted.

Carl Sobleskey observes both boat and auto traffic from his seat in the tower of the Charlevoix Bridge.

"I noticed more auto traffic this year," Sobleskey said, "and almost every time we opened the bridge, quite a few boats went through. After the middle of July, it was busier than last year.

More people in town means more work for local law enforcement officials. For Charlevoix police, the summer meant the issuance of 90 traffic tickets, and for the parking attendant, the issuance of 4,444 parking tickets, up only slightly from last year.

Of course, summer means more activity on the waters of Charlevoix County. The Sheriff's Marine Patrol had a busy three months.

In June, the Patrol received 38 complaints. They made two arrests in cases involving non-hazardous operations of boats, issued 56 warnings, made 10 livery inspections, and 105 boat inspections.

In July, the Patrol received 33 complaints, made one arrest for hazardous operation of a boat, three arrests for non-hazardous operations, processed one property damage accident involving alcohol, and issued 27 warnings

In August, complaints to the Marine Patrol went up to 39. They made seven arrests for hazardous operations of boats, five arrests in non-hazardous cases, kprocessed one personal injury boat accident involving alcohol, and issued 17 warnings

Summer also means more complaints about dogs, not only local dogs, but those belonging to visitors. June was a typical month, with the Animal Control Officer in the Sheriff's Department handling 72 dog complaints. He issued papers on six dog bites, summoned eight dog owners, issued eight warnings to dog owners, and disposed of 20 dogs.

It was a hot, dry summer in Charlevoix, which was good for vacationers but hard on area farmers.

The Charlevoix Sewage Disposal Plant measured 3.33 inches of rain in June, 2.66 inches in July, and .36 inches in August. Most years the rain averages about 3.10 inches during these three summer months.

August was the hottest August in many years, although not a record-breaker, and June and July were also warm months for northern Michigan. (In fact, as this is being written, Friday afternoon, Sept. 5, the temperature in downtown Charlevoix is 78 degrees, so the hot spell is continuing into September).

Jacquie Merte, manager of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, will soon make a report on how local merchants fared this summer. However, she says replies to the informal inquiries she has made so far indicate that it was indeed a good summer for Charlevoix businesses.

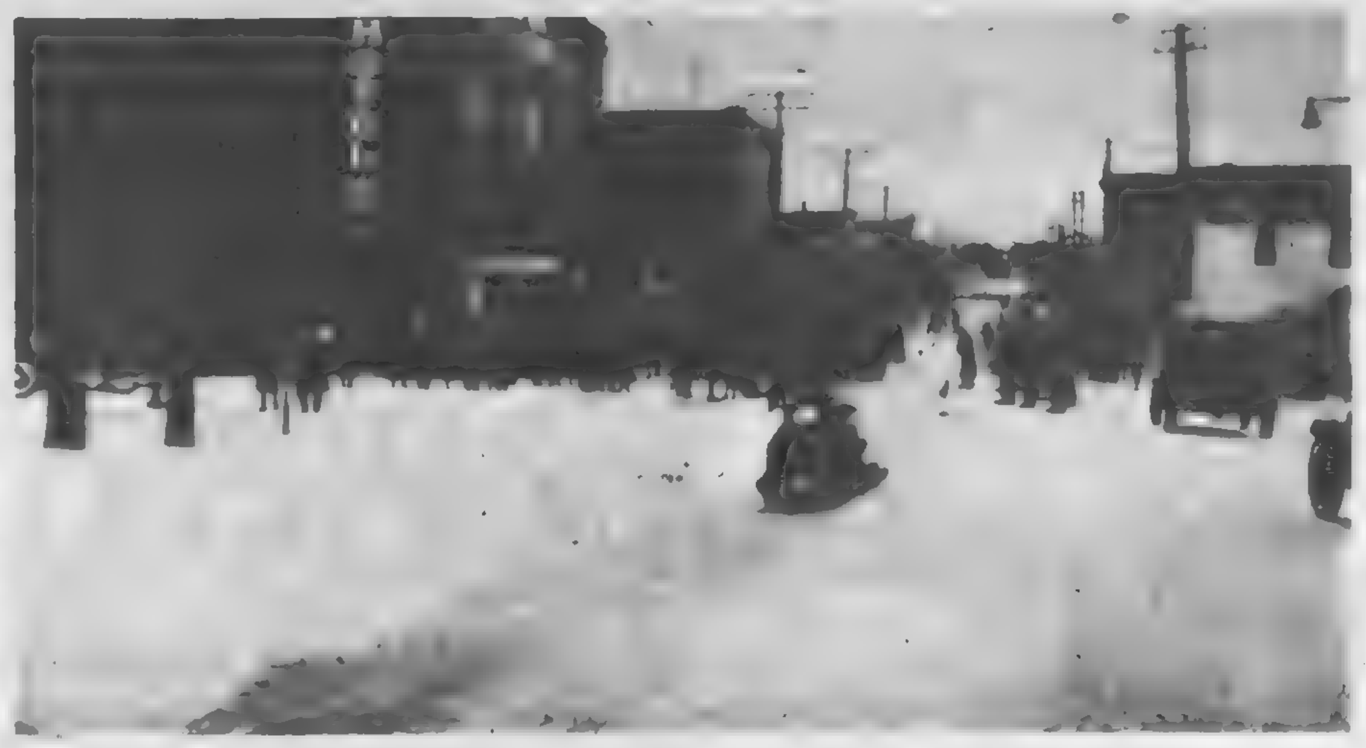
These workshops are designed to improve the skills of amateurs in message handling (traffic) and emergency communication during disasters and emergencies.

The A.R.P.S.C. is national in scope and is under the supervision of the American Radio Relay League (A.R.R.L.)

A lot of the Top of Michigan Hams are also affiliated with Amateur Radio Emergency Service (A.R.E.S.) and are in training to assist the various agencies such as Law Enforcement Groups, Civil Defense, Red Cross, etc. with auxiliary communication on a local, state or national basis.



Charlevoix yesterday

Many years ago, Bridge Street was more than just a business thoroughfare. On occasion, it was blocked off for tobogganing down the South Hill from Hurlbut Street. The above picture shows a speeding sled approaching the Antrim Street intersection while a crowd of spectators looks on.

Buying and Selling Real Estate
by Gene Steele

CURIOSITY SEEKERS

If you intend to implant a "For Sale by Owner" sign in your front yard, be prepared for the inevitable "curiosity seekers." You'll probably spend more time tramping through the house with curiosity seekers than showing it to firm prospects.

Your "For Sale by Owner" sign leaves you open to all types of people and problems. For example, a visitor may present an offer to buy on which he doesn't intend to follow through. You may make plans based on accepting it, only to learn that the "prospect" had no intention of completing the agreement.

A Realtor has the experience to unmask the insincere offer and turn it away before it does any harm. In fact, the presence of a Realtor usually will discharge any attempts of that sort. He will qualify prospects in advance and show only those who are definitely prospective buyers — not "curiosity seekers" — to inspect your home.

Capt. McDonough honored at party on Beaver Island

Capt. Lawrence McDonough, who has been associated with the Beaver Island Boat Company for the past 25 years, was the guest of honor at a retirement party held for him on Beaver Island Saturday, August 30.

The party was hosted by McDonough's six children, Gary, of California, Larry, of Grand Rapids, Joe and Kevin, of Beaver Island and Pamela Anne and Kathie Marie, both of Ann Arbor. The festivities were held in the back yard of [illegible].

Over 200 people attended and feasted on such goodies as a special cake with an exact replica of the ferry "Beaver Islander" rendered in frosting on top by one of McDonough's daughters.

McDonough was well known in the area as a skipper for the Beaver Island Boat Company for 18 years. He and his wife Winifred lived on the island while he was a boat captain. They moved to Charlevoix seven years ago when he took on the job of special consultant. The McDonoughs now live at 207 Burns St. in Charlevoix.

A broken ankle slowed McDonough down a bit this past spring but he still put in a full summer with the boat company and will not break all ties with the firm even after his retirement. At the August 30 party, it was announced that McDonough was unanimously elected to a three-year term on the five-man Board of Directors of the Beaver Island Boat Company.

McDonough has been working since the age of 13 so he plans to keep busy as much as possible now. A skilled carpenter, he plans on building a couple dollhouses for the grandchildren as his first projects.

"There are many people I have to thank for their consideration over the years," said McDonough, "But I want to be sure and publicly thank the City of Charlevoix officials and the Chamber of Commerce for their help and cooperation."

Capt. Lawrence McDonough is shown with some of the many gifts he received at his retirement party including a clock, lower left, ship's bell on the wall and a decorative brass anchor which he is holding.

County to receive snowmobile safety funds

Charlevoix County will receive a reimbursement of $2,715.13 from the Department of Natural Resources for its 1979 Snowmobile Safety Program.

Under legislation enacted in [illegible], the DNR is authorized to return up to three-fourths of the money spent by counties on Snowmobile Safety Programs.

According to State Senator Mitch Irwin (R-Sault Ste. Marie), a total of $34,484 is being reimbursed to the 14 counties in the 37th District. Charlevoix County's reimbursement is the fourth highest of all the counties in the district.

Race Week '80 results are in

By TOM DAMMANN

Race Week '80 got off to a good start Saturday, Aug. 30 with 70 contestants—the largest number ever—crossing the starting line off Charlevoix in the first leg of the annual Red Fox Regatta, down Lake Charlevoix to Boyne City.

Divided into four divisions, depending somewhat on size, the 70 graceful sailing yachts took off in a good southwest breeze.

But on the return, next day, the winds were so fickle and light that the race committee arranged for a finish at Horton Bay—perhaps justifiably, since the race is named for the old Red Fox Inn on Horton Bay to which Charlevoix sailors used to go in their end of summer race.

Of interest to sailors was the first place finish to Division 4 of the San Diego designed and built One Ton, RUSH owned by Kris Hicks, Lansing. This boat, named RUSH, because she was built in slightly more than 3 months, from design board to rigging, won the National One Ton Championships at Leland in June, the Chicago-Mackinac Island Race in July and the Little Traverse Bay Invitational at Harbor Springs the following week.

Overall results of the Red Fox Regatta were: Division 1, (1) BLASEN II, Karl Jurries, Petoskey; (2) CLOCKWORK, Gene Steele, Charlevoix; (3) FURY, William Schulz, Northville; Division 2—(1) RAZZMATAZZ, Gary Gleason, Charlevoix; (2) MELVIN, Craig Tallberg, Charlevoix; (3) SLY, Dave Strawbridge, Charlevoix; Division 3—(1) BONKERS, Peter Chatain, Harbor Springs; (2) FAROUCHE, Bill Babel, Traverse City; (3) MERRY HELL II, Jim Dilworth, Petoskey; and Division 4—(1) RUSH, Kris Hicks, Lansing; (2) GOLDDUST, George Foster, Mt. Clemens; (3) WOODPECKER, Charles Schreck, Alpena.

Heads-up seamanship in weather that provided everything from near flat calm to winds gusting up to 35 and 40 knots enabled David Irish of Harbor Springs to win the National Santana 525 Championship with his boat MAX (for maximum).

MAX came in first in five races and second in one.

The races were held in Lake Charlevoix, September 1-5, as part of Race Week '80, co-sponsored by Anheuser Busch, Inc., and Huron Distributors, Inc.

Only eleven boats participated in the championships. Their owners were each members of the Charlevoix Yacht Club which was a disappointment to the sponsors who until the last moment had expected contestants to come from Seattle and California to sail boats that had been prepared for their use.

Craig Tallberg in MELVIN took second place and CHARLIE sailed by one-time National Lightning Champion Henry J. Cawthra of Walloon Lake was third.

Others in order of their final standings were (4) MUD DUCK, Jerry Leonard; (5) SLY, Dave Strawbridge; (6) RAZZMATAZZ, Gary Gleason; (7) BANANAS, William Kenifeck; (8) BEEP BEEP, Robert T. Michels; (9) BASIC TRANSPORTATION, Mike Smith, Lansing; (10) RIBBIT, Julie McGraw; and (11) BANDIT, Josh Barnes, who missed four races due to illness.

Knight on the Town

The day I tackled Dale Hudzinski

Why did I do it?

I suppose all of us are prone, at the age of ten, to a certain degree of irrationality that is later hard to explain as an adult.

Consider also that in 1961, young football players all across Wisconsin were emulating such dieties as Ray Nitschke, Willie Davis and the fearless Willie Wood. Few locker rooms were not adorned without at least one utterance from Vince Lombardi on the wall about the importance of winning to one's spiritual wellbeing.

Then again it may have been that I just didn't get out of the way fast enough.

Whatever the reason, the fact is that I did tackle Dale Hudzinski and lived to tell about it, even if the memory of that fateful day 15 years ago is a bit cloudy.

It must have been a late October afternoon because I remember it getting cold and dark toward the end of football practice at Sacred Heart elementary school in Reedsburg, Wisconsin.

In those days, practice would run late due to the complex logistics of dressing 30 players in 20 uniforms, some of which dated to the Industrial Revolution. Somehow, though, after much taping, tying and tugging, everyone would trundle across the street to the practice field in something with a few pads in it.

Father Tom Lovell, the parish pastor, was the coach that year. I believe no parish priest has taken the job since. Perhaps it was decided that the clergy would be more helpful to the team from the altar than from the sidelines: Our team was such, however, that not even a high mass by the bishop could have made much difference.

We were not exactly blowing people out of the league that year. Long, long Sunday afteroon games found us at the wrong end of 60-6 routs and worse. Those were trying times for poor Father Lovell.

It was the mounting frustration and desperation that most likely prompted him to halt a lackluster practice that cold October day with a screeching whistle blast that no doubt sent several neighborhood families scurrying for their newly-stocked Civil Defense shelters.

Father Lovell took a deep breath and shook his head as the first offense regrouped from a broken play, picking up pads from the ground on their way back to the huddle.

It seemed he had tried everyone in the offensive backfield short of the nuns and who knows that the thought hadn't crossed his troubled mind. With neither a running game nor a passing game, the offense found itself regularly outscored by the defense's safeties [illegible].

Defensively the team commanded a modicum of respect because of some relatively big linemen whose appearance, if not their actual skills, tended to intimidate the more impressionable opponents.

Dale Hudzinski was the biggest of these linemen. An eighth grader then, Dale stood only about 5'5" but he must have weighed all of 200 pounds. He was the only one on the team who boasted a complete uniform. Rumor had it that it had been custom made for him by Omar the Tentmaker. Dale rarely met much objection from opposing linemen when he went for the quarterback. He may not have been the quickest pass rusher but when Dale got rolling, no one could stop him nor particularly wanted to.

And that is what gave Father Lovell the idea for his experiment that afternoon.

He beckoned Dale to the offensive huddle as those of us on defense groaned at the loss of our most stalwart lineman. Groans turned to laughter, however, when the huddle broke and Dale Hudzinski took an awkward stance in the fullback position.

Not much is clear after that but you must know who got the ball and ran untouched up the middle. And who then met him in the open field just as he [illegible].

Again, why a gangly sixth grader would attempt such a thing is a perplexing question. All I know is that he tried to jump over me when I went low and he probably would've made it if I had not grabbed his ankle thus causing a sudden, unscheduled landing on my body.

As if the physical punishment were not enough, imagine the trauma to a Catholic school sixth grader of waking up to a priest kneeling over him whispering. To a young innocent, whose freshest memory was of 200 airborne pounds about to thoroughly ruin his day, it was a shaking experience indeed.

When he was sure I still had a pulse, Father Lovell could not suppress his laughter. It was, he said over and over, a great, great tackle. But he was laughing so hard it was hard to take him seriously.

Maybe it was a great tackle. But I'd still like to know why I did it.

More mailings, less news

In a newspaper office, one need not watch the calendar to know when election year rolls around. The tip off is a quantum increase in mailings from legislators.

Monday's mail at the Courier alone included three seperate mailings from Congressman Bob Davis, two from State Repesentative Steve Andrews, two from Congressman Bud Shuster of the U.S. House of Representatives Republican Policy Committee and one each from Senator Carl Levin and State Representative Ralph Ostling.

We realize that elected officials must try to keep in close touch with their constituencies and welcome close contact between them and the media. It is our job to tell their story, when they have one.

But the news release mills operating out of some legislative offices, at taxpayer expense, are making it harder and harder for newsmen to sift for substantive material.

Over the course of this week at the Courier, we will receive more mailings from most likely all the above legislators. Why is a weekly newspaper getting three, four, five and six mailings a week from some of these legislators? Also, we are only one of hundreds of weekly papers in the state who are reaping this expensive paper harvest.

Cutting of uneccessary governmental costs is one of the most repeated campaign promises this election year. The incumbents would do well to prove their good intentions by their actions and manage more wisely the use of staff time and postal costs in getting their message out.

Department a 20,000 gallon tank at Mount McSauba that will be used as a quonset hut shelter at the city-run day camp there. The action came on a 4-2 vote with Aldermen Ivan Whitley and Jeff Porter opposing the request by Recreation Director Ike Boss.

-Heard a request by Gene Steele of Charlevoix Properties to buy some city property near the airport to be traded in a possible commercial development in the area. Since access to a railway spur was one factor in the arrangement, the council indicated that they would grant a railway easement but that they required more information before a purchase could be [illegible].

-Turned down an offer of $37,500 by the Real Estate Place for the city owned home next to City Hall on State St. Council members stuck to their previous asking price of at least $45,000.

-Authorized a $1,500 deposit for engineering fees involved with the formation of a drainage district at the May St. Apartments. City Manager James Brinker also told the council that a complaint had been filed against the apartment owner for an illegal fence height and the accumulation of stagnant water.

Learning economics by practice

About 10 years ago I had lunch at the [illegible] with a well-heeled friend and the talk turned to investments.

"If I had some money to play with," I said, "I would build some low to medium-priced rental units in Charlevoix. Everyone I talk to is looking for a place to rent, either for himself or a friend."

"You'd lose your shirt," my companion advised cheerfully. "The cost of housing today (1970) is so high that there is no money in the rental business. You have to turn to condominiums to share the high cost of ownership."

Of course, I thought he was wrong, because we had been having a regular stream of visitors at the Courier office looking for places to rent.

Now suddenly I have become the custodian of a relatively small amount of "family money" and have discovered that my friend was dead right.

Unless you hit upon a particularly good deal, such as an estate sale, you cannot buy a small home or even two or three apartment units and expect to make any money in the immediate future. There is simply too much of a spread between property values and what you can realistically expect to charge — and receive — as rent in Charlevoix's low-key economy.

When you consider taxes, up-keep, insurance and — in some cases — utilities, there is very little, if any, left over for the property owner. Move your rents higher, and your property stands vacant.

Don't get me wrong. There are some excellent real estate buys on the market if you expect to live in the house yourself. And you can still make money on property purchased 15 or 20 years ago.

But, generally speaking, you cannot make money today on newly purchased rental units in Charlevoix, even if you pay cash on the barrelhead.

This was one of the lessons Judy and I learned after weeks of traipsing through superannuated mansions, pounding on sagging walls, jiggling faucets and pawing through festoons of cobwebs in dank cellars.

Fortunately, we also spent long hours with our pocket calculator and came to the conclusion we should look elsewhere for investment opportunities, at least until the price of property drops or rents rise.

What bothers me at this point is how little I — as a product of the American educational machine — know about money management. And I wonder how many others are in the same predicament.

I am told that the United States is a capitalist country, built on the concepts of free enterprise and laissez-faire economics.

Yet how many of us can read the financial pages of the metropolitan press intelligently or spot the strengths and weaknesses of a given corporation through its prospectus?

In our consumer-oriented society, we urge our children to save their money to buy new bicycles, skateboards and other gimcracks. But they can go all the way through school without learning about the all-important role money plays as investment capital and how they can make money work for them.

I, for one, would like to see more emphasis in our educational system on the proper handling of money, calling upon the bankers, investment brokers, insurance agents, and Realtors in our community as guest lecturers.

Then I wish they'd open up the course to adults. I think many of us have missed a very important part of our education.

Letters: Kids and stoves

A traumatic experience teaches hard lesson

To The Editor:

We are writing this letter, now that winter is approaching, to let you know what can happen with woodstoves and children.

On March [illegible] of this year, our [illegible] month old baby, Joshua, was in his walker going across the carpet when the rollers of the walker hit the brick hearth on the floor and tipped making him fall into the stove on his right cheek. This happened at 5:30 p.m. at suppertime. The stove had cooled down considerably from the hot fire that had been built earlier in the day. The spring weather outside helped our child from being burned much worse.

The Eastport Torch Bay Ambulance rushed us to Munson Medical and there the doctors on duty suggested our baby be immediately taken to Ann Arbor Burn Unit because of the degree of burns on his face.

We were in Ann Arbor for almost a month and during that time a skin graft was put on Joshua's right cheek. The mental anguish was hard on my wife and myself for that period of time but after seeing some of the other burn patients and the percentage of burns on their bodies, we felt very fortunate our Joshua wasn't burned worse than he was. Joshua's healing process seems to be going real well and he goes back to Ann Arbor for a checkup next week. He goes back about very three months to be sure it is healing alright. He will be returning for quite a long time until they know his face has healed properly and will not need any more grafting or surgery.

Usually this always happens to other people, but as it happened to us, it can happen to you! We urge you to put some type of guard around your stove to protect your children. Even older children have been burned badly. There have been children at the Burn Unit with burns from hot coffee being pulled from the stove or table, pots from the stove, even a spark from a fire place caught one child's nightgown on fire. There are many other ways children can be burned so please help protect them from harm.

We must say that the well-trained medical staff at the Burn Unit does excellent work and this helps to put your mind at ease. Everyone at the hospital helped us very much and made our stay easier.

We are very thankful to the Eastport Torch Bay Ambulance for their quick and immediate action in rushing us to Munson Medical Hospital.

And lastly, our special gratitude to McPhillips Flying Service of Charlevoix. Faced with at least a 5 hour drive and airplane connections (and the hospital needed to get Joshua to Ann Arbor quickly) we called for help. Within 15 minutes McPhillips picked us up and within one hour we were at the Burn Unit in Ann Arbor. The total professionalism and courtesy extended us by McPhillips Flying Service will not be forgotten by our family. The community is fortunate to have this service available.

Doesn't see arbitration-umpire correlation

Mr. Editor:

Just about the period of time when one thinks he has seen it all; comes the [illegible].

I am referring to the political ad (paid?) supporting "binding arbitration" in the September 3 issue of the Courier.

If any strong impression is to be gained here it would have to be the speed that a new editor to our community becomes educated in what prevailing direction the political winds blow.

To be truly even-handed - there is the mere possibility that the East Jordan community has a huge following who love to read the Courier even if it isn't [illegible].

Yes! It is indeed a thought-provoking ad - in fact one could gather that the Courier supports the union position that there really is no limits to legalized extortion in view of the absence of any disclaimer as a footnote that this was indeed a paid ad by a political group which did not neccessarily reflect the sentiments of the weekly paper.

One thing can be said for the hired professional negotiator or the (neutral?) arbitrator - they are invariably from another area so do not have to live with their decision.

Periodically I confess to being a "little slow" but somehow I fail to appreciate the correlation between the baseball umpire and the binding arbitrator.

The name of the game here is MONEY (property owners earnings) while baseball is a game for fun or at least I think that's the way it goes.

Perhaps the property owners in the East Jordan school district understand the issue much better than we in the Charlevoix area.

With the vast unemployment in the East Jordan industrial spectrum one could reasonably question the M.E.A. decision in choosing the target area.

It is good to be understood.

Clip-on gadgets provide accurate radiation exposure readings for Big Rock personnel

How do you go about measuring something that cannot be seen, heard, touched, smelled or tasted? In the case of radiation, one answer, used in nuclear power plants, is the thermoluminescent dosimeter or TLD.

To employees of Consumer Power Company's Big Rock Point nuclear plant, the small blue badges which contain the TLDs and clip onto clothing are as familiar as construction hard hats, safety glasses and tools.

According to Theodore M. Allen, the utility's personnel dosimetry supervisor, the TLD performs an essential function - recording the amount of radiation to which an employee has been exposed. Keeping an accurate record of such exposures is required by the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

The TLD is a piece of white teflon that has been impregnated with calcium sulfate and is mounted in a blue plastic holder that is about two and a quarter inches long, one and a half inches wide and a half inch thick. The calcium sulfate records exposures to energy sources such as radiation.

The TLD case is designed to expose the impregnated teflon to various types of radiation.

-behind an open window is a section that records beta particles, x-rays, gamma rays and neutrons.

-a second zone behind plastic records everything but beta particles.

Two other areas behind both plastic and strips of metal record only penetrating rays like gamma and, to a lesser extent, x-rays.

Alpha particles travel about one inch in air and can be stopped by an inch of wood. Gamma and x-rays travel a greater distance and can only be stopped by dense material such as lead or concrete shielding.

By measuring the amount of energy absorbed in each zone of a TLD, a very accurate determination of an individual's radiation exposure can be made.

Keeping track of an employee's exposure to penetrating rays is our primary concern," Allen said. "The NRC requires that we keep accurate and timely records regarding how much radiation any worker in our plants has been exposed to, including a contractor's worker."

Each employee in the utility's nuclear plants is assigned a monitoring device containing a TLD which he or she must wear when working in areas of the plant where exposure to radiation might occur. The devices are turned in to the plant's health physics section after each workday.

The dosimeters are periodically shipped to Allen's laboratrey in Jackson for analysis and recording.

The laboratory, outfitted at a cost of some [illegible], has equipment that in one minute can read the amount of radiation each TLD has been exposed to.

The white teflon strips are removed from their blue holders and placed in a carousel located in a special machine, known as the Teledyne Isotopes TLD 9100 Reader. Heating causes each strip to give off its stored energy as minute quantities of light. The amount of light is in proportion to the amount of radiation received by each TLD.

The reader has a compartment where each TLD is heated to 295 degrees centigrade and each of the four zones is automatically scanned for the total amount of radiation exposure. Impulses of light are given off, measured and transformed to a digital readout. This information is also transmitted to a data terminal that provides a printed copy.

Allen said the information contained in the printed copy becomes part of the

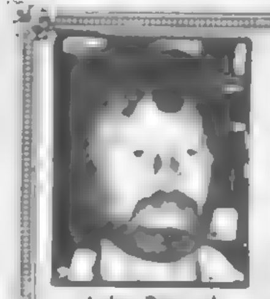
GEMWISE



John Reusch

THE STARS OF THE GEM SCENE

Gemstones, like people, have unique personalities. Some are dull and lifeless, others are bright and exciting. Some remain in the background, others are stars. And by stars, I mean literally stars!

Some gem materials have an internal structure that causes a star to appear on the surface. Star ruby and star sapphire are the best known of these. They contain numerous needle-like inclusions which intersect at specific angles. Light reflects off these inclusions in such a way that a star seems to float over the gemstone when the light source, the stone, or the beholder moves.

In order for this phenomenon to occur, however, the stone must be cut in a dome shape rather than be faceted. The laws of physics are the governing factors here.

Stars also occur in a number of other gems such as quartz and garnet. Sometimes the stars are strong, sometimes not; sometimes they will be [illegible] a weak leg or two; sometimes there is more than one star visible in a single stone. It all depends on the unique internal characteristics of the gem and the nature and power of the light source with which it is viewed.

As American Gem Society jewelers, we at Reusch Jewelry have studied the science of gemology and try to keep up on the latest trends and developments in the industry. We hope you'll come in for guidance when a gem purchase is in your stars.

Wedding

Argue-Hoaglund

Cheryl Lynn Argue became the bride of William Mark Hoaglund on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 30, in the United Methodist Church of Charlevoix.

Both young people have been living in Charlevoix, where they are employed by the Charlevoix Area Hospital as X-Ray technicians. The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Garth L. Argue of Bear Lake, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Hoaglund of Kingsford.

Approximately 200 guests witnessed the double-ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Austin Regier before the altar decorated with yellow fugi chrysanthemums, white gladiolus, and baby's breath.

The bride, who was escorted down the aisle by her father, wore a white gown featuring a Venise lace bodice with sweetheart neckline and sleeves of sheer chiffon detailed with Venise lace. The softly draped chiffon skirt tied at the waist and featured a Chapel-length train. The veil was of English imported illusion, finger-tip in length, with Venise lace appliques. The headpiece was made of matching lace and tiny seed pearls. The bride's bouquet consisted of yellow roses, stephanotis, and baby's breath.

Vocalist Dave Lindeman and organist Jeannie Brewster provided music for the ceremony.

Kristen Bignall of Charlevoix served as maid of honor, and Brenda Brown of Lansing and Cathy Carillo of Flint served as bridesmaids. Their gowns were full length mint green, featuring a long draped back with sash ties in front. They carried arrangements of yellow roses and wore single yellow roses in their hair.

Misty Maidens of Kaleva was the flower girl. She wore a long dress of yellow rose print on white and carried a ceramic basket of yellow and white daisies and baby's breath.

Darwin Samuel Maidens of Kaleva was the ring bearer.

Robert T. Hoaglund, Jr. of New Lenox, Ill. served as best man, and Richard Cavalier of Kingsford and William John Argue of Houghton were groomsmen. Curt Ferber and Ralph Corwin, both of Charlevoix, were ushers.

A reception, hosted by the bride's family at the American Legion Hall, followed the ceremony. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Ruby Bergstrom, made the four-tier wedding cake, and Mr and Mrs. Darwin Maidens acted as host and hostess. The Music Makers provided music for dancing.

The rehearsal dinner was held on Friday evening at Duffy's of Charlevoix, hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

Following a wedding trip through upper New York state, the newlyweds are at home at 823 Petoskey Ave., Charlevoix.

Duff's Lounge brings country flavor to the area

Recently opened and located just five miles west of Boyne City, on the Boyne City-Charlevoix road, Duff's Lounge brings to the country, more country'

Byllie Joe Duff the new owner said, "Bob and I picked a country motif for the new bars because we're country."

Byllie Joe and her husband Bob, both natives of the area, purchased the former Now and Then Bar. The Duffs got into the bar business after working at various jobs, between the two of them, including real estate, a clerk at a grocery store, managers of an area resort and an employee for Consumers Power Company

Because Bob is still employed at Consumers Power, Byllie Joe said she'd be spending more time at the bar than her husband.

Mrs. Duff is learning how to run the bar mostly, from the customers. "There's still a lot of 'bugs' that have to be worked out until I know exactly what I'm doing, but the customers have been more than helpful. They're the best teachers because you learn how to mix a drink according to their tastes."

Byllie Joe is confident of the local patronage, "We won't and haven't had any trouble getting customers," said Byllie Joe, "Up in this country people like to have a country bar to go to for good downhome recreation. I feel we're going to be successful because we know so many of the people around here and they know us. We understand each other."

The music style for Duff's Lounge is tagged "country review or contemporary country." Byllie Joe said, "what that actually means is there will be a disc jockey spinning country tunes Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

There will also be live entertainment with alternate bands filling in for the dj on some weekends. The grand opening for Duffs Lounge took place Labor Day weekend. Byllie Joe is hoping to serve [redacted]

Chx. County Ag Census shows increase

The 1978 market value of agricultural products sold by the 247 farms in Charlevoix County amounted to $4.5 million of an average of $18,342 each, up from $3 million in 1974 with an accompanying increase in production costs, according to a preliminary report of the 1978 Census of Agriculture released today by the Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce.

A breakdown of the county's total agricultural sales for 1978 followed by that for 1974, is as follows: Crops, $1.6 million compared with $609,000; livestock and livestock products, $2.6 and $2.1 [redacted].

While the value of gross sales rose, the farmers' costs, also climbed since [redacted]. Expenditures for fertilizer for 1978 were $353,000 compared to $200,000; costs of gasoline, diesel and other petroleum products were $190,000 compared to $157,000. Farm energy costs of all [redacted] totaled $256,000 for 1978. The estimated market value of machinery and equipment per farm increased from $17,538 to [redacted].

Of the total farms in the county, 30 had gross sales of $40,000 or more and 179 had sales of under $10,000. Farms operated by individuals or families represented 89 percent of the total; farms operated by corporations accounted for 1 percent. Some 97 percent of the operators owned all or part of the land they operated.

In 1978 the average age of farm operator was 50.6 years. Since 1974 the proportion of operators listing farming as their principal occupation remained at 51 percent.

Data in the reports for acreage and inventories for 1978 and 1974 are generally comparable; however, improved coverage in 1978, especially of smaller farms, should be taken into consideration in making direct comparisons of farm counts. Dollar values have not been adjusted for changes.

[redacted] 1978 had an average size of 193 acres. For 1974, 219 farms were counted with an average size of 201 acres. The land in farms totaled 47,664 acres in 1978 and 44,036 acres in 1974. Crops were harvested from 19,545 acres in 1978 and 15,623 [redacted]

Acreages of crops harvested for 1978 and 1974 were as follows: corn for grain, 2,970 acres vs. 2,681 acres; hay, 11,897 acres vs. 10,101 acres, corn silage, 2,213 acres; vegetables, 1,081 acre in 1978.

Production of corn for 1978 was 243,800 bushels compared [redacted].

The figures are for farms qualifying under the definition: Any place from which $1,000 or more of agricultural products were sold, or normally would have been sold, during the census [redacted]

The agriculture census was conducted in 1979 to obtain data on the nation's farm production and sales for calendar year 1978 Information from the farm census, the 21st of a series which began in 1840, will be used by federal, state and county agencies, agricultural colleges, agricultural and business groups, and farmers to help make a variety of decisions about agricultural programs and policies.

Rayder harriers, however, took first and second places in the meet with Jay Swarwout pacing the pack with a time of 16:06. Team-mate Jeff Landon was second with a time of 16:08 over the 5.0 kilometer [illegible].

Jim Landon was 16th with a time of 16:58; Todd Russell, 20th, 17:08 and Scott Davis, 25th, 17:23.

The Rayder JV squad with 27 points took the Junior Varsity division with Muskegon Oakridge placing second with 52 points and Clare third with 59.

Bill Dohm with a time of 17:31 placed first; Jim Duke second, 17:35; Alec Sheets, 7th, 18:19, Bill Taylor, 8th, 18:19.4; and Jon Spieles, 9th, [illegible].

Rayders open grid season with 13-0 victory

Early season bugs in the offense plagued both Charlevoix and Kalkaska Friday as the two played scoreless football for over three quarters before two quick strikes iced the non-conference home opener for the Rayders.

Charlevoix quarterback Scott Kelly broke the deadlock with a plunge from the Kalkaska one yard line following a blocked punt by Rayder senior Frank Kaufman early in the fourth quarter. Joe Sladek added the extra point.

On the second play after the ensuing kickoff, Bill Ranger intercepted a Kalkaska pass at the Kalkaska 29 and three plays later halfback Jim Buchanon scampered 23 yards for a Charlevoix touchdown. The extra point was wide and the Rayders held on for a 13-0 victory.

Fumbles and stalled drives hampered the Rayder attack for most of the evening and halted a good drive early in the game that came up short on the Kalkaska one yard line.

Charlvoix Coach Don Carey was frustrated with his team's inability to put points on the board during the first three quarters but was plenty happy to be 1-0 going into next Friday night's game at Benzie Central.

"We'll face many bigger and tougher teams this season," said Carey, "But tonight's game was a hard fought battle and I'm glad we pulled it out."

Carey was especially pleased with the running of 5'10", 160 pound Jim Buchanon saying, "He (Buchanon) is small but very fast and can surprise you." Buchanon gained 59 yards in seven carries Friday night.

Sharing the running duties in a very balanced attack were Mark Beaudoin also with 59 yards in 11 carries and Mark Morgan with 58 yards in 14 carries. Quarterback Kelly ran for 28 yards in six carries.

Kelly was two for eight and gained 22 yards in the passing category. He threw one interception.

Junior Mike Loper anchored the Rayder defense with 11 tackles and two interceptions. Other defensive standouts were Joel Schnackenberg with nine tackles, Frank Kaufman with nine, Dave Buday with six and Jeff Drury with six.

Ross Carey punted three times for 22, 44 and 35 yards. Mike Loper handled kickoff duties booting for about 40 yards on each of his three [illegible].

Dave Buday and Bill Ranger each had one interception in the game.

This week's last non-conference contest at Benzie Central is scheduled to get under way at 7:30 p.m.

Whitleys bring back tales from Alaska

By PEG OHLE

Jim Whitley

Jim and Bessie Whitley of Clipperview recently returned from their "dream of a lifetime" – a trip to Alaska.

"We went just to see what it was like," says Whitley, who retired two years ago as Superintendent of Charlevoix' Electric and Water Department.

The Whitleys made the 7,400-mile round trip in their motor home, following the Alcan Highway a large part of the way

"The highway was good, hard-packed gravel, but the gravel did fly around enough to break windshields and windows every once in a while. When you came to a stretch of black top, you really appreciated it," Whitley said of the roads.

Also, there are plenty of places to stay overnight – trailer parks and motels at least every [illegible] miles

The Alaskan pipeline does not mean cheap gasoline, according to Whitley. It costs just about the same as it does in Charlevoix, although in a few remote places it was priced as high as $1.80 a gallon.

Mrs. Whitley observed that grocery prices in Fairbanks were comparable to those in Charlevoix except for fresh [illegible]

"Compared with the wages they make, they have a good deal," Mrs. Whitley said, noting that the average man in Alaska earns $24,000 a year

Looking at a road map of Alaska, Whitley pointed out that a large part of the state is inaccessible except by water or plane The road system covers only a small area.

While driving along Alaskan roads, one might see a herd of horses running free, Whitley said. They are not [illegible] horses, but belong to Indians and Eskimos who tie [illegible] around the horses' necks so [illegible] whereabouts can be [illegible].

However, not many [illegible] animals are visible from the highways. "We only saw a few moose," Whitley reported.

Those interested in seeing wild animals may do so by taking a trip through the Animal Parks, where grizzly [illegible], caribou, [illegible] sheep, moose, and other indigenous animals live in their native states.

"It's an all-day trip, but worth it," according to Whitley

Another side trip took the Whitleys up Mt. McKinley, which they couldn't see because of weather conditions. "It's visible only about five days a year," Whitley explained.

Dawson City, hub of the Alaskan gold rush many years ago, has been rebuilt, but the city planners left all the old buildings standing and built the modern city around them, which the Whitleys found to be an interesting combination of history and efficiency.

They did not get to Alaska's largest city, Anchorage, but they did visit Fairbanks, the second largest, which is a [illegible].

Another town the Whitley's found interesting was Watson Lake, on the border of the Yukon Territory and British Columbia. A block of downtown Watson Lake was equipped with sign boards to which visitors from all over the world had affixed name plates, home town makrers, and other types of identification. The Whitley name plate was added to the [illegible].

Alaska is a haven for traveling senior citizens, according to Whitley, although medical care is not as easily attainable as it is in this area. Most of the medical care is provided by Army installations, which may be as far as 300 miles away.

Whitley's Alaskan adventure

It was "old home week" for the Whitleys in Fairbanks when they visited with the Rev. George Majors, former pastor of the Church of God in Charlevoix, who left here in 1969. Majors told his visitors that they were the first members of the Charlevoix church to visit him in Alaska.

There apparently is plenty of the old Alaska still in evidence, even though it may have a modern tinge. The Whitleys met a prospector who lived in a motor home and made about $50 a day panning for gold

The Whitleys did not reveal what souvenirs they brought home, but they did show us a bottle of lava from Mt. St Helens which they scooped up in an area 150 miles from the volcano

Whitley says he would like to return to Alaska "in a couple of years" to see how much it has changed. He also suggests that anyone making the trip go through Jasper National Park, which "no one should miss", On their trip through the Park, the Whitleys visited with Dr Cunningham, who once was a dentist in Charlevoix.

Four site plans approved but one may land council in court

Plans for new industrial, commercial and residential developments on Petoskey Avenue received favorable response from the Charlevoix City Council in three separate actions at the Council's regular meeting Monday night.

Lexalite International Corporation announced its intentions to expand its manufacturing operation to the former Gateway Furniture building on the city's north side and asked for a 50 percent property tax exemption as part of program designed to support industrial growth in the city

Lexalite Production Manager Bill Kenifeck told the council that the firm's board of directors approved only days earlier an expansion plan that would add 7,500 square feet to the Gateway building which Lexalite presently leases for storage and light manufacturing.

Under the plan, Lexalite would purchase the building, build the addition onto it and pay only 50 percent of the taxes over and above those now paid for the next 12 years.

Said Kenifeck, "We are asking the council to assist us in this venture through the tax parity program because we want to be located in the city and think it is in the city's best interest to support industrial growth when it can."

Kenifeck and Executive Vice President Jim Kline who also appeared before the council indicated that Lexalite had the alternative of expanding its present plant in Hayes Township but that the board of directors' first preference was a city location.

Both City Manager James Braker and Alderman Jeff Porter strongly supported the tax parity for Lexalite citing the program's intended purpose as one of attracting more industry and providing more jobs.

Said Porter, "This is a clean, non-polluting industry that is good for Charlevoix and I think we should go along with them."

Subsequent council approval of the tax parity was unanimous. Kenifeck said that Lexalite intends to proceed rapidly with its plans and will aim for completion of the project within seven to eight weeks following approval of a site plan.

The council also approved unanimously the site plan for a self-service gas station at the Petoskey Avenue location presently used by Woodland Oil Company as a bulk storage depot.

The proposed Total station will be limited to selling only gasoline, oil and other basic automotive products. The council was careful to specify, in its approval of the site plan, that the station would not handle any groceries or other convenience store products other than soda, cigarettes and candy in vending machines.

A Woodland Oil representative told the council that construction was slated to start immediately with the station to be completed "as soon as possible."

Architect Jack Begrow also received a generally favorable response from council members on a preliminary site plan for a 30-unit condominium development on Petoskey Ave. near the Municipal Golf Course

Other than ten-foot chimneys, which Begrow said may require special consideration since they exceed present heighth limits set by the city, the preliminary project was accepted unanimously by the council. Begrow represented developer James Benish of Flint at the meeting

Undetered by the threat of legal action involving the city, council members voted 4-1 to approve a site plan for a new building proposed by the Ward Brothers Boat Shop at their present location on Antrim St.

The Wards first approached the city two weeks ago with plans for their new building but did not receive council approval at that time because of the objections of Henry Soderberg, a neighbor, who claimed the larger structure proposed by the Wards would block his view of Round Lake and substantially decrease the value of his property.

Plans submitted to the council by Bernard Ward Jr. and his sons Bernard

Band director Filkins turns in resignation to board

By [illegible]

The Charlevoix Board of Education named two new members, elected a vice president, accepted the resignation of the band director and set tuition for the current school year in addition to taking other action at its regular meeting Monday night.

After meeting in executive session to [illegible] two vacancies on the board of education [illegible] named Michael Gibbons, local attorney, to succeed Charles A. Elzinga, a veteran of nine years service and Mrs. John (Doris) Pearl, resident of Norwood, to succeed Mrs. Connie Pointner. Elzinga resigned for business reasons and Mrs. Pointner to accept a part-time teaching position in the middle school. The two new members will fill the vacancies until the next regular school election in June 1981.

Following the naming of the members to fill the vacancies, Mrs. Elaine Martin was elected vice president to fill the office vacated by Elzinga.

In a move that caught everyone but the board by surprise, the board accepted the resignation of Michael Filkins. They voted on the issue after he had addressed the board. He said that when he came here as band director he had been asked to bring discipline and order to the band program. He said that discipline is necessary in order to accomplish a musical performance goal. "Anyone who tries to bring about discipline where it has been lacking is immediately criticized by those being disciplined," he stated.

"Secondly, I said I had to have total group participation; i.e., everyone in the band giving his or her best at all times. There were students who would come to class without their instruments

Crew members man the rails as the Sundew prepares to sail out of Round Lake to a new home port in Duluth.

USCGC Sundew leaves

While most of Charlevoix slept Sunday morning, a touching farewell scene was played out in the predawn darkness at the downtown waterfront

A handful of wellwishers waved from the docks and two city police squads wound their sirens in salute as the USCGC Sundew slipped quietly out of her Round Lake berth en route, eventually, to a new home port in Duluth.

With her departure Sunday, the Sundew ended a 22-year association with Charlevoix. The 180-foot buoy tender-ice breaker has known no other home port for as long a time in her 36-year lifetime

After replacing a buoy in the De Tour Passage Sunday, the Sundew proceeded to Sault Ste. Marie where she is scheduled to spend three weeks at the Twin City Marina for several minor renovation projects.

After the annual shipyard work is completed, the crew will swap ships with the USCGC Mesquite, now based in Duluth, and return to Charlevoix. The Mesquite is due to take up her new assignment in Charlevoix by mid-October.

Ostensibly the swap was prompted by the loss last year of the Coast Guard Cutter Blackthorne in a Tampa Bay collision. Over the past year the Coast Guard district command in Cleveland has contemplated several reassignments including one that would have substituted a 140-foot ice breaker tug for a 180-foot vessel in Charlevoix.

When the Mesquite ties up in Charlevoix, however, few people will recognize any difference from the Sundew. Superstructures of the two ships are virtually identical and there are only a few minor structural differences below decks.

The only significant difference can be found in the engine room where the Sundew packs almost twice the horsepower of the Mesquite

Next week: "A first-hand account of the Sundew's last mission out of Charlevoix", or, "Knight on the Lake."*

Lt. Commander Warren Miller, skipper of the Sundew, summed up the feeling of most crew members saying, "We are glad to be able to stay in Charlevoix but we will miss the Sundew very much. The men have worked hard on this ship and are very proud of her. Naturally it will be difficult to turn her over to another crew and start over with the Mesquite."

Ken Christiansen stands by a water wheel stilled by the dried up creek.

Dried creek is mystery to everyone involved

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

What do you do when your creek runs dry?

Ken and Myrtle Christiansen, who built their dream house in 1955 on Dennis Creek, a meandering trout stream in Timberlane Terrace in Atwood, would like to know

Formerly of Greenville, Michigan, the Christiansens moved north when Ken sold his Sinclair Refining Company gas and fuel oil business in 1964

Where Dennis Creek takes a couple of swings and turns the Christiansen's built a cabin. They raised their family "falling to sleep to the sound of running water," and learning to fish for brookies, "which they always returned to the stream," Ken said recently

Now the trout are gone, the stream's dry, the water wheel Ken built stands motionless and a rustic bridge leading to one son's sleeping cabin crosses a dry ravine

"It's like death around here without the sound of water," Myrtle said, looking toward the creek

Why the creek went dry is a mystery. A lot of people are offering different [illegible]

Ken and Myrtle and other neighbors in the development are convinced the creek has dried up because Antrim Dell's Golf Course has built ponds at the creek's headwaters and is pumping water to irrigate the golf course

Lloyd Kirby, an owner of the 18-hole golf course, shares the Christiansen's concerns, but doubts the cause is the irrigation system at the golf course

The Department of Natural Resources (DNR), seems to be equally baffled for now

The Christiansens are losing patience.

"That streams flows when they (the golf course) are not pumping for irrigation," Ken contended as he looked at Antrim Dell's ponds

"The creek went dry for the first time two years ago," Myrtle observed later, as she searched her desk for the original letters of complaint she sent the DNR in 1978

Mrs. Christiansen was told then that her contention was wrong because their creek, called Dennis Creek, was not the same as the creek flowing through the golf course.

In 1978, DNR hydrologist Leon Cook informed the Christiansens that "there are no state statutes that regulate the withdrawal and consumptive use of water from the lakes and streams of Michigan. Such use of water comes under the Riparian Rights Common Law Doctrine."

Cook advised the Christiansens to consider a civil suit

He added that the DNR might take legal action "if we feel that damage to the resource is being caused."

But that was 1978.

This summer the creek went dry again on August 6, according to Mrs. Christiansen and she called the DNR.

Steve Swan, Regional Fish Biologist, visited the Christiansens. Working from geological survey maps, he maintained it was not the same creek as at Antrim Dells.

Meanwhile small trout flopped in the muddy creek bottom giving robins, blue heron and other birds easy pickings.

Now the birds are gone. So, too, is other wild life, they say

On Monday, September 8, after more complaining and prodding, Steve Swan, accompanied by DNR hydrologist Douglas Bidell from Lansing, walked the creek

Emerging from the woods covered with leaf stains and mud, Swan admitted, "I was wrong about this being a different creek."

Swan said Guyer Creek, which begins with springs at Antrim Dells, and feeds the ponds also feeds Dennis Creek in an [illegible]

But the question remains: Is the irrigation system at Antrim Dells drying up Dennis Creek?

Swan and Bidell now tend to think so, but as Swan said, scientific evidence must be collected before official action can be taken

Swan and Bidell explained that laws regulating such activities were not passed in Michigan until 1973, and therefore do not pertain to the ponds constructed in 1971 at Antrim Dells

But Swan also said that if the DNR can prove that the irrigating is causing Dennis Creek to dry up and is harming the environment, then the DNR law

Buying and Selling Real Estate by Gene Steele

A BETTER BUY

Sure mortgage interest rates are higher than they were, but so are the market values of homes and land. Please believe me when I say that even at today's inflation prices and interest rates, real estate is a better buy than anything else you can acquire with borrowed dollars.

Financing for other purchases often costs twice as much, and these things depreciate while a house usually grows in value. Check the trade-in value of your car when you shop for a new one. Also for the past ten years, real estate values have doubled the increase in the Dow Jones average.

In this sense, real estate is the most worth while investment you can make, and your best protection against inflation. And don't forget the [illegible] dividends your family will enjoy as you live in your growing investment.

SAPPHIRES AMERICAN STYLE

Did you know that the largest proven sapphire deposit in the world is located in our own state of Montana? The mine in Yogo Gulch extends for five miles and is becoming a major producer.

The Yogo Gulch deposit was first discovered by accident in the 1890's. A group of miners happened upon it in their search for gold, at first mistaking the gem crystals for broken bits of glass.

The mine was successfully worked for 30 years and then shut down. It was not until 1977 that serious mining was resumed. About 70,000 tons of rock have been processed since then.

The Yogo deposit is the only one which is still in its place of formation. All other sapphire deposits are alluvial, that is, the gem material broke loose from its host rock through weathering, was washed away into rivers and streams, and was buried beneath sand and debris.

The American Gem Society recently presented to the Smithsonian Institution a collection of jewelry set with American gemstones. The collection was designed by Aldo Cipullo, a famous New York designer, and manufactured by top American Gem Society jewelry manufacturers plus a few friends of AGS. Of the 31 pieces in the collection, seven of them contain Montana sapphires.

The AGS American Gemstone Jewelry Collection will be touring the country for two years. Hopefully, it will hit our city so you can see these fine pieces. In the meantime, be sure to come into our store and see the lovely collection of sapphire jewelry we keep in stock.

"Walk Against a Radioactive Michigan" participants gather for a moment of prayer at the Big Rock gate before starting their walk to Lansing.

Anti-nuke marchers brave weather and head to Lansing

A troupe of six anti-nuclear activists set out from the Big Rock nuclear power plant Saturday with intentions to walk to Lansing to discuss their concerns with state legislators.

The "Walk Against a Radioactive Michigan", sponsored locally by the Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix, will also involve, according to planners, a contingent from the South Haven area who are to start out for Lansing next week in a show of opposition to the Pallisades nuclear plant there. Both Big Rock and Pallisades are owned and operated by Consumers Power Company.

Joe McDonough of St. James, an organizer of the walk from Charlevoix, said the group expects to add more walkers as it proceeds toward Lansing. He also said that most participants will not walk the entire distance but will join the walk for limited stretches along the way. McDonough estimated an arrival in Lansing by September 30 with daily goals of about 15 miles. One of the purposes of the walk, he said, was to alert the people of Michigan to the hazards of nuclear power by talking with them along the way and handing out literature.

Another participant, Pat Barnett of Traverse City, emphasized that the walk is to show nuclear power as a threat to all Michigan residents, not just those living close to nuclear plants.

Walkers braved a steady rain Saturday afternoon as they made their way south on Highway 31

Substance abuse programs to be administered by CHIP

CHIP Counseling Center of Charlevoix has been awarded the contract to administer substance abuse programs in Charlevoix, Emmet and Antrim Counties by the Northern Regional Substance Abuse Coordinating Agency, as of October 1, Oren Schroeder CHIP Director announced this week.

CHIP Counseling Center, which began in Charlevoix in 1976, provides a full range of counseling services to individuals and families.

The addition of the substance abuse programs, according to Schroeder, will dove-tail with the counseling CHIP has been offering for the past four years and enable clients to receive professional substance abuse counseling within the same agency.

In addition to CHIP offices in Charlevoix and Boyne City at the Boyne Valley Medical Clinic, CHIP will be opening offices in East Jordan, Petoskey and Antrim County. While the new offices will primarily provide substance abuse – alcohol and other drugs – counseling, all clients will have access to all CHIP counseling services.

CHIP Director and counselor Schroeder and Terry Smith also a professional mental health therapist, will be joined by substance abuse counselors already experienced with the three-county program formerly administered by District Health Department #3. The substance abuse counselors will work out of the CHIP offices in each county.

William Streur, Regional Coordinator for the Northern Regional Substance Abuse Coordinating Agency in Gaylord, explained why CHIP was awarded the substance abuse contract.

"This year the bidding was open to all human service agencies in the north, due to budget revisions.

"CHIP Counseling Center presented an optimistic yet realistic proposal. They showed through their presentation and the CHIP Board of Directors, as well as letters of recommendation, that CHIP has a great deal of local support and can have significant impact on the community and provide a quality service.

"My board was really impressed with the make-up of the CHIP board of directors," Streur continued, noting that the CHIP board consists of volunteers who represent a cross section of the communities CHIP serves and who take an active part in the direction of CHIP.

Speaking for CHIP, Schroeder said he welcomed the addition of substance abuse to CHIP, "because we have found that alcohol or some form of drug abuse is often a contributing factor to family problems.

"When substance abuse counseling and mental health counseling form a relationship, we will be able to offer a better, more total, holistic approach to counseling," Schroeder observed.

CHIP Counseling Center was founded in 1976 when the Ransom family of Charlevoix agreed to help underwrite its first three years. Today CHIP, a private counseling agency, relies on community support for much of its funds.

Fees for counseling at CHIP Center are based on a sliding scale, determined between counselor and client, according to the client's ability to pay. The initial consultation fee of $10 can be waived in certain circumstances. Fees thereafter range from $3 to $40 per hour. Substance abuse counseling fees will be [illegible].

The center's philosophy is "to provide a place where people in the community can seek help, regardless of income." Thus fees amount to less than 20% of CHIP's income and CHIP depends on the support of others who also believe the whole community benefits from having mental health counseling available to anyone seeking help.

CHIP is active in preventive mental health programs, as well, working with the schools on parent education projects and holding workshops on such subjects as stress, child rearing, communication and life style planning. The counseling center works closely with local industry providing services to employees. It also works closely with other professionals, social service agencies, clergy and law enforcement.

In administering the substance abuse programs, CHIP will continue to work with these professionals, developing educational programs and teaching others how to identify substance abuse problems in their community.

CHIP offices in Charlevoix are on Park Avenue behind the Charlevoix Area Hospital, in Boyne City at the Boyne Valley Medical Clinic. The location and opening dates for the East Jordan, Petoskey and Antrim County offices will be announced shortly.

County to write solid waste plan

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission will soon undertake the writing of a plan to dispose of solid waste (trash and garbage) which is generated within the county.

The plan will be designed following rules recently approved by the Department of Natural Resources as part of the state law pertaining to solid waste disposal.

State law requires that a 13-member advisory committee representing various segments of the county be appointed to work with the Planning Commission. The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week named that committee, as follows:

Wesley Beebe, William Marme, Jr., and Clarence H. Smith, all of Charlevoix; and Bruce Malpass of East Jordan, representing solid waste handlers.

Larry Levengood and Dawson Way, both of Charlevoix, representing environmentalists.

Dennis Jason, East Jordan, representing the Northwest Regional Planning Commission; Oral Sutliff, Boyne City, representing county government; Oscar Ward, Charlevoix, representing city government; and Junior Hunt, Boyne Falls, representing township government.

"At large" members are Ralph Richardson and Thomas Wieland of Charlevoix, and Tim Clifton of Boyne City.

At the present time, county solid waste is disposed of in several landfills located in various parts of the county. However, the Department of Natural Resources has warned that these landfills do not meet DNR specifications and may be closed at any time.

News of death learned

News of the death of a former resident, Mrs. Marjorie (Gaffney) See, 84, at Glendale, Calif., on Sept. 6, has been received by Mrs. King Saunders.

Mrs. See, the former Marjorie Weaver, was a native of Charlevoix. She had lived in the west for many years. Lou See, whom she married following the death of Robert Gaffney, died in 1974.

She is survived by a son, Robert Gaffney of Glendale and two grandsons.

Funeral services and burial were in Glendale.

Chx. students face state tests

The fourth, seventh, and tenth graders of Charlevoix Public Schools will be given the state tests between September 16th and 18th. These tests measure student knowledge and understanding of selected basic reading and math skills.

Students are given as much time as they need to take the tests so that they have a maximum opportunity to show what they know. The purpose of giving the test is to provide teachers with information, to help students acquire the skills they are lacking and to provide educators with information to use when studying programs.

Testing is expected to be completed by September 20th. School officials expect that the tests will be scored and results returned to the district by October 13th.

After the results are received and reviewed, they will be sent home with the students to be shared with the parents. A copy of each students results will be available in the principal or counselors office.

If there are any questions or concerns regarding students' results, call the Elementary, Middle, or High School.

Sheriff Lasater said he was anxious to talk with anyone who witnessed the accident in which Michael Snizik and Tracene Curtis were injured or anyone who saw either of the cars involved either immediately before or after the accident.

The Snizik's car was a Volvo and the second vehicle was a black van with an Ontario license plate.

Poky's last stand

Driving south on the gravel road through Fisherman's Island State Park, one will not see Poky and Lita Wheeler's house unless he is really looking for it.

The unobtrusive little log cabin built years ago as a hunting hideout is nestled cozily on the lake side of the road. Motorists intent on reaching one of the park's beaches or lake views seldom pay attention as they speed by leaving clouds of gravel dust to settle on the Wheelers' driveway

Poky, 77, will be heading with Lita to St. Petersburg in a couple weeks where the Wheelers spend their winters. With shutters to put on and screens to put away, Poky doesn't have a lot of time to spend with people coming by to look at the cabin. But he'll take the time because Poky's eager to put it in the hands of a new owner - much to the chagrin of the Department of Natural Resources

The Wheeler's postage stamp lot is the last private holding in the vast acreage of Fisherman's Island State Park, one of the largest in Michigan. Originally the property was comprised of about 345 feet of lake frontage

After sales to the DNR three years ago of 80 feet on one side and 142 feet on the other, all that's left is 123 feet; just enough for the cabin, a generator nearby and a rustic stone patio terraced down toward the lake

Though today it is her dream house, when Lita first laid eyes on the primitive log cabin 20 years ago it was somewhat of a nightmare

"The wind blew through the cracks in the logs constantly," she recalls. "And the roof leaked so much we couldn't find enough pots and pans to catch all the water. It was awful."

But the Wheelers decided the place had promise and went to work. Poky re-roofed and Lita caulked. Caulking between the awkwardly shaped logs presented some special problems, though, since Lita soon found out that the caulk would not hold if it was merely laid in with a caulking gun

After much trial and error, she found that the only way to do it right was to press the waterproofing material into the cracks with her fingers. And the only protection for her fingers that seemed to work were the little rubber sheathes secretaries use to sort papers. Lita still chuckles when she tells of going into office supply stores to buy huge supplies of the things.

When the job was done, Lita had caulked three linear miles between the logs and today the cabin is as tight as a drum.

Other improvements were made over the years making the cabin as cozy and comfortable a vacation home as anyone could ask for. There are no services such as municipal electricity, water or sewage but the Wheelers have made out quite well, thank you, with natural gas tanks for stove and refrigerator; a generator for lights in the evening, a well and a septic tank.

A sturdy deck extending off the back porch affords Poky the view he has dreamed of his whole life. A life-long sailor and acknowledged expert on celestial navigation, (he still sets compasses for vessels of every size and type), Poky has a string of tales as long as a mainsail halyard. From his cherished deck he can see the boats sail past and recall his many trips to the South Seas or his 27 Chicago to Mackinac races

Suffice it to say that Poky and Lita are quite attached to their summer haven - too attached to see it bulldozed into the sand which is what the DNR will do, they say, if it gets the property

Fact is, the DNR was a bit startled when Poky put the house on the market. Dave Dilts, Regional Parks Supervisor in Roscommon, said his agency was under the impression that they would have a first option when the Wheelers decided to sell.

"It's the last bit of frontage to be obtained for Fisherman's Island," said Dilts, "And I guess we always thought it would automatically go to us when the time came."

Well, the time has come and nothing is automatically going to anyone if Poky has his way

"His asking price is just too high for us to buy the property on the market," said Dilts, "The figure is far from what the Lands Division has appraised the property at. Our only alternative, eventually, is adverse possession and that never goes over too well. We'd much rather work something out with Mr Wheeler."

Mr Wheeler, meanwhile, thinks the cabin has a future as a vacation home for someone because of the legal requirements for adverse possession, or in other words, condemnation

"They (the DNR) cannot take over a piece of property unless they prove that the park cannot operate without it," says Poky, "And they've been running the park quite adequately all the time we've been here."

In any case, the legal question is complicated enough to be tied up in litigation for years, he adds

For the time being, Poky and Lita's cabin on the lake seems protected from the bulldozer and the DNR's park map has a little square of a different color right in the middle

How long can Poky hold off the wolves? As long as it will take, says Lita, and, looking at those three miles of caulked cracks between the logs again, one tends to believe her and sit through rehearsals, others who would not participate in the marching band at home football games or participate in group instruction in the classroom," he explained.

"As the year went on," he continued, "the students were working hard and by the time spring came we had a good program. I ended the school year feeling that we would begin this year on a good sound basis. The difficulties and misunderstandings that I had had with some parents I thought were understood and settled. My aim was to build a long range program built on good sound instruction with students who wanted to learn."

"When this year started I felt I had accomplished this. We had more than 80 percent of the students giving 100 percent and students dedicating their time to classroom study."

He said that long range planning has its positive and negative sides. "On the positive side, everything has to stand up and in the beginning this can be a very delicate situation. Also everyone has to have a positive attitude. We had that in the present group which was going to be an example of those coming from the middle school."

"The negative side I find to be purely political. A lot of people don't understand why the program is smaller and they don't give the kids credit for what they are doing. It is necessary to clear up this program in order to have a long range program."

"I have been criticized and I can take that. I took it all last year. When school started this year I thought that was over with. However it isn't. I can take the criticism but when it starts to affect the students and the program I feel something must be done. I cannot have it affecting the students. This is why I have offered my resignation," Filkins said in conclusion. He said he would stay until a successor could be named.

Steven G. Smith asked several questions about the program including how many students were lost from the program. He was told 20 including those by graduation.

In the discussion that followed Mrs. Ardeth Wieland said she had been aware of some of the animosity but hadn't realized it had reached this point. She added that it is unfortunate that we as a board couldn't have gathered all those good things together. We have to give him (Filkins) a lot of credit. She concluded by saying "The blame for this is ours (the board's)."

The president, Max Novak, asked for a roll call vote. Kenneth Boss, Mrs.

Ward Bros. site plan puts city in middle

III and Donald this week showed a drop in the building heighth of 30 inches. The site plan was approved as submitted by the Plan Commission last week.

Lloyd Kirby, Soderberg's son-in-law, said, however, that the lower heighth still blocked the view of the lake from Soderberg's home and urged the council to delay action until attorneys for Wards and Soderberg could work on a settlement.

Robert Hoffman, Soderberg's attorney, was out of town and unable to attend Monday night's meeting. A letter from Hoffman was sent to council members last week indicating that the proposed building would decrease the value of Soderberg's property by as much as $40,000, that it would pose a fire hazard to Soderberg's house because of its proximity and that the planned metal-sided structure would not conform to the neighborhood.

In the letter, Hoffman also said that he had been instructed "to commence suit immediately in an attempt to enjoin the building as proposed." He urged the council to withhold decision and avoid the cost of a legal battle

Attorney William McTaggart, representing Wards, advised the council to act on the site plan saying that the legal wrangling should be between Wards and Soderberg.

Said McTaggart, "The question here is simply whether the site plan meets city requirements and is satisfactory to the council. Any lawsuit should involve only the two parties with differences."

Alderman Ivan Whitley agreed saying, "We get involved in lawsuits almost every day. I don't think we should let that bother us now and delay action any further." Whitley went on to move approval of the plan which passed 4-1 with only Jeff Porter dissenting. Alderman [illegible] was not present at the meeting.

In other action, the council:

-Acknowledged the receipt of 17 resumes from applicants for the position of airport manager and instructed the city manager to review them and make a recommendation at a later date.

-Opened three bids for establishment of a fixed base operation at the airport, one from Welke Aviation of Beaver Island and two separate proposals from McPhillips Flying Service currently based at the Charlevoix Airport. Again, the city manager was instructed to summarize the three bids and make a recommendation.

-Approved a raise in ambulance service charges to $45 per patient per call base rate plus $2 per loaded mile, $10 per half hour of unit time in excess of one hour and a $50 use fee for the "Jaws of Life" extricating equipment. The council also passed a raise in compensation to ambulance attendants to $15 per call for the first hour and $5 per half hour of additional time.

Woodsmoke hails changing season

Shortly before dawn Monday, literally hundreds of geese flying in two "V" formations passed over Charlevoix, honking wildly, en route to winter nesting grounds in more agreeable climes.

This, coupled with Sunday's cold snap, is a sure sign that one of Northern Michigan's hottest and driest summers is rapidly drawing to a close.

Many Charlevoixans cranked up their woodstoves over the weekend, and the smell of woodsmoke after such a long absence was downright refreshing.

The sound of chain saws also added to the autumnal atmosphere.

And just one week ago, the Clocks spent Sunday afternoon at the beach. Times certainly change fast.

I SEE BY the papers that the hostage situation may be back on the front burner after months of dormancy.

The Ayatollah Khomeini says all he wants from the U.S. is an apology for buttering up to the shah, return of the shah's wealth and return of all Iranian assets presently impounded in this country.

After agonizing over our cozy relations with so many of the world's tyrants over the years, an apology may be in order, not only to the Iranians but to other subjugated peoples who are still trying to throw off the yoke of dictatorship.

And certainly there would be no problem connected with unfreezing Iran's frozen assets.

The only hitch is the shah's wealth. Who has it and where is it?

I imagine much of it is stashed away in the banking capitals of Europe and other faraway places. I have no idea how we could get our hands on it.

In any event, it now appears that a road is opening up for release of the hostages — just in time to give Jimmy Carter a nice boost before Election Day.

I wonder if the 52 purloined Americans will get home in time to vote? And I wonder who they favor for president?

SPEAKING OF the hostages, a knowledgeable friend from Texas — who happens to be 10 years old — reports that high Islamic holy days are coming up in late October and early November — a time when you are supposed to forgive your enemies and start with a clean slate.

He thinks the hostages will be released during this period.

We'll see. Some 10 yearolds are pretty savvy in world affairs.

WHO WOULD have thought 10½ months ago — when the Iranian Embassy was seized and flags across the nation were lowered to half-staff in their honor — that the same flags would still be at half-staff almost a year later?

HOW IS YOUR tomato crop?

We have lost about half of ours to a strange malady called "blossom-end blight."

The tomatoes form, but they turn black at the blossom end and the disease spreads up the fruit, stopping about half way, but leaving the tomato inedible.

[illegible] of the Emmet Co. Extension Office says the disease is associated with extremely dry weather — such as we had in August — and now much can be done to stop it after it starts.

Recent rains appear to have corrected the problem and our late tomatoes appear unaffected.

Setting the record straight

Dear Editor

Your editorial of September 10th concerning mailings by Legislators was direct and, for the most part, I agree with the position you take

I would, however, hope that I can offer a few pieces of information which I feel are relevant to the subject since you have, by your editorial, perhaps left the impression in the minds of your readers that I have not attempted to wisely use taxpayers' money with regard to staff time, postage and printing costs

1. By virtue of the House of Representatives postage program, I have a $10,000.00 per year postage allowance.

A check of individual record (which, by the way, is public record) indicates that for the year 1979 I spent $950.53, which left a balance of $9,049.37. In otherwords, I used only 9.5 percent of my allocation in 1979

My balance to August 31, 1980 shows that I have spent $581.76. This is, by the way, $152.55 less than through the same period last year, a non-election year. So far, I have used 5.8 percent of my 1980 allocation

2. I am allowed 600,000 pages of printing per year for newsletters, mailers, etc. These are the very valuable (at election time) tools used by most Legislators throughout the year to tell the folks back home what a great job they're doing. And only as an after thought (?), to keep their face and name in front of the public

600,000 pages per year times two years is a total of 1,200,000 pages authorized.

A check of the House records shows that I have used a total of 1,625 pages as of September 10, 1980, or one page for every 750 pages I am authorized to use. Unfortunately, the House does not compute these printing costs in dollars, but I hope you will agree the 1,198,375 pages that I have not used reflects a considerable savings in "tax" dollars.

3. My office in 1979 issued 54 press releases and columns. To date in 1980, we have issued 31. I will leave the decision to you as to whether that constitutes a "quantum" increase in releases, and I would most happily supply you with subject material of all releases for you to determine if my feeling is valid that there was a legitimate subject of concern for residents of Northern Michigan contained in each of them.

"Culling of unnecessary governmental costs is one of the most repeated campaign promises this election year." (Charlevoix Courier 9-10-80) It was also, I'm certain, an often used promise the last election and the election before that and many elections.

I have not only talked about wise use of tax money, I have done something about it. In the process I have denied myself an age old political advantage of campaigning at taxpayers' expense.

In the future I will continue to send news items on issues that affect the people of Northern Michigan or on issues about which I think they want information. It is one of the numerous ways that I keep my constituents informed on the kind of representation they are receiving in Lansing. As in the past, I will continue to defer to your editorial discretion, and if you find an item newsowrthy, I trust you will print it

"Nuke of Hazard"

Many years ago, like in the old, old, story of paradise, Consumers Powerful Company was tempted by the heavy hand of the government to bite into the big juicy apple of nuclear power. "Power is cheap to meter," they promised! In a year of operating the now-camoflaged "Nuke of Hazard" near Charlevoix, they observed endless new government regulations. Enter the "era of face-saving." Now, old Hazard's just a tragic thing, locked into an impossible situation. It's initial power is bought from Top O Michigan and it sends no direct power to anyone with exception of a general power-grid feed-in (because of safety concerns and obsolesense, it's input now is under 1% a year).

Big government rescued the nuclear industry by the Price-Anderson Act which limits liability on citizen claims for damage, cancer and genetic problems. The industry's very existance depends on this law. Much of nuclear's dangerous work is done by many thousands of transients and subcontractors who find years later it is impossible to lodge radiation damage lawsuits. Cancer-stricken Navaho Indian uranium miners have a similar problem. The now-mandatory nuke license requirement of workable area evacuation plans is open admittance of definite danger near all nuclear facilities.

Nuclear power is unreasonably expensive to American taxpayers and utility rate payers who are strapped with the following costs because they've been "programmed" to do so by irresponsible, face-saving, and indifferent financial interests. Future cost of billions for decommissioning old plants. Billions per reactor project in cost over runs as "Midland." programmed safty update costs for unneeded, outdated plants like "Hazard." Cost of government "life-blood" "fast research" grants as at "Hazard." Rising uranium costs. Three million last year by utility companies was spent on unwarrrented surveillance of nuclear opponents. Old Hazard can't operate without a near one hundred guards, a million-dollar arsenal, a back-up force of various police call-in units, National Guard, and F.B.I. The threat of terrorism is always the "excuse."

Near 8 hundred million will be spent by government for insight into the definitely unsolved problem of extremely hazardous nuclear waste build-up. The "Nuke of Hazard" is by all indications future programmed to become a nuclear waste storage facility! "Dead or Alive Reactor" guarding and dangerous "waste management" has created perpetual jobs for all those nuclear "job oriented" folks! Job openings and availability will never, ever, become a problem at existing facilities.

Nuclear power's many forms has the potential to do us all in by irrational rate-payer plundering, "protective" police state tactics, war devistation, hazardous wastes, genetic damage, unseen radioactivity, and poison hazard releases.

Remember, a government or utility's decision for nuclear as "saviour" does not necessarily involve truth, justice, human rights, or morality! We need to realize that "nuclear is fraught with problems, not all "political" as claimed by the false prophets of nuclear power worship. Nuclear's dangerous unbridled momentum exists because there is not enough far sighted people to put aside their differences now!

Dried up creek presents a puzzle

"We've contacted the Environmental Enforcement Division," Swan reported in a later telephone interview. We have the interest and attention of Lansing."

Meanwhile, Lloyd Kirby, owner of Antrim Dells is also very interested.

"Right now they don't know where the water is going," Kirby said in a telephone conversation, explaining that, "We have plenty of water and it is going on to a huge swamp below us."

Kirby does not think the irrigation is causing Dennis Creek to dry, but says, "We'd like to solve this mystery too.

"We've agreed not to water for two or three days and have given the DNR permission to study the problem.

"I don't know why the creek's drying up. There could be several factors. There's the swamp below us. There's a large artesian well which has just developed down stream. It has been a dry year. And we have been pumping."

After listing several possible factors in the case, Kirby reiterated, "I can't believe the problem originates here, but we are cooperating.

Lieutenant Governor James H. Brickley paid a visit to Charlevoix Saturday when he was the guest of honor at a Charlevoix County Republican reception at the Pine Point home of Mrs. Joan Burkey. Brickley, above left, is shown with Mrs. Burkey and Charlevoix Mayor Sam Supernaw. His stop in Charlevoix came in the middle of a three-day swing through nine northern Michigan counties. Brickley, a Detroit native, is presently serving his second separate term as Lt. Governor having been first elected to the post in 1970. From 1975 to 1978 he served as president of Eastern Michigan University and was elected again in 1978 with Governor William Milliken.

Anti-Big Rock group forced to release lawyers; impact statement ordered

by TOM DAMMANN

Lack of funds has forced the Charlevoix anti-nuclear group, Concerned Citizens For The Charlevoix Area, to drop its Washington, D.C., attorneys in its legal efforts before the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) Atomic Safety and Licensing Board to prevent the granting of a permit to Consumers Power Co., to store more than double the number of spent fuel rods in its waste pool at its Big Rock Point Nuclear Power Plant here.

This was revealed this week by Christa-Maria, Jim Mills and Jo Anne Bier, who have spearheaded the opposition to the utility's request.

Almost simultaneously, the NRC Licensing Board ordered its staff to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement, "covering the environmental impacts of an expanded spent fuel pool and the additional term of operation (10 years) of the facility that such expansion would permit."

The order was issued Sept. 12, despite the arguments of the utility and the board's staff.

It was issued in answer to the contention of a fourth intervenor, John O'Neill, of Glen Lake, who is acting as his own attorney, that "an environmental review of the proposed spent fuel pool expansion is necessary under terms of the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) of 1969 and would indicate that the environmental costs of this expansion exceed the benefits."

Because Big Rock was licensed seven years before the enactment of NEPA, which is not retroactive, the utility never filed an environmental impact statement for Big Rock, so one is now in order. However, the order states it must be confined to the environmental impact of the increased storage of spent fuel in the storage pool, which will prolong the life of Big Rock.

In the memorandum requiring an Environmental Impact Statement, the NRC Licensing Board wrote: "... we are faced with a modification that is sought to enable the facility to operate for a further term of ten years, which we consider will have a significant impact upon the environment, without an assessment of that impact having ever been made."

Last year Consumers Power asked the NRC to allow it to introduce more

Gale-force winds wreak havoc on lake; prompt heroism

by SARA GAY DAMMANN

The annual equinoxial storms provided more than the usual excitement in downed-docks and boats set loose from moorings, this past weekend.

At Pine Point, early Saturday morning, good samaritans saved several boats and in the process had a serious near miss when boat rescuer Kevin Wilks, 20, nearly drowned.

Winds gusting as high as 50 knots, according to some reports, and blowing at a steady 30, according to the Coast Guard, threatened Jim Wither's power boat on a mooring in front of his Pine Point home, at about 2 a.m.

Neighbor Joe Beaudin, who had already watched his dock be thrown on the beach, hurried to warn the Withers. Jim was called home from his restaurant, the Village Inn. He brought a crew of his staff.

Systematically, they checked the half dozen boats on lifts along the near shore. They lashed down a Hobie Cat which was threatening to bounce off its lift with the 3 to 4 foot waves. They observed that Joe Potter's 16 foot aluminum outboard, already on the rocks, was not in danger.

Meanwhile, Tom Thomason's 22' O'Day sailboat was dragging its mooring, with every gust and wave, moving inexorably toward Don Baum's dock.

"It was dragging an enormous Danforth anchor, set in cement blocks," a bleary-eyed Withers reported later that day.

Owner Thomason, realizing the boat was moving faster and faster, lept acrobatically from a boat lift, from which another boat had already parted company, onto the bucking deck of his sail boat, according to Sherry Withers who kept a spotlight trained on him.

She recalled thinking Tom was going to be badly hurt, in the lead.

But, she remembered, "Tom tied a line to his boat, jumped into the water, threw the line on the bumper hitch of his car and pulled the boat away from the docks and onto its side on the beach, where it stayed until mid-afternoon.

Amazingly, the sail boat suffered only minor scratches on its hull.

Meanwhile, Withers and crew say that Dick Miller's handmade wooden 21' cabin cruiser was in immediate danger of being tossed onto the rocky shore.

"If it had gone on the rocks we would have lost it," he said.

Miller was not home. So Withers clambored on board and searched for keys.

While Withers attempted to start the boat, with the plan of taking it to Round lake, the restaurant crew held its bow into the wind, straining against the wind and surf.

The wind was so loud, Withers reported, communication with the crew in the water was almost impossible.

The crew yelled, "Go!" but Withers who couldn't understand thought there was a problem and killed the motor.

He started again and when the crew yelled, gunned the boat into the lake.

Kevin Wilks who had been holding the bow into the wind clung to the surging boat. Dave Herboldsheimer somehow climbed over Wilks onto the bow and tried to help Wilks aboard, to no avail.

Castle Farms concerts are here to stay: Reibel

The concert season at Castle Farms Music Theatre is over but the controversy it seems to create every year will probably last well into the winter. Castle Farms owner Arthur Reibel, one of this area's most frequent newsmakers, was invited by the Courier recently to share some of his thoughts on the Castle Farms rock concerts and some other related topics. The following is the interview that took place with Reibel and Courier Editor Dave Knight. Also present was Bradley Parsons who is in charge of booking and general arrangements at Castle Farms.

Arthur Reibel

COURIER: Since you first became involved with Castle Farms in 1969 there have been several things you've tried including a horse ranch, a restaurant-tavern, a farmers' market, and a mall; what eventually got you into the concert business?

REIBEL: We originally got into the concert business in 1976 and two individuals instrumental in getting us into the business were two fellows, one was named Chuck Simons and the other was named Kenny Simons; they were brothers. They'd travelled and worked with the Rolling Stones for a period of time. They indicated to me that the Castle would be an excellent backdrop for an outdoor music theater and that's where we initially got acquainted with the music business.

COURIER: This has been, obviously, the best thing that has happened to Castle Farms in terms of financial success. Why? [illegible]

REIBEL: We had the Nederlander family here in 1977 and they are in their third generation in the music business worldwide. As Bob Nederlander explained to me, there are three basic requirements for a successful music theater; it has to be unique and different and he thought our place was probably the second most unique in the United States, second only to the Greek theater in Los Angeles which they operate. Secondly, you have to have a market and thirdly you have to book the right entertainment, the right talent. Bradley Parsons has pretty much put that together for the last three years and that is a large part of why it has been successful.

COURIER: What is your market? What kind of a radius are you drawing from?

REIBEL: We now draw from the entire state of Michigan and Canada. Some acts we can't advertise in the Detroit area because they are playing there or have played there or their managers won't permit it or their booking agent won't permit it. But our market is basically the entire state of Michigan and parts of Canada.

> "This year, for the first time, the foundation played a substantial part..."

COURIER: How do you accomplish getting the big acts here, Brad?

PARSONS: Well, I've been doing this for four years on my own, booking college acts at Michigan State, Ann Arbor, Grand Rapids. Once you get a facility that's large enough for them to make the kind of money they want to make...the big acts need to make a lot of money...getting them here the first time is the toughest thing. Most of the acts that come up here like the idea of having a day off.

They're used to going from city to city...Cincinnati to Cleveland to St. Louis...it's just nothing but a Holiday Inn in a new city every time and they've seen all these cities ten times before so this is a change for them. A lot of people who come back try to work out a day or two off either before or after so they can just enjoy. Apparently they like the facility. It's a different setting; something totally new for them.

COURIER: Do you plan any improvements physically in the structure or changes in the running of the concerts for next season?

PARSONS: Physically, one of the things we've been trying to do the past couple of years is to build sort of a grass hill, or, berm so that the visibility is improved. What that also will allow are a couple other things; number one, it will block everything from the road so people driving by don't try to see in. It's been a problem sometimes when some people just go out there and hang around and try to watch. From a security standpoint that's not good.

> "...we have filed the tax returns required to be filed."

COURIER: You're talking about a berm within the fenced area?

PARSONS: Yes, within the fenced area and then making somewhat of a bowl or amphitheater. Whether or not there will be any type of permanent seating, I think that is not feasible at this time but it may be in the long run. Also, one of my personal interests is doing a jazz festival up here sometime, a one or two day jazz festival. There's nothing like it in the Midwest; they have several on the East Coast and on the West Coast and they are mostly in areas like this where there is some type of tourist area. Monterey has one of the biggest ones in the world. This year we kind of got canned because we were going to do it on Labor Day weekend and Detroit did a Montreux-type thing and it didn't turn out to be what I thought it was going to be; I thought I wasn't going to be able to get any of the names or acts at that time. You have to plan that weekend so far in advance. That type of thing and maybe some more things like Kenny Rogers who we should be able to get back next year.

COURIER: Art, in the articles of incorporation for the Castle Farms Foundation it's designated as a non-profit foundation...

REIBEL: That's correct.

COURIER: ...with the purpose of funding the "preservation, rehabilitation, development, reuse, maintenance and safeguarding the continued existence of the historical and architecturally significant and distinguishable Castle Farms properties. What have you done in that area?

REIBEL: To this point in time my wife and I have pretty much provided the funds to accomplish that through the years. Last year the federal law was amended to allow privately owned, historically and architecturally significant properties to be preserved, renovated, maintained through a non-profit foundation so we are taking advantage of that law and it affords you some excellent tax opportunities. What we are doing is taking a good part of the funds that are generated at the farm and reinvesting them in the farm. Our taxes go up every year and expenses go up every year...it's really been a financial burden for myself and my wife. Now, with the music concerts generating some nice revenue, we can accomplish those things through Castle Farms Foundation, which as you know, is registered with the State of Michigan as a non-profit corporation.

Bradley Parsons

COURIER: And the foundation is the entity that is running the concerts? Do you have a separate production firm or are concerts being run by the foundation directly?

REIBEL: The foundation, this year for the first time, played a substantial part in the overall operations at Castle Farms properties and I think in the future it will be the entity that will perform that function.

Charlevoix Yesterday

The bridge across the Pine River Channel in Charlevoix has always been an important part of the city, so it is not surprising that when this handsome new structure was erected many years ago, it was the subject of a poem. A Mrs. Chamberlain was moved to explain the bridge as follows:

The bridge that first was made across the lower river only was the width of two boards side by side,
But then, the river was not wide.
The next one made a better show,
But when there came a heavy blow,
It broke to pieces. Then 'twas how
To get across, we used a scow.
But then we had to build one more
'Twas better than those here before.
But after all, we had to learn –
We must have one that we could turn.

Bob Miles, who loaned the Courier this picture, notes that this bridge was painted a brilliant vermillion red. Of course, it was replaced by the present draw bridge in years gone by.

Buying and Selling Real Estate by Gene Steele

INGREDIENTS FOR INVESTMENT

Housing prices have gone up steeply since the mid-60's for two basic reasons. First, the shortage of new savings made it difficult to finance private housing, and the number of new housing units built each year was far below that what it should have been. Since there is a steady growth in population, this puts pressure on our housing reserves and prices rise

Second, there have been inflationary increases in the labor and materials costs that go into building a house. In most urban areas, land values continue to go up each year, too. Historically, real estate values have always increased faster than the cost of living. Thus, it is an excellent inflation hedge

So here are the ready-made ingredients for a good investment. We all need housing of some kind, and according to the experts, the price of housing will continue to go even higher, though perhaps, not as dramatically as in the past few years.

Proposed housing rules criticized by all

By PEG [illegible]

Approximately 90 area people last week told representatives of the Michigan Department of Public Health that they weren't interested in their "proposition".

The "proposition" was the proposed Housing Rules as developed by the Housing Rules Advisory Committee of the Department of Public Health to administer the Public Health Code, Act 368 of 1978.

At a meeting held in Gaylord, people from local government, local health departments, landlord groups, builders' organizations, and others did not have "one word in favor of the rules", according to Gerald Chase, director of Health Department No. 3, serving Charlevoix, Antrim, Emmet, and Otsego Counties.

The Housing Rules as proposed cover all aspects of housing – heating, ventilation, plumbing, electrical hookups, fireplace installation, garbage disposal, and many other facets of living which the average person considers his own [illegible]

And the rules would apply not only to rental units, but to private homes and motels and hotels. However, Chase is quick to point out that this does not mean that all housing units would be subject to at-random inspection. Only if a complaint is lodged against the homeowner or landlord would the enforcing agency investigate a complaint, but registering a complaint could be a way of "getting even" with another person, Chase added.

The rules would require that the enforcing agency respond to all complaints, that the names of complainants and information other than the inspection report must be kept confidential unless ordered by a court, that enforcement orders may be served upon agents as well as owners, and that a building may be declared unfit for human habitation and ordered demolished, among other things.

Further, in a briefing on the proposed rules which Chase delivered to the County Board of Commissioners, he noted that the "proposed regulations go beyond the intent of the code and should allow greater local option in the establishment of regulations that the local governing bodies believe necessary in their own area."

He also pointed out that "the regulations, particularly the section dealing with the responsibilities of owners and occupants, are an unwelcome infringement upon the personal lives of a large number of the residents in these areas."

As an example of the above objection, Chase said that "under the proposed rules, a person living on and owning his own home who relocates to an area more than 30 miles from his present home would be prohibited from leasing his home without the additional burden and expense of employing a responsible agent and operator."

In a final explanation of the local health department's attitude toward the proposed rules, Chase said that his staff is "too busy tied up with other things to get involved in these types of situations. We aren't building inspectors or plumbers. We know the health aspects of some things, but aren't capable of inspecting buildings."

Chase concedes that the needs downstate are different and the rules will have some support among landlord and tenant groups, especially in the college towns. However, he feels that the objections voiced in Gaylord last week will help the Department of Public Health undetrstand that the rules as written cannot apply to and be enforced in northern Michigan. "It should help us get some amendments or changes," he said hopefully.

While no more pubic hearings on the rules are scheduled, written comments will be received until Oct. 24 by the Division of Community Environmental Health, Michigan Department of Public Health, 3500 N. Logan St., P. O. Box 30035, Lansing, Mi. 48909.

Hospital staff explains Medicare

Recently a woman telephoned Charlevoix Area Hospital to discuss her bill. Because she was over 65 she assumed everything was taken care of under Medicare.

When the woman discovered that Medicare did not cover all her expenses and that she did not have a supplemental policy she was stunned. She had assumed it would be taken care of automatically.

That incident played heavily on the minds of many people at Charlevoix Area Hospital. Luckily for that particular woman, her bill was not beyond her means.

But her plight demonstrated again that people need to understand what Medicare does and does not cover and what they can do to protect themselves with "complimentary" insurance.

"It is important for people to try to understand their insurance policies. That will cut down on a lot of frustration," Bill Jackson, Charlevoix Area Hospital Financial Services Manager said recently.

Marion Podskalny, Carol Kowalk, in-patient and outpatient billing clerks, and Camille Greene, hospital social worker, took time last week to explain Medicare coverage.

Medicare Part A, they explained, covers in-patient, hospital care. It does not, however, cover physicians' fees. It also carries a renewable deductible – this year $180.

All this means that a patient pays the first $180 of the hospital bill. Also, if hospitalized twice in the same year with 60 days or more between the two hospitalizations, the deductible must be repaid.

Further, after the 61st day of hospitalization and through the 90th day, the patient pays $45 a day. After 90 days, which is highly unlikely, everyone agrees, an individual begins to use their "lifetime reserve days" for which Medicare requires the patient to pay the first $90 per day.

Medicare Part B, which covers doctors' and outpatient services, as well as home health visits and limited psychiatric treatment, requires patients to pay the first $60 every year, plus 20% of covered charges.

As the people at Charlevoix Area Hospital pointed out, most people want a policy, in addition to Medicare, which will cover what Medicare does not.

"At 65 you want a complimentary policy which is set up to pay the deductible on both Medicare Parts A and B, plus the 20% of physicians' fees Part B does not cover," Gamille Greene carefully explained.

"My concern is also that people are too often sold policies that are duplications," Mrs. Greene

State history magazine features Chx. County this month

Charlevoix County is featured in the current issue of "Michigan History" magazine.

The article traces the history of the county from the time it was "set off" as a county in 1840 (and given the name "Keskkauko County") to the present time.

The county was renamed Charlevoix County in 1843, but it was not until 1869 that it was official organized as Charlevoix County.

Some little known facts about Charlevoix' county seat are brought out in the article: The city of Charlevoix was the county seat until 1884, when an election changed it to East Jordan. The following year, county government moved to Boyne City, but by 1886, half of the county board was meeting in Boyne City and half in Bay Shore, 20 miles apart. Meanwhile, the county registrar of deeds was located in East Jordan. In 1887, Boyne City became the official county seat, but in 1897, the fight was rekindled and the county seat was returned permanently to Charlevoix.

King Strang and his Mormon commune on Beaver Island, which reached 2,500 members in 1855, receive considerable attention in the article, while mention is made of such early settlers as Medad and Phoebe Thompson, John S. Dixon, and Dr. Samuel Horton. The rise of the lumber industry, the dredging of the Pine River Channel, the founding of the resort communities in Charlevoix, and the coming of the railroad all receive attention as contributing factors in the growth of the community.

An accompanying short article titled "Archaeology in Charlevoix County" tells about the excavation, in 1971, of the Pine River site now covered by LaCroft Condominiums, where archaeologists found a camp that was occupied around 1,000 B.C., long before Rome was built. This site is only one of five in Charlevoix County, as well as a prehistorical archaeological district, listed in the National Register of Historic Places.

"Michigan History" is published six times a year by the Michigan Department of State in Lansing. Special introductory subscriptions are now available for $7.95 a year or $14.95 for two years.

Charlevoix County Hire A Teen program kept 112 area teenagers employed this summer

By PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix County Hire A Teen Program provided jobs for 112 area young people this summer, according to William A. Aten, director of the program.

The program, part of the County Youth Diversionary Program, is in its second year of operation, and is run from Boyne City. It is based on the concept that there are many household, lawn and garden, and small business maintenance jobs which young people can do, and because they are especially willing to work, they will do so for less money than an adult would. The community benefits because it has a greater resource of workers, and also because it plays a bigger role in the development of young people's self esteem and good job habits.

Hire A Teen does not employ the young people, but simply provides a "match up" service between them and prospective employers. Teens and jobs are matched on a "proximity" basis, giving the young person living closest to the job the first opportunity so that transportation does not complicate employment.

Statistics from the past summer indicate that the young people were employed mostly by the private sector to do lawn and garden work, babysitting, and general household maintenance. Other jobs included dogsitting, score-keeping, helping movers, painting, caddying, washing windows, and cleaning up at Castle Farms. The average pay was $2.50 to [illegible] an hour.

Hire A Teen not only matches the young people with employers, but does a follow-up evaluation on every job and employee. The Hire A Teen clerk calls both the young person and employer and asks each of them to make an evaluation of the other. These evaluations are kept on file with each of the worker's cards, and can be used by the young people in the future as job references for part-time or full-time employment.

A review of the evaluations from this past summer shows that of the 112 placements made by Hire A Teen, there were only two complaints registered by employers about the quality of the work done by Hire A Teen workers. The rest of the employers felt that their Hire A Teen "did a very good job", "was very polite and worked hard", and "was very reliable".

Besides Hire A Teen, the Youth Diversionary Program works with county young people aged seven to 16 who have been referred to them by law enforcement agencies, courts, schools, parents, neighbors, and social service agencies. They are usually first time offenders who simply need responsible adult supervision.

The Youth Diversionary Program is funded by the State Criminal Justice Division and Charlevoix County on a 50-50 basis. Aten's headquarters are in the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services Building, phone 547-4471.

Knight on the Town

The Passing Game

I dreaded the thought, at first, of having to make a thrice weekly trip to Petoskey to deliver news copy to the typesetters. Scenic, I thought, but how boring.

Wrong!

Area motorists who make that drive on Highway 31 with any regularity should know what I mean. There is something about nicely paved, straight roadway that brings out the animal in people.

Drivers who I am sure are very well behaved in the gentle, uncluttered traffic (for most of the year, anyway) of Charlevoix or Petoskey become, for some reason, speed-crazy fiends when they hit the open stretches of 31.

For real adventure and excitement, one need only take that drive and play the Passing Game. It goes on constantly like a 24-hour Emmet County Grand Prix.

The object is thus: pass somebody. Anybody. Everybody. Pass as many vehicles as you can. The faster they are going, the better. There's no challenge in making it by a bread truck going up a hill. Anybody can do that. The name of this game is going after the Porsches and Camaros that can really bring t' best out in your machine.

Oncoming traffic adds even more thrills to the game. Without the benefit of radar and onboard computers, drivers must sight oncoming vehicles in the opposite lane, calculate whether a clean pass can be accomplished and act accordingly.

This is where the long, straight stretches of 31 make the game especially interesting.

Defense is another part of it. When a hot dog behind you starts hugging your back bumper, the challenge is made. See how fast he is willing to go to pass you. It is sometimes amazing.

Before I incur the wrath of every lawman and traffic safety offical reading this, let me emphasize that I think they are doing their job. The stretch of 31 between Charlevoix and Petoskey is well patrolled and speedy drivers seem to be getting ticketed on a regular basis.

Also, let me clarify that the game I describe is hardly to be taken lightly. Living in the fast lane is asking for big trouble.

These facts just point up what has been alleged by several observers nationwide - that the 55 mile-an-hour speed limit is more or less ignored by most people.

The Passing Game on 31 has had its losers; you'll find them listed in the obituaries every now and then. But who are the winners?

The guys who make it from here to Petoskey a minute or so sooner? Big deal. People who are in a hurry do foolish things for what is usually a very minimal gain in time.

Not to sound totally righteous, I find myself slipping into that pattern all the time. When I get behind someone going 55 on Highway 31, I can hardly stand it. Why do we get so mad at people obeying the law?

I guess the answer is to think.

So it would be so easy to pass the car ahead and maybe even the one in front of him. So you think you can get to Petoskey a minute sooner and every minute counts. So you think you can win the game this time.

Maybe next time you won't. And usually, in the Passing Game, there aren't any rematches.

Wind storm prompts local heroics on lake

The exhausted Wilks held on desperately while Herboldsheimer alternately berated him to "not give up" and tried to yell at Withers to stop the boat.

Finally Larry Cross, who was also at the helm, realized something was wrong and signalled a stop.

Wilks was pulled aboard after being dragged at least a quarter of a mile, through pounding seas, clinging to the bow railing, according to Withers.

Meanwhile radio contact had been established with the Coast Guard life boat station. They stood by in case of further problems.

The Coast Guard also advised that the high winds had swung the railroad bridge closed.

Withers decided it was still better to try to get to Round Lake, under the bridge, than risk losing the boat or endangering more people turning back.

"It took us two tries to get into the channel. The waves caught us and we began surfing. I couldn't control her alone and Larry Cross shifted while I steered and worked the throttle.

"The first try took us into the pilings. The second time we made it," Withers said.

"The only damage was a broken antenna," he added.

Withers and crew docked the boat and returned to Pine Pointe where the rescue team was nursing badly cut feet and exhaustion.

Later Wilks and Herboldsheimer gave the crew a blow-by-blow of Wilks terrifying ordeal.

Reibel interview

COURIER: The articles also state that one of the purposes is the "preparation and distribution of publications and materials, by lectures, seminars and other means, which serve to disseminate the historical and architectural significance of the Castle Farms properties." Have you distributed any publications or participated in any lectures?

REIBEL: We have a publication out that was written about two years ago and it gives the complete history of Castle Farms; what's been accomplished in the way of renovation, improvements, preservation and what the future plans are. Kind of like a master plan type thing. We had, I think, three thousand of those printed and have distributed a lot of those.

COURIER: How so? By mail?

REIBEL: No, just by delivering them to people as they come into the Castle, as they patronize the properties.

COURIER: One of the things over the summer that we got confused on were the conflicting estimates of the number of people who were attending the concerts. The sheriff has said that he would like a limit of 6,000 people. How do you perceive the capacity? What do you consider a reasonable limit?

REIBEL. A good example of that, I think, is the Bob Seger concert for which 14,000 tickets were sold - that was in a nationwide publication so that's no secret. What we do is hire sufficient security for the number of people who attend any particular concert. At that particular concert we hired more security than we ever have...

PARSONS: We doubled it.

REIBEL: ...and it ran as smooth as any concert we've had in five years. Even George Lasater, the sheriff, will tell you that the traffic was run very smoothly. Of course, you see, George Lasater got together with the State Highway Department and what they did was change our parking lots, the entrances and exits and we pretty much follow a traffic pattern that the State Highway Department and George Lasater put together. Traffic now is really no problem. We had one particular show when George first became sheriff and wasn't acquainted with handling traffic and people always remember that one show. But we can park all the cars on our own property so we would have no problems with that number.

COURIER: You say you doubled the security for Seger. Doubled from what to what? How many individuals did you have out there?

PARSONS: There's normally about 140 related just to security and traffic but there was in excess of 270 that night. The reason we did that was twofold; number one, we had never sold out a concert in advance before - we almost always have some room available but 14,000 people is a lot of people and like you said with the estimates, we had estimates of 20 and 25,000. Anybody could just go out and measure the field and see that there's no way you could fit 20,000 people in there.

COURIER: 14,000 is the most you have ever had for a concert?

PARSONS: Yes it is. By law we could have more people but we feel more comfortable leaving some access through the crowd so that we can get through in case of an emergency. The reason we doubled (security) for that show was that we weren't sure that five or six thousand people weren't just going to show up and try and get in or whatever. We were concerned that we were going to have problems outside the gate but we had none, surprisingly. We had less for that one than ones when we have had tickets available. When there are people outside trying to get in, they cause more trouble than people inside. We haven't had too many problems up here but I've always been concerned about it. Especially since we have a lot of residences around.

COURIER: Where do you get your security people?

REIBEL: This year we had some members of the Michigan State football team come up and some members of the Michigan football team and they were kind of captains over a group of about ten or twelve people each whom they had responsibility over for the night of the concert. Most of them (the security force) are local people.

storage racks in the storage pool so that it could increase the number of spent fuel rod assemblies from the present [illegible] to [illegible].

This would allow the facility to store waste radioactive material for the next ten years.

Under present circumstance Big Rock will run out of storage space by 1983, because of President Jimmy Carter's moratorium on shipping spent fuel to designated national waste storage areas. Thus it would be forced to shut down unless the NRC grants the permit.

In August 1979 a petition bearing 25 signatures was filed before the NRC asking permission to intervene in the licensing hearings for the requested expansion of storage facilities at Big Rock.

The group contends that the plant, which went on line in 1963, is old and consustantly fails to comply with NRC safety requirements. They assert, for example, that Big Rock's ¾ inch steel dome was not designed to contain any mishap bigger than a 10 percent melt down and will permit gamma rays to pass through it.

They urge the plant's permanent shutdown.

The group retained a Washington law firm, Harmon & Weiss, specialists in nuclear regulatory litigation, which has represented the group ever since, including before a Licensing Board hearing in Petoskey last December.

"We had an agreement with Harmon and Weiss that when we reached a $7,000 debt we would have to stop," Christa-Maria said in an interview this week.

She said that the group had reached that point and would now try to continue its efforts without benefit of expert legal advise.

She said that she herself had spent $10,000 of her own in the effort and that her savings are dried up.

Christa-Maria stated that she, Jo Anne Bier and Jim Mills had devoted a minimum of 40 hours a week to researching the constant flow of documents between Consumers Power and the NRC on the subject and will continue to do so because they have no intention of withdrawing from the proceedings.

She said they have developed a network of experts and resource groups who will continue to help them prepare their case.

Christa-Maria revealed that the group is trying to convince Michigan Attorney General Frank J. Kelly to enter the case as some state attorney generals have done in interventions elsewhere.

"Without legal advice we are very handicapped," she said. "Many of the documents and letters between Consumers Power and the NRC contain matters important to the case which get by us because we are not familiar with the technical and legal language used."

In their motion for withdrawal of appearance as Counsel, sent to the NRC Sept. 8, the Washington attorneys state:

"This situation arises because the Nuclear Regulatory Commission has made it abundantly clear that it will not make available to intervenors the funding that is necessary to assure a thorough and balanced presentation of facts and arguments to the Licensing Board. As a result, only Consumers Power Company and the NRC staff can afford to retain counsel and to present expert testimony. Three Mile Island is eloquent testimony to the bankruptcy of this approach, which assures that only those parties committed to promoting nuclear power are able to prevail in licensing cases.

"Despite the unfair imbalance of power and influence, however, Christa-Maria, et al., intend to remain as parties in this proceeding, to represent themselves, and to demand that Consumers Power Company and the NRC staff prove that expansion of the amount of spent fuel stores in the spent fuel pool and the continued operation of the Big Rock reactor will not threaten the health and safety of the surrounding community."

Big Rock is the fourth oldest nuclear power plant in the nation, fifth in the world, and the first in this country licensed to use plutonium. Its license expires in the year 2000.

Letters: Who pays?

To the Editor:

Last week the Concerned Citizens for the Charlevoix area, to which I belong, had to make the decision to release legal counsel. To intervene in the spent fuel expansion of the Big Rock facility was no frivolity, it had to be done by private people, for the county and state either did not understand it's importance or did not care.

It is because of the intervention, that we have had the research and many new discoveries pertaining to the facility. We set a national precedent by obtaining permission to be part of and observing the recent emergency drill. The Board of the Atomic Safety and Licensing Committee just recently, over the "legalese" objection from Consumers Power and NRC legal staff, ordered an Environmental Impact Study to be made pertaining to the spent fuel pool.

Without legal assistance that knew, how to comply with the complex legal rules and regulations we would have had to continue on a much lesser scale and certainly not with the same effectiveness.

Nevertheless, we are prepared to continue in the case, for there are just too many questions that still need to be answered before Big Rock should be allowed to continue with their fuel expansion.

One thing the public should understand, their taxes are paying for the NRC and the utility in this proceeding who has unlimited access to funds and resources to defend it's position in this hearing. The utility also has obtained 5 lawyers and special research facilities for this hearing to defend it's position, all paid for by ratepayers or stockholders.

We, the ones who live here and have to see our lives being affected by the [illegible] certainly justified questions, have to do the job after hours, in our "spare" time, from savings and against a sometimes not understanding community.

It does not matter if you are for or against nuclear power, what happens at Big Rock does concern us all.

Your involvement is only limited to listening to your conscience and are you at all caring what future generations will have to live with because of our ruthless greediness for the "now"?

I am not anti-progress and modern living, but when technology makes a mockery of the freedom of my basic human rights and provides me with a prison for my conscience, than I have to [illegible] and speak up.

Christa-Maria

Back to MSU

As someone who moved north 15 years ago largely to avoid crowds and traffic, it goes without saying that I am not one of your regular visitors to the Michigan State Universary campus.

I would like to attend a football game from time to time, but I remember the colossal traffic jams that used to take place around Spartan Stadium when I was a callow youth and I opt for another quiet weekend in Charlevoix.

However, Judy and I found ourselves in East Lansing late Saturday afternoon, and since it was an away-weekend for the Spartans we decided to venture onto the campus to have a look around.

I was surprised how many of the old buildings were I lived and attended classes more than three decades ago were still standing. But I also wished I had a penny for every brick that has been laid on the MSU campus since I left.

I'd retire and move to Charlevoix.

Back when I first enrolled at Michigan State in 1946, it was generally considered a "cow college" — at least among the denizens of Ann Arbor. If memory serves, the enrollment was something like 6,000 in the spring of 1946 and the heavy emphasis, even then, was on agriculture and related subjects.

But Congress had passed the GI Bill of Rights, and the first big influx of World War II veterans was expected with the fall term — an influx which was to double the university's enrollment overnight.

Quonset huts, which had been developed during the war as a form of emergency shelter, were hastily constructed between Demonstration Hall and Harrison Road to house the incoming veterans and plans were drawn up for a two-unit men's dormitory on the eastern edge of the campus, to be called Snyder-Phillips.

As Judy and I drove through the campus Saturday, I was surprised at how little the campus has changed, despite its rapid growth. Most of the new buildings follow the same architectural styles of the older buildings, giving the campus a wholeness, an integrity, that so easily could have been lost.

But I wonder how much larger MSU can practically grow? I am sure even today there are four-year students who are total strangers to parts of the campus. In the old days we walked or rode bicycles between classes. Today you'd never make your next class on time unless you drove or caught a bus.

En route home, we drove east on Harrison Road and I was surprised to find that some of the Quonset huts constructed as temporary student quarters after World War II are still standing and apparently are still in use.

It was nice to know that some things never change — like the pyramids and student housing.

By the time this reaches print, the verdict will be in on whether the state of Maine will continue to play host to a nuclear power plant.

It is one thing to attempt to effect a ban on new nuclear power plants, as California tried to do without success last year. It is quite another to attempt to put an existing nuclearfacility out of business.

At this point it appears that the plebiscite will fail — but the very fact that the issue is on the ballot should serve notice to electric utilities that the patience of rate-payers and shareholders is wearing mighty thin when it comes to perpetuating this very costly and very risky form of power generation.

Bible Teaching Center opens here

On Monday, September 22nd, classes began at the Berean Bible Teaching Center in Charlevoix. This will be Northern Michigan's first full time bible school, and will offer a three-hour-per-day, five-day-a-week, "college level" program for training those interested in Bible study and teaching the gospel. Class hours will be from 9:00 a.m. until 12:00 noon, September through June 6, 1981.

Although the name Berean Bible Teaching Center is new, the program has been taught since [illegible] When the former high school building of Scottville, Michigan became Faith Tech Bible School.

Since that beginning with nine students, Faith Tech Schools have spread to seven locations in Michigan; Detroit, Flint, Tecumseh, Lansing, Kalamazoo, Traverse City and Charlevoix. Also, a new branch is opening in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, and eight schools are operating in the country of St. Vincent, West Indies.

All of these schools are being directed and taught by graduates from the classes of 1976 through 1980. All but one have husband-wife teaching teams holding these positions. Currently couples are enrolled in classes who will be going to Nigeria, Philippines, and Hawaii to teach.

Founder-President of Faith Tech, Bob Reid, has moved to Charlevoix with his wife Karen and two daughters to set up the Berean Bible Teaching Center. They are planning a full time local teaching outreach which will be nondenominational and Bible based. Reid has opened the West Indies schools plus Detroit since his first school in Scottville. He has moved the Faith Tech non-profit corporation offices with him, and expects to make Charlevoix his home base of operations.

Berean Bible Teaching Center not only will be sponsoring the Faith Tech teaching program, but also extends an invitation to those that would like to get in-depth teaching on Sunday mornings. Every Sunday morning at 10:00 a.m., BBTC meets in the Community Room of the City Hall, 210 State St., Charlevoix, for family singing, worship and one hour of teaching.

This is followed by an informal lunch and time of fellowship. Each family brings a dish to pass (table service is furnished).

The same Faith Tech material being taught in the BBTC's day classes will be offered at a Tuesday evening Bible Study at the home of Doug and Lorrie Way. This is the second year Doug and Lorrie have hosted this home Bible Study, which meets from 7:30-9:00 every Tuesday evening at the Way home on Beatty Rd., south of Charlevoix off Highway 31.

As with Sunday mornings, this Bible Study is open to anyone in the community. There is no charge. More information can be obtained from the Ways at 547-6340 or 547-6681. The first Tuesday evening teaching will be September 16th.

The following subjects are covered in the nine-month Day class and the six-year evening course: The Integrity of the Word of God, God's Kind of Faith, The Work of the Cross, Advanced Cross, Divine Healing, The Holy Spirit, The Moral Government of God, Old Testament Survey, Life of Christ, New Testament Survey, Family of the Lord, Fasting, Prayer, Praise, Counseling, Faith for Finances, The Occult and Deliverance. A diploma is offered upon graduation from the day or night classes.

Those wishing further information should call Bob or Karen Reid at 547-6343.

Nancy Murray: Women's Club Pres.

Meet Charlevoix

By Peg Ohle

Mrs. Robert J. (Nancy) Murray is president of the Charlevoix Women's Club. This week the Courier talks with her about the activities of the Women's Club and also about some of her own interests.

COURIER: When was the Charlevoix Women's Club founded?

MURRAY: It was started in 1968, with the membership coming from the former Shakespeare and Dickens clubs.

COURIER: Who may join the Charlevoix Women's Club?

COURIER: Any woman in the area who is interested in our activities. It is an organization for Charlevoix area women and no special invitation is needed. We especially welcome newcomers to town.

COURIER: When do you meet?

MURRAY: We have been meeting once a month, usually the third Tuesday, from September through April. However, we hope we can start having some meetings during the summer so that our members who go away for the winter can attend more meetings. Our meetings are held in various places around town, in members' homes, restaurants, meeting rooms, etc., depending upon the type of program we are having. Each year we have a membership coffee, a fashion show and dinner, a Christmas tea, and a closing luncheon, as well as meetings with informative speakers.

COURIER: What are the dues?

MURRAY: Five dollars a year for regular members. We also have life members who don't pay any dues. They are women who have belonged to the Shakespeare Club or the Dickens Club and the Women's Club for at least 25 years and who have reached the age of 65.

COURIER: How many members do you have?

MURRAY: About 100 all together. Sixteen of these are life members.

COURIER: You obviously don't take in a lot of money from dues. Where do you get the funds for your projects?

MURRAY: Mostly from our book sale. This year we took in about $800 at the sale and gave away $575. Of this amount, $250 went to the City of Charlevoix for a blood pressure unit for the city ambulance, $150 went to the Women's Resource Center for its Safe Home, $100 went to CHIP Counseling Center, $50 went to the Charlevoix County Humane Society, and $25 went to Greensky Hill Church. In recent years, we have been changing our beneficiaries because the needs of organizations change from time to time.

COURIER: You had a second book sale, didn't you?

MURRAY: Yes. We sold the books 12 for $1 and took in $125. We gave this money directly to the Charlevoix Public Library because they have been so good about letting us have our book sales in their building. We have also decided that instead of sending flowers for funerals we will make memorial donations to the library.

COURIER: You have a tea for high school seniors, too, don't you?

MURRAY: Yes, in June we honor the graduates and their mothers with a tea at the Charlevoix Yacht Club.

COURIER: What is the Book Review Interest Group?

MURRAY: Members of the Women's Club who enjoy book reviews meet separately to hear book reviews and participate in discussions about books. This year, the leaders of the Book Review Group are Mrs. E. H. Leedy and Mrs. [illegible]

COURIER: What types of speakers do you have at your meetings?

MURRAY: We cover almost any subject we think would interest our members. For instance, last year we heard a talk and saw slides by Jay Oliver on "Native American Folk Lore" at Greensky Hill Church; we saw films and a demonstration on "Saving a Life" by two emergency medical technicians; we had a program on "Exercises" with Jane Sooy; we listened to Nancy Stewart tell about her sailing trip, which she illustrated with slides; and we learned about the Bergmann Center from Mrs. Jack Mort. We have recently embarked on a program of giving our members a chance to learn more about such organizations as the Bergmann Center, the Charlevoix House, Big Brothers-Big Sisters, the Women's Resource Center, and CHIP Counseling Center.

COURIER: How do women join the Women's Club?

MURRAY: All they have to do is send a check for $5 to our treasurer, Mrs. L. H. Bruce, 306 W. Hurlbut Ave., Apt. 7. If they want more information about meetings or anything else pertaining to the Women's Club, they can call our membership chairman, Patricia Heiman, at 547-0481, or me at 547-4770. The Welcome Wagon will also supply information about the Women's Club to newcomers.

COURIER: How long have you lived in the area?

MURRAY: We moved to Norwood from Mt. Clemens five years ago. We had a cottage near Mancelona for 12 years and spent almost every weekend there, so we were well acquainted with northern Michigan when we moved up here.

COURIER: Were you active in the Women's Club in Mt. Clemens?

MURRAY: We didn't have a Women's Club as such, but I was active in many organizations, like the Macomb Town Hall, where we raised money for scholarships to Oakland University; the Michigan Cancer Foundation, of which I was publicity chairman for six years; the Mt. Clemens Symphony Board; the Art Association Board; St. Joseph's Hospital Auxiliary; and the Garden Club.

COURIER: Did you grow up in the Mt. Clemens area?

MURRAY: No, but I lived there for 18 years. I was born in Dayton and grew up in Indianapolis. I went to Indiana University.

COURIER: What is your husband's business?

MURRAY: He's a sales engineer in the automotive field. He really commutes between Detroit and Norwood.

COURIER: Do you have children?

MURRAY: We have three sons and one grandaughter. Our oldest son, Robert, Jr., lives in Bear Lake and works in Kalkaska. David and John are at home. John recently graduated from Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City.

COURIER: What are your outside interests other than the Women's Club?

MURRAY: I'm an officer in the Eastern Star, a member of the Crooked Tree Arts Council, and a member of the Congregational Church. I like to paint, although I haven't done anything for a long time, I like target shooting and boating and fishing.

Klimas wins $500award

William Klimas, a summer resident of Charlevoix, has recently been given the Harold E. Kohn Award, a $500 scholarship funded annually by the Women's Fellowship and the Mary Brewster Circle of Charlevoix's First Congregational Church to aid and encourage people who are preparing to enter a church-related profession

Klimas is beginning his final year in the Master of Music program at Westminster College, Princeton, New Jersey, majoring in organ performance and church music. A 1979 graduate of Grand Valley State College, he served as summer organist at the Charlevoix First Congregational Church for several years. He has given recitals in Petoskey and Charlevoix as well as in his hometown, Grand Rapids, where for some years he was assistant organist and choirmaster at Park Congregational Church and director of a junior choir and bell choir. He was also organist-choirmaster at Holy Redeemer Parish in Jenison for a year. In 1979 he won the American Guild of Organists Western District Competition. At present Mr. Klimas is organist-choirmaster at Jamesburg United Presbyterian Church in Jamesburg, New Jersey

The Harold E. Kohn Award is named for a former minister of the First Congregational Church. It was established in 1961 by the Mary Brewster Circle of the church and is now administered by the Church and Ministry Committee of the Michigan Conference of the United Church of Christ.

While a student at Grand Valley, Klimas studied piano with Julianne Vanden Wyngaard, who in February will present a concert in Petoskey sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Council.

Background of La Leche

Mothers who wish to breastfeed their babies will find encouragement and information at the Charlevoix LaLeche League. The group announces the beginning of a new series of four discussion meetings. The first meeting will be held on Oct. 8, 9:30 a.m., at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix.

The name LaLeche, is Spanish and means "the milk." A non-profit, non-sectarian organization, the League's purpose is to help encourage "good mothering through breastfeeding."

The group will meet the second Wednesday of each month. During a series of four meetings, the group informally discusses different phases of breastfeeding. Topic for first meeting: Advantages of Breastfeeding to Mother and Child.

All women who are interested in nursing their babies are invited, as are their babies. You need not be pregnant or even have a family to attend. If you are interested .... you are welcome.

La Leche League began in a Chicago suburb twenty years ago, when one mother who has successfully nursed her baby, helped another who wanted to breastfeed.

This is still the basic approach, although the League is now international in scope, with more than 3,000 groups helping thousands of women in the United States, Canada, and over forty foreign countries.

Several area women hold service positions within the group. Group treasurer-Faye Miller, refreshment chairperson-Debbie Parlor, group librarian-Sue Dewitt, reprint librarian-Dawn hard, group communicator-Jan Vanderwall.

Other services League offers include a lending library of books on childbirth, child care, and breastfeeding 24 hour a day phone counseling is also available.

La Leche League believes breastfeeding gives the best possible start in good mothering and helps to develop and deepen the close relationship between a mother and her child. For more information call Jenny [illegible]

Reibel interview...

COURIER: Volunteers?

REIBEL: Well, they file a job application then we have a system of screening. Then we have a little school that they go to to teach them how to handle problems and teach them what security is all about.

COURIER: How many hours of schooling does each guy get before a concert?

REIBEL: Oh, it's probably about an hour, hour and a half.

COURIER: And what types of things do they go over?

REIBEL: In case of an emergency, how to get them over to a first aid station or if somebody's causing a problem, how to handle that situation. As well as preventing people from jumping the fence - that's always a problem - or going under the fence. Things of that nature.

PARSONS: We do hire private security, too. Uniformed. Anywhere from ten to 20. And the sheriff is out there, too.

COURIER: One of the biggest raps you get is from people of the township and neighbors who complain about a lot of property damage, things done by people attending the concerts. How do you respond to that?

REIBEL: Well, I hadn't seen these reports until just recently. A gentleman from the Petoskey News-Review interviewed myself and my wife and showed me copies of these reports. For example, the Bob Seger concert, there is one complaint of trespass. Only one. With 14,000 people there, that is really minimal. But, as I indicated to him, anybody can make an allegation or make a statement. But I asked him to follow up on these to see how many of these were pursued or convicted. I don't know the results of that but I would guess they would probably be less than five percent. We get a certain number of people who complain about every concert. One of the biggest complaints is of people trespassing when they walk up and down the road. That, in fact, is not true because that road there has a 100-foot right-of-way. So what people consider to be their front yard is really the right-of-way. And if you've ever gone out to (Hwy.) 66, actually it's a four-lane road. There's a blacktopped apron to accomodate vehicles on both sides of the road.

We do get people walking up and down the highway. But as far as compaints, we really haven't had that many. It would be interesting to review these reports that George Lasater has on each concert and take into consideration the number of people. As has been stated to me, they have more probelms with the local football games than we do with substantially more people.

> "...As far as complaints, we really haven't had that many."

COURIER: So you think that the reports of the property damage in the area are exagerated by the complainants themselves and, in most cases, just aren't accurate?

REIBEL: If we hear about it, I make a point to go to the neighbor and find out about it and we had one slight problem at the beginning of the year with people cutting across the end lot there on Wickersham. So we posted our own security people there in that situation. As far property damage goes, there's a lady who lives about the third house up, I think her name is Gladys Miller. You might want to talk to her about the concerts. She lives there alone and she watches the concerts and she's never had a problem. She came up to me this year and made a point of telling me that. So we really don't have problems in that area.

PARSONS: Part of the problem is that people were used to nothing going on there and there's no question that they're not happy with the fact that there's this amount of people in their front view. There's nothing we can do about that. Some people just don't want to be disturbed - I guess all people feel like that about their home. I'm sure the people here in town - during the Art Festival or Venetian Weekend - have people parking on their front lawns and they don't appreciate it but it's part of tradition here and they accept it for that. I think that that's something that is happening out here. We're becoming more accepted.

REIBEL: I've noticed this too. In 1976, some people would come up to me and really be upset about the anticipation of music concerts. They always take the isolated situation, you know, where there were some real problems. And we were a little apprehensive at first, too. But that was five years ago. And I think the community at large has accepted the concerts. Their daughters, their children; they go to the concerts - I see a lot of them there - in 1976 (the parents) told me that their children would never go to the concerts.

Matter of fact, one individual who really got after me came out when the Bob Seger concert was sold out and wanted a couple of tickets for his kids. His two daughters. I remember in '76 he told me that under no condition would his children ever attend the concerts. Now they all go.

COURIER: You think that the majority of people in the community at large are in favor of Castle Farms as a music [illegible]?

REIBEL: Very definitely - as compared to back in 1976 when we started. People were apprehensive. But that's no longer the situation. Most of the young people look forward to the concerts. It's some of the best entertainment in the world. It's an opportunity to see them here at home. The Niederlanders conducted quite a survey in this area before they came up here in 1977 and from Traverse City to Harbor Springs is considered one of the finest summer tourist areas in the United States. That's the type of people you have here. You have affluent people and that is a reason, in part, that we have no real problems. People pay their money and they come to be entertained and they want problems.

> "I don't think we have any real complaints against the newspapers."

COURIER: If a city vote were held today on whether Castle Farms should continue or not, what percentage do you think you'd get to support you?

REIBEL: Oh, I'd say 95 percent. You know another aspect of it, too, is that it creates a lot of business dollars for the community. A lot of these people stay over night. Certainly a lot of them buy gas. A lot of them buy their beverage. We allow them to bring in anything they want to drink as long as it's not in a glass container. We clean up the following morning so we know what's there. You can talk to your local businessmen. I know one on the north side who normally would sell 50 or 60 cases of beer on a normal weekend. On a concert weekend, he'll sell five or six hundred cases. So there's a tremendous influx of revenue from the concerts.

COURIER: Pertaining to the actions of two weeks ago, (when state Treasury agents seized the financial records of Castle Farms for alleged tax violations) can you or do you wish to respond to the tax evasion charges that have been alleged against you?

REIBEL: I would just say that we have filed the tax returns required to be filed. We payed all taxes required to be paid. But in view of the forthcoming, pending litigation I would comment no further on that.

COURIER: No formal charges have been filed at this time, correct?

REIBEL: None that I'm aware of.

COURIER: Either by the Attorney General or any other state agency?

REIBEL: None that I'm aware of.

COURIER: But your material is still being held?

REIBEL: Yes.

COURIER: How do you view the treatment that has been given to you by the news media?

REIBEL: Well, the news media has a function to perform in advising the community and I respect that and just take it for what it is. I know what's true and what's not true and I'm really not too concerned with what's in the newspapers. But I don't think they've treated us unfairly. I just think that some reporters, by choice, write the negative aspect of something as opposed to the total story. When you do that, obviously you are going to sell newspapers and that's part of the reason of being in the newspaper business I assume. I think a good example here is John McGoff who owns many newspapers, or did, and he has received some real adverse publicity recently. Here's a man in the newspaper business. I don't think we have any real complaints against the newspapers.

COURIER: Don't you wish, some days, that you just had a quiet, little law practice...

REIBEL: I had all that.

COURIER: ...without the hassles of being a concert promoter and your name in the news constantly?

REIBEL: No...to the contrary. I started a law firm down in Detroit and it grew very quickly because I was a tax lawyer. Since moving up north and getting involved in the music business, I really enjoy it. I really look forward to the summer time. I look forward to working with young people. I really enjoy it. I truly do. I hope it goes on for another 20 or 30 years if I'm still around.

COURIER: But with all the negative publicity and everything, doesn't it ever seem like it's not worth it?

REIBEL: No, never. The thought's never crossed my mind. When I can see 14,000 people having fun at the Castle, I really enjoy it.

COURIER: Do you have some long range plans for the Castle?

REIBEL: Brad and I have been talking about this for the past week. We'd like to do several things and see the Castle get used more. Maybe eventually a nice restaurant. Bradley's got some other ideas on the music concept of it...

PARSONS: A lot of the jazz festivals at universities are held with federal funding. That's no secret. They just don't bring in the money to support themselves. We'd like to try and do something like that up here. Whether or not this community would support that is another matter. But we'd like to see that happen.

REIBEL: We're going to get into different kinds of music, too, not just jazz. We've also been looking at new seating arrangements and putting in our own restrooms.

PARSONS: You know, one misconception that I think people have is that Arthur and I are quite wealthy enterpreneurs and quite the opposite is true. I don't think many people realize what it takes to put on a concert.

COURIER: Can I ask what you made on the Bob Seger concert?

REIBEL: I can tell you the gross at 14,000 people, $10 a ticket - that's $140,000. But there's a tremendous amount of effort, money and time that goes into putting on a concert. It doesn't just all happen that day. That's why there's a staff of four or five people that work out there every day all summer. Putting together and coordinating the sound and lights, the hospitality, all the security, getting the groups in and making sure they're comfortable - there's just a tremendous amount of work involved that I never knew at first. But I do now.

There's a lot of effort, but it's well worth it. The rewards are great.

COURIER: Have you been in contact with Marion Township board at all?

REIBEL: Oh sure, I've talked to them.

COURIER: Are you progressing on some sort of an agreement with them?

REIBEL: We have a meeting with them scheduled for September 26 and I think at that time things will be resolved. The township, I think, has been fair. They've rezoned the property. They gave us the tavern license and we all worked together on the mass gathering ordinance that we fully comply with. So we have no problem with the township. The problem the township board has is that you have a select few individuals who constantly complain to them. That bothers me. Of course now we have a new township supervisor (Mike Bonar) who is a younger man and more objective and who looks into things before he makes decisions. I think you might see a change there.

> "The rewards are great."

COURIER: This past summer, they turned down your request for a permit for the Alice Cooper concert and you went ahead and had the concert. How do you justify that?

REIBEL: We paid our fee, it was accepted, they cashed our check and then one individual made the unilateral decision not to give us a permit. When you've spent your money and made your comittments, you can't stop a concert because an individual says he is not going to give you an eight and a half by eleven sheet of paper that says you can.

We fully complied with the ordinance at the beginning of the summer. We complied with George Lasater's department. We complied with the Health Department. We complied with all the requirements under that ordinance. We do that every year. And that's quite an undertaking. Then we go to the township and the township says 'Notify us before each concert' and we agreed to pay them a fee to cover their expenses. That individual, and I decline to mention any names, refused us that permit but for the following concerts this summer, we didn't have any problems. So I think that proves the point that that individual was wrong on the one concert.

COURIER: Many people are concerned about the reports of [illegible] happening at the concerts such as [illegible] on young women and one reportedly involving a young boy at one of the last concerts.

PARSONS: Again, we don't know the justification of the complaints. Until we do, complaints like that happen at any mass gathering. I've seen that happen at a lot of different places. Sometimes they're valid and sometimes they're not. My opinion is that these crowds up here are the best behaved I've ever seen.

REIBEL: You've got to separate the promoter who goes into Cobo Hall and rents the faciltiy for one night - you've got to separate that type of promoter from a facility, or venue, that owns and operates its own facility. Of primary importance to us is the upgrading of that facility.

It's well run, makes money and is a real benefit to the community. And that's out top priority.

Reibel faces new charges

Arthur Reibel's legal situation became even more tangled last week with the filing of charges against him by the State Bar Attorney Grievance Commission. The charges were filed with the Attorney Discipline Board.

The move was reportedly prompted by allegations that Reibel misused bail bonds provided to him by an Allanson woman for the posting of bond for her brother. Grievance Commission Administrator Michael Schwartz said that misconduct charges were filed on August 29 with the discipline board.

A three member panel of attorneys will preside over a hearing, the date for which has not been set, to determine if Reibel is guilty of the charges. Possible disciplinary action includes loss of his license to practice law. Reibel could not be reached for comment on the charges which were made public after the above interview was conducted.

Courier of '55 tells of different world

Last week a reader brought in a copy of the Oct. 6, 1955 Courier. Looking it over, one might comment that 25 years is a long time, but again, maybe it isn't. Some of the news stories revealed that:

Max Novak took over duties as Region 14 head of the Michigan Educational Association; Mrs. Gordon L. Freedman and Mrs. Charles A. Duerr were co-chairmen of the Community Chest Drive; Fred W. Willis was elected head of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club; Mrs. Joan Blanchard and infant son were discharged from the Charlevoix Area Hospital; Clarence Odmark began his tenth year as director of the high school band; Mrs. Ross Alexander spoke to the Charlevoix Garden Club; two volunteers, Thomas G. LaBlance and Franklin Potter, reported to the Charlevoix County Draft board; and Mrs. Arthur Stoel joined the Courier correspondents staff, succeeding her mother, Mrs. Clyde Smith, who had covered the Barnard district for the Courier for 40 years.

The football season was two games old, with Charlevoix and Boyne City each standing at 2 and 0. The Rayders were preparing for their homecoming game against Boyne City the following week. Homecoming festivities were to include crowning a homecoming queen, a homecoming dance, a homecoming parade, and a homecoming pep rally complete with snake dance and bonfire. Ann Ratigan, president of the Pep Club, was in charge of homecoming preparations.

On the national scene, it was reported that:

Prospects "were bright" that the Salk vaccine would bring paralytic polio under effective control in 1956; President Eisenhower continued his satisfactory recovery from a heart attack, and Vice-President Nixon presided at meetings of the Cabinet and the National Security Council in his absence; and Secretary of State Dulles said American officials "still hope it will be possible to avoid" getting into any arms race in the Middle East.

The advertisements were equally revealing:

The Argonne was serving "all you can eat" shrimp for $1.95; Parsel Garage could deliver an Oldsmobile 88 2-door sedan for $2,374.62; Kroger's was selling round steak for 59 cents a pound; Schroeder & Hovey Drugs' sale included 200 aspirin for 59 cents; Lieberman's featured 100 percent virgin wool Spinnaker shirts for $10.95; Puff's had a special on General Electric washers for $149.95; Fay's Dress Shoppe advertised "extra special" dresses at $5.39; and Hess Furniture Company offered Lane cedar chests for [illegible].

Walk through at Middle School

Last Sundew mission is good example of crew's proficiency on a tight ship

By [illegible]

ABOARD THE USCGC SUNDEW - There are probably few places on the upper Great Lakes that point up the importance of buoy maintenance to navigation as much as the De Tour Passage and the St. Mary's River which thread their way to Lake Superior from the northwest corner of Lake Huron.

It was to this heavily traveled shipping lane that the USCGC Sundew was sent recently to replace a buoy that had been blown off its mooring by a late summer storm.

Routine as the mission was, there was added significance in the fact that, this time, there would be no return to Charlevoix by the Sundew. Following its annual term in the shipyard at Sault Ste. Marie, the Sundew was scheduled to rendezvous with a sister ship, the Mesquite, switch crews and proceed to a new home port in Duluth.

When it sailed from its Round Lake berth on Sunday, September 14, the Sundew ended 22 years of calling Charlevoix home.

To get a first-hand look at the Sundew and its crew on the job - and to document the ship's nostalgic last mission out of Charlevoix - this reporter was aboard for the voyage to the Sault that day.

Preparation for sailing began in the middle of the night, hours before daybreak fell on Round Lake. When I arrived at the Coast Guard dock shortly before dawn, final chores were in process. Because the crew would be out of town for the better part of a month and because the Sundew would not be coming back at all, there were extra [illegible] this time to be loaded.

Forward on the buoy deck were lashed everything from crewmens' motorcycles to the giant brass propeller, a spare, that would travel with the ship because of its uniqueness to the Sundew. For its ice-breaking duty, the Sundew is powered by a single screw turned by a 1,000 horse diesel and a forward thruster mounted under the bow.

The thruster, which is basically a tube with openings on each side of the ship and an impeller in the middle, comes in just as handy for maneuvering in and out of dock as it does for squeezing the 180-foot hull through thick ice.

Early morning departures, complete with the complaining and kidding that results from any group of servicemen being rousted at such an unholy hour, are routine for the Sundew's crew. But this day there was an atmoshpere of solemnity as lines were cast off and the ship eased out the Pine River Channel into Lake Michigan.

Adding to the pomp were several townspeople, including two Charlevoix police squad cars with lights and sirens, who gathered to bid the Sundew farewell.

Getting them to admit it today may be difficult but, at that moment, many of the crewmen were genuinely touched. As the day went by, more than one remark was made about the gesture and how it was nice to be appreciated.

There is no mistaking that the officers and crew, more than anyone else, are disappointed in the shuffle that sends the Sundew to Duluth. To a man, the individuals I talked with were unhappy, even envious, about the thought of turning their ship over to another crew.

Lt. Commander Warren Miller, in his two-year tenure as skipper, has maintained a high level of pride among crew members. Unlike other classes of Coast Guard vessels more dependent on shore based support, the Sundew is self-sufficient. All maintenance and day to day chores, other than shipyard work, are performed by the 56-man crew, about 20 of whom live aboard ship.

The result has been a close relationship between men and ship. The Sundew, according to Miller, has a reputation in the Coast Guard Great Lakes ranks of doing its job well and sometimes that of others.

As one crewman put it, "When we work a buoy, that buoy stays worked!"

Proof of that boast came from watching the replacement of De Tour buoy number three, a smaller variety of cylindrical buoy marking a shoal near the entrance to the De Tour Channel.

As a temporary marker buoy was sighted in the general vicinity of where the permanent one should be, the Sundew slowed to a crawl and depth soundings began from the bow. With methodical repitition, a crew member tossed a lead weight attached to a line knotted with depth markers over the side. When it rested on bottom, he would shout the depth, in feet, to the bridge in what became a monotonous chant for the next hour.

When the ship came along side the marker buoy, its massive boom swung out and in short order had the buoy and cement anchor aboard. Placing the permanent buoy, though, required a bit more precision than just plunking the thing in the water.

Because the whole purpose of a navigational buoy is to accurately mark a position, the Sundew relies on celestial readings to ensure perfect placement. As the ship hoverd over the approximate location, readings from the flying bridge above the helm were constantly shouted to the skipper by two crewmen with sextants.

Positioning was made even more difficult by a gusting wind of up to 25 knots. Using the bow thrusters and gentle power from the main engines, the ship gingerly edged toward the right spot.

While depth sounding and maneuvering were going on, crew mwmbers on the buoy deck were busy readying for the drop. The permanent buoy and its massive cement block anchor were effortlessly lifted by the boom over the side and each was lashed along the buoy deck railing. When the crew was done, the anchor hung by its chain which was threaded through a large cleat and secured by a spike and the buoy itself hung nearby

Late heroics spell relief for Rayders over Petoskey

With 5:59 to go in the game, the score tied at 0, and an offense that so far this season has had a tendency to choke inside the 20 yard line, did Charlevoix Coach Don Carey give any thought to attempting a field goal from the 13 on fourth down against Petoskey Friday night?

"Never considered it," he said later, "We were moving the ball well at the time and I had confidence that we could put it in."

Carey's confidence in the Rayders paid off as Quarterback Scott Kelly tossed a pass to junior end Ross Carey on the crucial play, thus breaking the scoreless tie and paving the way for an eventual 14-6 Charlevoix victory.

It was the Rayders' first conference win and third overall on the season against no defeats. Petoskey sunk to a 1-2 record and 0-1 in conference play.

Charlevoix was plagued Friday night by a malady that has afflicted them often in the young season: offensive domination cancelled out by mistakes near the goal line.

Their first drive ended at the Petoskey seven with an interception. Shortly thereafter, with over six minutes to go in the first quarter, the Rayders marched to the Northmen's one following a fumble recovery but then fumbled themselves in the endzone.

In the second quarter, Charlevoix mounted an impressive drive to the Petoskey four only to be set back by penalties. Other threats were blunted by dropped passes.

In the fourth quarter, with Charlevoix knocking on the door again at the one, the Rayders fumbled again in the endzone and gave the ball back to Petoskey at their 20.

Luckily for Charlevoix, the Northmen could not capitalize on any of the charity afforded them by the Rayders' mistakes. A consistently solid defense by Charlevoix held conference rival Petoskey to only six first downs in the game compared to 21 for the Rayders.

Petoskey's running game was effectively stymied as it totalled only 154 yards to Charlevoix's 314.

Leading the Charlevoix charge on offense was fullback Mark Beaudoin who ran for 134 yards in 21 carries, his best game yet this season. Other Rayder runners were Dave Buday with 72 yards in 13 carries, Jim Buchanon with 66 yards in eight carries and Kelly with 43 yards in four carries.

Charlevoix's first touchdown drive started midway through the fourth quarter when the Rayders took over on the Petoskey 45 after receiving a punt. Kelly passed to Carey for five yards, threw an incomplete pass to Buday and, on third down, Beaudoin cut off tackle for a 24-yard scamper to the 16.

Beaudoin took the ball to the nine in a couple of carries but, on third down, the Northmen were looking for him and threw him for a loss back to the 13. It was from that point, on fourth down, that Kelly threw to Carey in the endzone and Joe Sladek added the extra point to make it 7-0.

Later in the quarter, with 1:06 to go in the game, Buchanon iced the victory with a 25-yard sprint into the endzone. Sladek again added the point thus completing a perfect evening for the senior kicker.

On the last play of the game, Petoskey made it onto the scoreboard with a four yard pass from Quarterback Paul Fruge to Brian Faylor for the Northmen's only touchdown.

This Friday Charlevoix will put its unblemished record on the line at Gaylord where the kickoff is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Coach Don Carey confers with Quarterback Scott Kelly.

Runners best of three

The Charlevoix Rayder harriers chalked up their first Michigan-Huron Shores victories of the season Wednesday by winning a triangular meet with Boyne City and Gaylord.

In the meet held at Boyne City, the Rayders won over the Ramblers 19-44 and over Gaylord by a score of 21-42. Boyne City then won over [illegible].

Charlevoix will host St. Ignace and Boyne City here Tuesday and will participate in the Traverse City High School invitational on Saturday.

In Wednesday's meet Charlevoix placed seven runners among the top 11 in the meet. Jay Swartwout with a time of 16:28 was the overall winner. Coming in second was Jim Landon with a time of 16:31. He was followed by Raymond of Gaylord who ran the course in 16:44; Crumbaugh, Boyne City, 16:53; Sherwood, Gaylord, 17:16; Todd Russell, 17:28; Scott Davis, 17:29; Hullet, Boyne City, 17:33; Jim Landon, 17:43; Bill Dohm, 17:46 and Bill Taylor, a freshman, 17:49.

Coach Pete Spieles said his runners looked good in the meet and that he felt the team was off to a good start.

In the Junior Varsity division of the meet, Charlevoix won over Boyne City 22-42 and Gaylord 23-35 and Boyne City defeated Gaylord 18-37.

Charlevoix took the first three places with Matt Peterson coming in first with a time of 18:01 followed by Bill Herriman with 18:25; Alec Sheets, 18:28; Brian Vroman, Boyne City, 18:30 and Brown, Gaylord, 18:48.

Second at Ludington

The Charlevoix Cross Country team, coached by Pete Spieles, placed second with 49 points in the Ludington Invitational Saturday.

The Rayders' Jay Swartwout placed first in the meet in a time of 17:33. Coach Spieles said the 3.1 mile (5000 M.) course was very hilly and was very sloppy as the result of the heavy rains.

Other Rayders and how they placed follow: Jeff Landon, fifth with a time of 17:43; Jim Landon, 10th, in 18:13; Todd Russell, 16th, 18:38; Scott Davis, 17th, 18:41; Bill Taylor, 26th, 19:02 and Bill Dohm, 27th, 19:08.

Muskegon Oakridge won the meet with a point total of 47. [illegible] Charlevoix by 13 points in the White Cloud Invitational.

Boyne City placed sixth in [illegible].

Klooster tops 1,000 in loss

In a non-league game which saw a strong Johannesburg-Lewiston team defeated Charlevoix 59-54, Melinda Klooster passed the 1,000 mark in her prep school basketball scoring record.

Klooster, a senior, who sat out most of last season with a knee injury, scored 28 points in the game to bring her career total to 1,017 points.

[illegible] contributed 14 points for Charlevoix while Debbie House who is nearing the 1,000 mark had 20 points and 20 rebounds. [illegible] for Joberg. Kim Brown played a key role in the victory for the [illegible].

The Cardinals jumped to a 13-7 quarter score, increased [illegible] at the three-quarter mark.

Charlevoix will play at Petoskey Thursday.

Flag football results

The Oilers edged the Patriots 29-27 and the Seahawks won over the Redskins of Boyne City 14-7 as the flag football season sponsored by the Charlevoix Recreation Department opened here Wednesday.

The Oilers and the Patriots played to a 13-13 first period [illegible] ahead 27-22 at halftime. They [illegible] in the final period when the Oilers scored on a six yard run by Denny Curtis to snatch the victory by a two point margin.

[illegible] kick-off 30 yards to put the Oilers on the boards only to [illegible] a TD on a nine yard pass from Mark Trumper to Doug Sloan. The Oilers then went to the air with Mark Hudson scoring on a 30 yard pass play from Brent Cole. Brian Cole then scored the conversion. Another Trumper to Sloan pass, this one for seven yards made the quarter score 13-13.

To open the second quarter, Carl Smith scored a safety for the Oilers and Jeff Smith [illegible] 40 yard run to give the Oilers the edge but the Patriots [illegible] just before the half on a five yard Trumper to Sloan pass and Sloan on a pass interception for 25 yards to put his team ahead 27-22 at intermission.

It was a last minute run by Curtis that gave the Oilers the 29-27 win after Brent Cole [illegible].

In the second game the Seahawks controlled the game against the Redskins of Boyne City who were playing their first flag football game. An eight yard scoring play by Larry Drost and a safety by Chris Havens put the Seahawks ahead 8-0 as the first period ended. John Pearl added a safety in the second period and Mike Louiselle another in the third period for a 14-0 advantage at the end of the third period.

However, in the final period, the visiting Redskins got into the game and scored on a 25 yard pass play from Rob Mosser to John Toton with Toton adding the conversion to [illegible].

The Seahawks and the Rams will meet at 6 p.m. and Cowboys and the Patriots at 7:15 Wednesday here and the Redskins and the Lions at Boyne City the same night.

On Monday the Rams and the Oilers will play at 6 p.m. and the Seahawks and the Lions of Boyne City at 7:15 p.m.

Aboard the Sundew

[illegible] secured by a heavy line.

The preparation done, all hands waited for a sign from the skipper who waited, in turn, for the precise bearings. When they came, he shouted a command to the buoy deck, a crewman knocked the anchor chain loose with a mallet and the anchor, chain and buoy disappeared over the side.

An hour and a half of preparation went into the actual drop which took about three seconds.

When I complimented a crewman on the smoothness of the operation, he replied, "We get a lot of practice."

The other factor involved is the constant instruction and education officers and crew receive. With three years as the average term of duty served on the Sundew by crewmen and two years for officers, one might wonder how any continuity is maintained.

The answer is that for almost every job on the ship there are two people; one who knows what he is doing and one who is learning. Two men at the helm; one teaching the other. Two men taking bearings and plotting a course; one teaching the other. Two men serving the officers meals; one teaching the other.

The end result is a crew that is very versatile and a ship that runs smoothly.

The Mesquite is due to arrive in Charlevoix sometime next month. Although they have not seen it, many crew members are already apprehensive.

"We worked hard on the Sundew to make it one of the best and now we are going to have to start from scratch," [illegible].

To most observers, the Mesquite will appear as a carbon copy of the Sundew. There are no structural differences in the two ships. The Sundew's more powerful engine is the only significant difference and is apparently in greater need in Lake Superior [illegible] of all the Great Lakes.

Officers and crew expect to [illegible] that just aren't the same. It's a good bet, though, that where improvements are needed, they will be made in a hurry.

It's also a good bet that soon it will be the Mesquite with the reputation for thoroughness and good work.

Bearings are taken from a lighthouse marker.

HOW KHQ CHANGED MY LIFE...
(OR, HOW YOU TOO CAN BECOME A WONDERFUL HUMAN BEING!)

BEFORE...
this is me before I started listening to FM 106 KHQ...LONELY, OVERWEIGHT, UNHAPPY.

AFTER...
this is me a short six weeks after I started listening to KHQ....trim, rich and sexy.

It's hard to believe that just a few short weeks ago, I was the man pictured on the left lost and alone.

Hard to believe, but true.

My life was lonely; I was overweight. My hair was dull and lifeless. I was plagued with dandruff, acne and a dog who kept running away from home.

My life was the pits

But, one night, after having been arrested for sleeping in Pennsylvania Park, I saw the light. My last friend in the world was driving me home from jail when he suggested that I get my life together and start listening to radio station KHQ.

"But Ricco," I said incredulously, "What possible good could that do?"

"Stan," he said coldly, "At this point, what could it hurt?"

Looking into his steely dark eyes that night, I knew he was right. I resolved to give KHQ a real try

It wasn't easy at first, getting used to a radio station with no rip-off contests, no loud dj's — just one great song after another.

But soon, I started to feel the benefits of listening and in no time at all, I was using a napkin at every meal, I lost weight and was accepted once again by society.

And I wasn't alone anymore. I discovered that all the best people listen to KHQ — and it can change your life.

Tune in right now to FM 106-KHQ you can listen FREE OF CHARGE for as many hours a day as you wish with no obligation

You, too can become a wonderful human being in just six short weeks.

GEMWISE
JEWELRY FASHIONS FACTS FICTION

GOLD: GIFT FROM THE SUN

[illegible] gift from the sun. People have worshipped it since they first laid eyes on it. They have killed for it and nearly been killed trying to find it. I'm speaking of gold - the gleaming, rich yellow metal that has been so important in the social, political and cultural evolution of mankind.

Gold first caught man's eye because of its attractive gleam. It was used to decorate weapons and to honor tribal chiefs and the bravest warriors. It took the form of medallions of honor and royal crowns.

Gold was once used extensively for coins, then it shifted into the background as a back up system for paper currency and less valuable metal coins. But gold no longer backs our currency. Today ours as well as most other world currencies are backed by credit.

Gold is known for its superior conductivity and reflectivity. As such, it has found its way into new technologies. The guidance systems that send men into space use gold. The astronaut's lifeline is coated with gold to reflect heat, and his visor is shaped with gold to protect his eyes.

When you wear gold jewelry, you are wearing a substance that has intrigued man for centuries, that has played important roles in many historical currents.

Gold is beautiful, spellbinding, awe inspiring, and we will undoubtedly continue to cherish it long into the future.

HOW KHQ CHANGED MY LIFE...
(OR, HOW YOU TOO CAN BECOME A WONDERFUL HUMAN BEING!)

BEFORE...
this is me before I started listening to FM 106 KHQ...LONELY, OVERWEIGHT, UNHAPPY.

AFTER...
this is me a short six weeks after I started listening to KHQ....trim, rich and sexy.

It's hard to believe that just a few short weeks ago, I was the man pictured on the left - lost and alone

Hard to believe, but true

My life was lonely; I was overweight. My hair was dull and lifeless. I was plagued with dandruff, acne and a dog who kept running away from home.

My life was the pits.

But, one night, after having been arrested for sleeping in Pennsylvania Park, I saw the light. My last friend in the world was driving me home from jail when he suggested that I get my life together and start listening to radio station KHQ

"But Ricco," I said incredulously, "What possible good could that do?"

"Stan," he said coldly, "At this point, what could it hurt?"

Looking into his steely dark eyes that night, I knew he was right. I resolved to give KHQ a real try.

It wasn't easy at first, getting used to a radio station with no rip-off contests, no loud dj's – just one great song after another.

But soon, I started to feel the benefits of listening and in no time at all, I was using a napkin at every meal, I lost weight and was accepted once again by society.

And I wasn't alone anymore. I discovered that all the best people listen to KHQ – and it can change your life.

Tune in right now to FM 106-KHQ -- you can listen FREE OF CHARGE for as many hours a day as you wish with no obligation.

You, too can become a wonderful human being in just six short weeks.

GOLD: GIFT FROM THE SUN

Ancient man believed it was a gift from the sun. People have worshipped it since they first laid eyes on it. They have killed for it and nearly been killed trying to find it. I'm speaking of gold -- the gleaming, rich yellow metal that has been so important in the social, political and cultural evolution of humans.

Gold first caught man's eye because of its attractive gleam. It was used to decorate weapons and to honor tribal chiefs and the bravest warriors. It took the form of medallions of honor and royal crowns.

Gold was once used extensively for coins, then it shifted into the background as a back up system for paper currency and less valuable metal coins. But gold no longer backs our currency. Today ours as well as most other world currencies are backed by credit.

Gold is known for its superior conductivity and reflectivity. As such, it has found its way into new technologies. The guidance systems that send men into space use gold. The astronaut's lifeline is coated with gold to reflect heat, and his visor is shaped with gold to protect his eyes.

When you wear gold jewelry, you are wearing a substance that has intrigued men for centuries, that has played important roles in many historical currents.

Gold is beautiful, spellbinding, awe-inspiring, and we will undoubtedly continue to cherish it long into the future.

GORDON R. WELLMAN, Charlevoix County State Bank, Mich., was among those attending the 36th annual session of the Graduate School of Banking at the University of Wisconsin-Madison Aug. 11-22.

The school is sponsored by the Central States Conference of Bankers Associations from 16 Midwestern states. About 1,550 bankers were enrolled this year from 41 states, Puerto Rico, Honduras and Mexico.

To be listed as a graduate of the school, a banker must attend three of the annual two-week sessions at U.W.-Madison and satisfactorily complete extension problems between the resident sessions. A faculty of more than 100 instructors this year included bankers specializing in a number of fields, as well as lawyers, business executives, economists and college professors.

WILLIAM OHLE of Boyne City has been named to head the re-election campaign in Charlevoix County for Chief Justice Mary Coleman of Battle Creek.

Ohle, formerly with the Leo Burnett Advertising Company of Chicago, was appointed to the campaign organization by Leone Brown of Gaylord, chairman of the 11th Congressional District effort for Justice Coleman.

In a joint statement issued from Justice Coleman's campaign headquarters in Battle Creek, Mrs. Brown and Ohle said Justice Coleman's "re-election to the Supreme Court would continue to give the high court balance and sensitivity."

Hospital staff explains Medicare

"Some feel, 'if a little bit is good, more is better,' which gives them security and I understand, but it is unnecessary. A good complimentary policy is all they need.

"People, particularly older people, have many fears about long term illnesses or catastrophic illness, but basically a good complimentary policy will cover most needs. If they want to cover all possibilities they could get a policy with a large deductible and low premiums – a major medical policy," Mrs. Greene observed.

The hospital workers also mentioned that some people seek policies which will pay them for every day hospitalized, to make up for loss of income. They stressed that people must recognize that such a policy will not cover bills not covered by Medicare. A good complimentary policy is still a necessity.

Carol Kowalk pointed out that by law all insurance companies must offer complimentary insurance to Medicare. She reiterated what people should look for in a complimentary policy: "It should pay the $180 and other deductibles of Part A, and $50 deductible of Part B, plus the 20% of Part B not covered by Medicare."

Mrs. Kowalk also observed that even with Medicare and a complimentary policy some patients still find themselves paying portions of doctors' bills.

"The confusion arises between what Medicare in Michigan approves as a reasonable charge and what doctors actually charge.

"If a patient is concerned about this discrepancy, he or she should ask their doctor if he accepts what Medicare assigns as fee for a particular service. If the doctor's fees is higher, the patient will have to pay the difference."

Mrs. Kowalk explained this problem does not occur with Medicare Part A, because Charlevoix Area Hospital accepts Medicare assignment of costs.

As health care consumers, people need to understand their insurance coverages and their doctor's fees before they get the bills, the hospital [illegible].

Courier is a winner!

The Charlevoix Courier was the recipient of two awards recently at the Michigan Newspaper Association 1980 Advertising Conference held at Bellaire. The Courier won a second place award for "Best Use of Newspaper Art Service" for a newspaper ad designed for the Weathervane. The Courier also placed second in "Best Special Section Idea" for its Best of the Bay section. Said Courier Advertising Manager Mary Lee Huber, who attended the conference, "We are very proud and happy to receive these honors and plan to keep up the good work for our advertisers." The contest entries were judged by members of the Wisconsin Newspaper Association.

Temporary shutdown being contemplated at Medusa plant

A severe slump in the construction industry sent ominous shock waves to Charlevoix Monday when officials at the Medusa Cement Plant south of the city announced that a tentative shutdown of the plant is being scheduled for mid-November.

One of the worst construction slowdowns since World War II is expected next year and it is being blamed for the dwindling market for cement, the most widely used construction material.

Other than shutdowns for maintenance, the Medusa plant in Charlevoix Township has never experienced a major production stoppage. Just last week, the plant's new "dry" process was accelerated to its maximum production capacity of 240 tons per hour for the first time.

The new process, replacing the previous "wet" process, was the result of a massive $50 million conversion project recently completed at Medusa which was built on South Point in 1967.

With over 150 employees and several contracting arrangements with other local firms, Medusa is one of the area's largest industries. Plant officials were unsure as to how many employees would be affected by the shutdown, which, they stressed, is still tentative.

Hard times descend on East Jordan

By [illegible]

"It's good to be back at work," Kenneth Young, 36, told a stranger one day this week.

"If we can get by this winter, the recession is over," he said, echoing the hope that glimmers ever so slightly in this town of 2100 persons, in which unemployment has been close to 50 per cent for nearly a year.

Young, who is a maintenance worker repairing machinery at the East Jordan Iron Works, was laid off last December 31st, and was recalled on September 15.

"I lived on unemployment compensation for 39 weeks; getting about $500 a month," he said. "Now my gross weekly pay is about $300 a week."

Young, who is divorced, contributes to the support of his three young children.

"Luckily, I had killed a deer during last year's hunting season," he continued. "That and the brook trout I caught in the Jordan River, accounted for about 30 per cent of my food. But like I say, I'm glad to get back to work. I think things are going to pick up."

The only blot – and a dark one – on the picture is the four-week old strike by teachers in the East Jordan School District.

The School Board is seeking an injunction against the teachers in Charlevoix County Circuit Court. A hearing was set for last Monday, but on recommendation by Judge Martin Breighner, the teachers went to work that day and negotiations between the two sides were resumed.

But Thursday the teachers returned to the picket lines, after negotiations failed to produce a settlement. The teachers still refused the board's offer of a 6 per cent salary hike or an across the board raise of $1500 per teacher while the board held out for letting the voters decide whether or not binding arbitration on future disputes should be adopted as policy as the teachers demand.

"The timing of this strike is most unfortunate, with many people still out of work and with the more than 600 Senior citizens in town finding it increasingly difficult to make ends meet," observes one former school board member. "It's going to be difficult enough to get the operational millage passed on October 9, as it is."

LATE DEVELOPMENT

East Jordan teachers returned to their classrooms Monday despite Circuit Judge Martin Breighner's refusal to issue an injunction to end the strike. Following an agreement by the school board to include binding arbitration for teacher grievances in their final offer Friday, the teachers voted Saturday to return to classes and continue negotiations on salary and other issues.

East Jordan's troubles began early last winter when the ITT plant, where employment had fallen from 175 to 60 in six months shut up shop forever. The plant produced wire harnesses for large model automobiles and its officers in division headquarters at Oak Park decided it wasn't economical to convert it to some other manufacture.

At about the same time Gulf and Western began laying off its hourly employees. By June there were 152 lay offs, or 56 per cent of the total hourly work force.

At the East Jordan Iron Works the total work force had dropped from 500 to 300 with the great surge of lay-offs starting at about the time Kenneth Young received his last pay check. It is now back to 30 per cent of peak employment from 35 per cent last winter.

The Iron Works, owned by the Malpass family, which will celebrate its 100th anniversary in 1983, is a keystone of the local economy. It manufactures man holecovers, fire hydrants, and brake drums for trucks, and parts for farm machinery among a large line of products, and is considered an highly efficient plant employing the latest in automated machinery.

"It isn't one of your big corporations," Young said. "The family does its best to keep things going, to keep as many of the town's people working as they can."

Many of the workers layed off by the three factories included wives and mothers.

"It takes two pay checks to keep a family going, nowadays," one observer pointed out.

But the impact wasn't as great as might be expected, according to Janet Walker, manager of Taylor's IGA store.

"The amount of food stamps cashed here tripled," she said. "It's much worse than the '74-'75 recession. But it

School board appointees face the press

By Peg Ohle

With the recent appointments of Mrs. John (Doris) Pearl and Michael A. Gibbons to the school board, the Charlevoix Board of Education is continuing in its tradition of being made up of graduates of Charlevoix High School.

Of the present seven-person board, only one member, Mrs. Thomas (Ardith) Wieland, did not attend Charlevoix High School. She graduated from Boyne City High School. The others – Max Novak, Kenneth Boss, Elaine Martin, and Steven Smith, as well as Mrs. Pearl and Gibbons – received their secondary education in Charlevoix.

Mrs. Pearl, a homemaker and mother, graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1963. She later attended Western Michigan University and a cosmotology school in Grand Rapids and operated a beauty shop in her home in Norwood Township for three or four years.

At the present time, Mrs. Pearl devotes her time to caring for her husband and two children. John Pearl also graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1963 and attended Western Michigan University, and is now a building contractor. Their children are John, 13, and Ellen, 10, in the eighth and fifth grades, respectively.

Mrs. Pearl was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. Connie Pointner, who resigned to accept a part-time teaching position.

Mrs. Pearl recently expressed her thoughts about the responsibility of school board members as follows:

"The principal responsibility of the school board is the well-being of the student, providing the student the means to a positive development, to fulfill a responsible interest and goals, and to function productively in our complex society.

"A secondary responsibility is to the taxpayers of the district. In providing the primary responsibility, the board should periodically assess all facets of the school system to determine if they are necessary, desirable, and valuable. If any part or position is not, then it should be eliminated in order to run the system and maintain the quality in the most economical way possible.

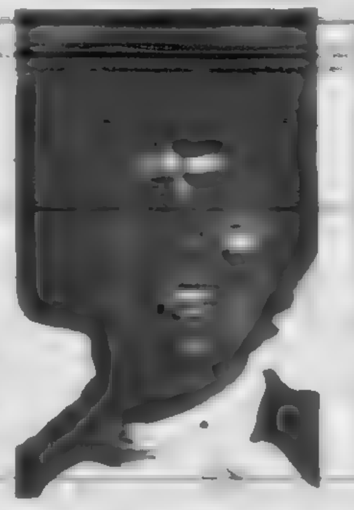
"And just one other thought: No board nor any other government unit can be any better than the sum of the individuals who elect these persons."

Mrs. Pearl answered the Courier's request for her philosophy of education as follows:

"I believe that education is in a great part the responsibility of our public schools, but parents must also share that responsibility.

"Each student should first be accorded the dignity of an individual. I believe in the rights of each individual to an education free from prejudice. I believe that each student should learn under guidance not only factual knowledge but also critical reading and thinking and how to make intelligent judgments. This is especially true in regards to television and newspapers which are so available today.

"I also believe that with these rights our country affords, our students must assume the responsibility of becoming good citizens, and I believe that the motivation to learn is a basic 'must'. I believe that on the whole we have a very good school system, one that I am – and the community should be – very proud of.



Doris Pearl

Michael Gibbons

"One of the papers given to me by the school board states that 'Principles should be put above personal opinion and reason above prejudice'. I fully agree with that."

Gibbons, an attorney, graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1956. After serving with the United States Army for two years, he attended Aquinas College in Grand Rapids, from which he graduated with a Bachelor of Arts degree. In 1965, he earned a Juris Doctor degree from Wayne State University, and in 1966 he was admitted to the bar and licensed to practice law.

Gibbons was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Charles A. Elzinga, who resigned for business reasons.

Gibbons is married to the former Marilyn Neff, who graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1957. They have four sons: Christopher, 14, Tim, 13, Pat, 12; and Matt, 8.

The responsibilities of school board members are many-fold, according to Gibbons:

"The board sits as a State Constitutionally mandated body and is given such powers as are necessary to carry out the responsibility of establishing policies, placing such policies into operation, and at the same time maintain a continuous appraisal of such policies in their effectiveness in achieving, for Charlevoix, the very highest standards of excellence academically and in their sports programs.

"In order to effectively carry out such responsibility, it is imperative that the board members receive advice from area citizens in establishing policy and in carrying out such policies. For that reason, I have always encouraged public participation in board meetings from non-profit corporations, local political subdivisions, or, as in this instance, the school board. It has been my experience that planning and policy is generally revised in response to their participation.

"The board members, of course, must be responsive to citizen advice, in order to maintain openness and candor. The board must be constantly attentive to insuring a free flow of information and make such information conveniently available to the citizens and parents. In that regard, the present board members have adopted specific policies defining information and availability.

"However, to promote efficient dissemination of school information, the board has designated the Superintendant, as part of his responsibilities as executive officer, to process such requests for specific information.

"As I envision it, the board members, in order to be effective, must maintain a contiguous ongoing review of the system's fiscal management programs, building program, including practices and related negotiations on the one hand, and maintain continuous monitoring of student policies, curriculum development programs, and general public relations matters.

"With respect to public relations, the citizens ought to be informed by the board that community use of the school facilities has been established for the benefit of the community, including the public library, and certainly the parents will want to investigate curriculum material.

ARE DAMAGES TAX DEDUCTIBLE?

As a homeowner, expenses from damage or improvements may affect your income taxes. For instance, damage to your house from, say, fire or windstorm may be partially deductible as a casualty loss. After subtracting insurance compensation, deduct $100 for each accident and the remainder can be claimed as a tax deduction.

Improvements, such as a porch, garage, finished basement, and so on cannot be deducted. However, they can be added to the cost of the house when figuring profit on the sale. So, keep good records of such expenses. Try to preserve cancelled checks and receipted bills. They will help substantiate the figures, if necessary.

I'm just scratching the surface here. If this situation applies to you, I suggest you contact your nearest Internal Revenue Office for a copy of their pamphlet No. 530, "Tax Information on Deductions for Homeowners." It may save you some money.

OCTOBER'S BIRTHSTONE-OPAL

The birthstone or [illegible] custom originated, most recently, in Germany in 1562.

Wearing a stone or stones of one's birth months showed at a glance what month you were born under.

Through the ages, the opal has been cherished for reasons other than its unique beauty.

In the Middle Ages, it was dubbed the "eye stone" because it supposedly sharpened its owner's vision. Since it was also thought to make him invisible whenever he wished a clear advantage to lawbreakers, the opal soon became known as the [illegible].

Despite the associations, every blonde did her best to beg, borrow, or steal an opal necklace. As long as she wore it, said medieval mystics, her hair would keep its golden color.

Opals were credited with the magical ability to prevent fainting, protect against infection and strengthen the heart. It was said that the gem could even save its wearer's life by turning pale in the presence of poison.

Found only where there was once an inland sea, opals are a form of silica, containing from six to ten percent water.

Opals are a popular birthstone and Reusch Jewelry can show you [illegible].

Kusina files countersuit

William Kusina, his wife Bernice and son Dennis, have responded to a complaint filed in Circuit Court by the City of Charlevoix regarding the repair of a retaining wall on Bridge Street, (CC, Sept. 10, 1980), with an answer to the 12-point complaint and a counter complaint of their own against the city.

The city maintains that the old stone and cement wall on the west side of Bridge Street between Antrim and Hurbut Streets is badly in need of repair and is a safety hazard to pedestrians. In a complaint filed September 3, the city further maintains that the wall is on property owned by the Kusinas and that it is their responsibility to fix.

In an answer filed on September 22 to the city's action, the Kusinas' attorney, Roy C. Hayes, denied that the repair of the wall is the Kusinas' responsibility and asked that the city's complaint be dropped. Hayes also filed a counter complaint on behalf of the Kusinas stating that the major cause of damage to the wall has been the city's snow removal equipment bumping into it and that, even if it is found to be on Kusinas' property, the cost of repairs should be born by the city.

Christiansens still waiting

Ken and Myrtle Christiansen are still waiting to hear from the DNR on whether irrigation pumping by the Antrim Dells Golf Course has caused a creek that runs through their property to dry up, (CC, Sept. 17, 1980). Mrs. Christiansen said last week that they had expected a response from the DNR by now but that they had not been contacted. The Christiansens built a home on Dennis Creek in the Atwood subdivision of Timberlane Terrace in [illegible]. At that time, Dennis Creek was a flowing trout steam. Two years ago, however, the creek went dry and the Christiansens suspected the golf course's irrigation pumping as the reason.

"We are a little disappointed that we haven't heard anything from the DNR yet," said Mrs. Christiansen, "They led us to believe we would get an answer by now." She said that the matter is in the hands of the DNR legal department and that if the situation eventually requires the Christiansens to file a court action, they are prepared to do so.

Wards, Soderberg talking

A neighbor's concerns that have delayed plans by the Ward Brothers Boat Shop to build a new, larger building, (CC, Sept. 10, 1980), are in the process of being worked out amicably according to Don Ward of the boat shop and Henry Soderberg, the neighbor. Soderberg first objected to the new building proposed by Wards at a September 2 City Council meeting when the Wards were seeking site plan approval.

According to Soderberg, and his son-in-law Lloyd Kirby, the building as then planned would have blocked Soderberg's view of Round Lake from all his windows. Although the city eventually approved a modified site plan, Soderberg still objected and threatened court action.

Last week, Soderberg and the Wards met to work out a compromise and indications were that an agreement was close to being reached. Don Ward said that changes in the heighth and roof pitch of their building plans allowed Soderberg a better view of the lake from his second floor windows. Soderberg said that there were still some minor points to work out but that it looked as though they would be settled.

According to Ward, plans are still to start construction on the new building this fall.

The Charlevoix High School Marching Band will have a new look this Friday night when it takes the field at halftime. County shorted on funds says board

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners believes that the County is not getting its fair share of Federal and State funds for the upkeep of bridges in the County.

In a recently-passed resolution, the Commissioners noted that since 1972, over $49 million has been allotted to 44 counties in the State from the Critical Bridge Program for the upkeep of local bridges, but Charlevoix County, although it has applied for funds, has not received any.

Fred Welch, engineer-manager of the Charlevoix County Road Commission, reports that five bridges in the County are in need of repair.

The bridge on Couch Road in Hudson Township is closed because of its unsafe condition; the bridge on Lake 28 Road across the C & O tracks in Marion Township is limited to five tons; the bridge on Rogers Road between M-66 and M-32 across the Jordan River is operating on a "no overload" basis; the bridge to Holy Island carries a limited load; and a major bridge on the Bear River Road is limited to two tons. The Road Commission has recently requested a grant to $249,000 to repair the latter bridge.

Pointing out the inequities of bridge funding, Welch says that since 1973, Chippewa County has received $1,847,000 for work on eight bridges, and Tuscola County has received a similiarly large amount for work on 10 bridges.

The resolution by the County Board of Commissioners concludes with a request that a "full and complete inquiry be made as to how the Advisory Committee allocates the Federal and State Critical Bridge Funds, and if necessary, legislation be drafted to insure an equitable distribution of funds for all counties within the State of Michigan."

Copies of the resolution have been sent to Governor Milliken, the Michigan Department of Transportation, Representatives Ralph Ostling and Steve Andrews, State Senator Mitch Irwin, the Michigan Association of Counties, and members of the Critical Bridge Advisory Committee.

Knight on the Town

One day last week

I was walking down Michigan Avenue minding my own business the other day when a chipmunk scampered across my path with his cheeks full and scowl on his face

I had to chuckle at the sight and, to my surprise, he stopped in his tracks turned to me and stood up defiantly on his hind legs.

"Mmff's suu pmmy?" he said still scowling

"I'm sorry but I can't understand a word you are saying," I said.

He spit out two chestnuts and repeated, "What's so funny?"

"Well," I said, "You looked rather comical just now with those chestnuts in your mouth. You reminded me of a, [illegible]"

"Chipmunk?" he said.

"That's it!" I replied.

"I suppose you thought we carried chestnuts around in backpacks," said the chipmunk with a tone of sarcasm creeping into his squeeky voice.

"I'm sorry," I said, "But you little critters just strike me funny when you get so industrious, so humanlike."

"That's a laugh," he said, "You've been watching too much Walt Disney. Calling us humanlike is a misnomer of the first degree. I'm almost insulted."

Obviously, I thought, this chipmunk rolled out of the wrong side of the tree this morning. But my curiosity was piqued and I continued the conversation.

"What have you got against humans?" I said, "Most of us are really very civilized."

"About all I'll say for you guys is that you make good peanut brittle," he said, "Other than that, it amazes me how you survive sometimes. For instance, what are you doing today? Right now?"

"Taking a walk."

"A walk? Winter is coming and you're taking a walk? Hah! That's so typical," he said shaking his head, "Every autumn it's the same story. You humans just lounge around looking at the pretty leaves, which you end up cussing at and stuffing into garbage bags anyway, and act as if life is going to go on merrily forever. You get so blissed out that even when the snow begins to fly you think that's pretty too at first but wind up cussing again when you have to shovel it around. And to think you're laughing at me! Your act is the real comedy."

Said I, "Would you respect us more if we ran around with chestnuts in our mouths looking like, uh..."

"Chipmanks?" said he, "It never occurred to me but now that I think of it, you could fit a heckuva lot of chestnuts in that mouth of yours. Want to try?"

"Sorry, I'm not into roughage," I replied.

"I figured as much," said the chipmunk with a sigh and he went to fetch the nuts he had been carrying.

"I really think that your outlook is much too negative," I persisted, "I can relate to your need to stock up for the winter but there's nothing wrong with, as we say, stopping to smell the roses occasionally. This can be a very enjoyable time of year. A quiet time to reflect, a time for fellowship and appreciation of nature's beauty."

"Wow," he said shaking his head again, "You really have been watching too much Disney. I suppose you believe that every fall the bears cuddle up next to big alarm clocks set for April, too."

If nothing else, his pragmatism was admirable. There was no use arguing. Just before he stuffed his cheeks again, he leveled a stare at me and pointed a tiny finger.

"Go ahead. Take your walk. Reflect all you want on nature," he said, "But don't come looking for me around Christmas time when you have an open fire and need some chestnuts for roasting. If you had any sense at all you'd be working now, not standing here talking to a chipmunk."

There, I thought as he bounded off, he might have a point.

School board appointees

Gibbons answered the questions about his philosophy of educational as follows:

"It is my opinion that ultimately it is the responsibility of the school to not only prepare, but to provide the students with the necessary mental tools to effectively manage their own lives. In order to accomplish that end, it is absolutely imperative that the school teach the student to be literate, that is to be able to communicate effectively and to understand four-function (i.e. addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division) arithmetic.

"Finally, I might add that a child by nature possesses a certain inquisitiveness about his or her immediate surroundings. Teachers, and especially those working with the younger students, are most appreciative of this factor. The educational process should not only enhance this natural inquisitiveness but capitalize on it in terms of acquiring academic skills. These are the kinds of educational concepts which must be consciously dealt with in order for the educational process to be successful.

"As a graduate of Charlevoix High School, I am particularly pleased by having been afforded this opportunity to participate at a board member level in working with the school district programs. I anticipate a hard work challenge but a rewarding one. After all, I have a personal interest at stake in that in a few short years, I will have three children in the high school program and a long range interest as a member of this community."

The Charlevoix Historical Society will meet at 8 p.m. on October 7 at the Harsha House. The program will be on the heritage of Stanley Hammond and Doris Hammond Saunders which will include a history of the Van Norman Huntington and Hammond families. The story of these families, which date back to 1838, will be told by Doris Saunders. The public is invited.

Bob Clock

Harvest is a surprise

Considering the fecundity of Mother Earth, I marvel that there should ever be food shortages, famine, starvation — or even inflation at the grocery store.

These thoughts occurred to me over the weekend as I started to harvest potatoes at the Clocks' city garden plot.

To put the following into perspective, you must know that I haven't spent nearly as much time as I should have at the city garden this summer. I missed the first good planting weekend in early May because I happened to be out of town. Subsequent weekends in May it rained.

As a result, my garden was planted later than it should have been — most of it after the middle of June.

Then during the summer I had to steal time from the kids' baseball games and household chores to water and weed. I can attest to the fact that the garden had very little tender, loving care.

Of course, there was that awful August drought to contend with — coupled with the most perfect swimming weather Northern Michigan has ever known. Evenings when I should have been toting water to my withering crops I was paddling around in the surf.

In the meantime, potato bugs moved in, whole battalions of them and all famished. I dusted my vines with Sevin whenever I had a chance, but the little critters seemed to enjoy wallowing in the deadly chemical because they were fruitful and multiplied.

Every time a new leaf appeared, a potato bug was waiting to eat it.

That is why I didn't hold out much hope for my potato crop and it was with a heavy heart I plunged my spade next to the first plant in the first row last Saturday afternoon.

After the earth was loose, I grabbed the scrawny plant by the throat and lifted it. I was stunned to find six or seven large, firm, white potatoes clinging to its roots — more than enough for a meal for the entire family.

"It's a fluke," I told myself and moved to the next plant. I was even more surprised to find a similar nest of potatoes clinging to its roots.

"It's the certified seed," I assured myself as I moved down the row filling my big grocery bag with prize winning potatoes. "Things will be different when I get to the fruit-cellar rejects in the third row."

But things weren't any different. The potatoes in the third row — a long, dark [illegible] — were just as fine as those grown from certified seed.

When I first got into potatoes a few years ago, I considered myself lucky if the crop lasted through Thanksgiving. The next year we had home-grown potatoes for Christmas. The following year our supply ran out in mid-February. But this year our crop should last right through the winter — with plenty of seed potatoes left over for planting next spring.

Of course, man does not live by potatoes alone. But I am astounded at how many of the good things of life — potatoes, tomatoes, squash, onions, lettuce, carrots, beets, spinach, beans, cabbage, turnips, rhubarb, raspberries, broccoli, brussels sprouts, corn — can be produced in this hostile climate with so little effort.

Naturally, one would be hard-put to grow vegetables in the Great Gobi Desert, but I am sure there would be enough food to feed the world's billions of starving inhabitants if only a fraction of the world's arable land were put into production.

Certainly if bumper crops potato crops can be grown out north of the 45th parallel, no one in North America should go to bed hungry.

Letters: Quote clarified, economy ideas

Not anti-business as implied

Dear Editor

In a recent issue of your newspaper which was sent to me, an extensive letter was written by several employees of Consumers Power's Big Rock Nuclear Plant which selectively quoted portions of a speech by Dr. Peter Metzger, a public affairs official with the Public Service Company of Colorado, which in turn selectively quoted from testimony given by me to the President's Commission on the accident at Three Mile Island.

The selective quotation was intended to support Dr. Metzger's claim that intervenors opposing nuclear power plants do so ignorantly and would do so successfully if they only had money and not because they are right.

It also implied that in my current position as the Chief of the Hazardous Waste Section of the Department of Justice, I am responsible for writing the new regulations governing hazardous waste. Since the premise of the letter from the Big Rock employees was truth, I thought a little truth would be appropriate and trust that you will publish this letter

The statements which are made to the President's Commission on the accident at Three Mile Island, the full text of which is available in the report of that Commission, were made in the context of the following basic philosophical discussion

First, that I as a lawyer do not pretend to understand the full technology of nuclear power and relied instead upon competent experts. That those competent experts were employed by organizations like the Natural Resources Defense Council, the Union of Concerned Scientists, the Sierra Club, etc. That those experts had convinced me that they knew what they were talking about and that what they were talking about was certain hazards associated with nuclear power

As a lawyer I knew that the effort to make those hazards obvious to people who were deciding whether to license nuclear power plants required enormous financial resources well beyond the capability of any one or combination of environmental or citizen groups

However, if such resources were available so that these groups could make their case on the world, I felt confident that rational decision makers would conclude that nuclear plants should not be licensed. If the Big Rock employees felt confident that nuclear power could pass muster in a fair fight, they would support the kind of intervening funding which I support - namely, funds to be paid to citizens only to the extent that they make a valuable and nonredundant contribution to the development of an adequate record.

Such a fair fight over any proposed licensing of a nuclear plant would be a good test of the issue of whether nuclear power is or is not acceptable.

A second point worth emphasizing is that Dr. Metzger understands as little about the value and competence of the anti-nuclear movement as he does about my responsibilities at the Department of Justice.

I do not write regulations for any subject, including hazardous waste.

I enforce regulations written by others, a position consistent with my position in the nuclear area in which I relied upon the experties of others far more competent than I to make the substantive case and I acted as the lawyer presenting that case forcefully [illegible].

In addition, I think I am no more antinuclear than was the little boy who pointed out that the king had no clothes antinudity. I merely state what I understand the facts to be and if people conclude from that that no nuclear plant should be built, I am not the one who is anti-nuclear, it is the country which is antinuclear

Lastly, I am not [illegible] antibusiness I am probusiness and particularly pro responsible free enterprise business. Such business does not go to Congress to obtain limits to their liabilities for engaging in business (such as the Price Anderson Act provides to the nuclear industry), nor does such industry expect the Federal Government to build facilities for them to store the waste which they generate in their business (as the nuclear power industry proposed for Congress to do), nor does such a business depend upon the Federal Government to fund the bulk of the research activities to support their technology (as the nuclear industry does).

I think that I am much more pro-business than those pro-nuclear people who want to have the benefit of a free enterprise system, to wit the ability to do what they would like to do, without the responsibilities

For Commoner

To the Editor:

Money was created by the use of gold or silver as a representative of values and the conveyance of a transportable exchange. Public banks were invented in the 17th century to protect the citizens and owners of money from robbery and murder.

A gradual change began when private ownership of banks were organized and promissory values such as the time factor of interest on loans, bonds, mortgages and paper money came into use. Paper money was excepted as a controlled identification of values by various governments around the world.

But this never established any fixed values between governments or individual ownerships. Thus began a free-for-all exercise to achieve individual social security by money power and wealth by accumulation. This is called free enterprise capitalism and is a lump dumping of all exchange values for a profit.

The present day money manipulaters are investment owned, organized for profit corporations that use such slogans as more money for your money. These money marketeers are the promoters of speculation in real estate, stocks, bonds, commodities and lotteries which create a prosperity by adulterated investments that are actually a monetary game of something for nothing.

The independent farmer, manufacturer, business people and working consumers have no real monetary stability when all the exchange values are subject to a dictum of capitalistic prosperity by inflationary speculation which helps maintain high cost interest rates.

Only the U.S. Congress has the power to coin money and set the value thereof, which is in fact a total obligation of all the people. Therefore we the people guarantee the value of all the money issued by our government. There should be a U.S. Public Service Bank with a revolving loan service for all public works and a national control of monetary values by taxation on speculative and excessive incomes. There is no need to pay tribute in tax exempt bonds to feed the private privilege of accumulated wealth. In the exchange of true values there isn't any [illegible].

The inequities of capitalistic economies are ignored by the Republican, Democratic and third party platforms and candidates as a valid political problem. The Citizens Party with Barry Commoner has the only platform with a realistic approach to the deficiency of capitalism's monetary economics.

Fed up with nuke debate

To the Courier:

Enough is enough...every issue of your once fine local newspaper now has at least one, two, or three articles, letters, or reports on the nuclear power controversy. I find many of the long-winded rambling, alarmist letters, often from persons far outside the area, particularly offensive. Even more disturbing are the comments by staff members that presume to be experts, and that unfortunately carry a lot of weight with readers who do not know the qualifications (or lack of) of these individuals.

Bob Clock, in the September 24 issue, feels that the fact an issue is on a ballot in a State, "...should serve notice to electric utilities, etc., etc..." Baloney!

An issue being on a ballot simply means that the State's requirement for referendum has been met; nothing more, nothing less.

As to a shareholder's patience wearing mighty thin, he is correct, but for the wrong reason. In shareholders meeting in utilities all over the country, anti-nuclear proposals have gone down to overwhelming defeat; I know of none that have even approached support of ten percent of the shares voted. They are impatient with a system that allows a vociferous few to add to the costs of all.

As to the rate payers patience...watch their joyous reaction to the increased fuel adjustment charges that are required when reduced nuclear generation requires use of the more expensive alternative energy sources.

Mr. Clock is right when he calls nuclear power "risky"...most activities are (consider transportation: airplanes, automobiles, even bikes, Bob; medicine: x-rays, prescriptions, operations; recreation: swimming, skiing, competitive sports...and on and on...but do we ban these activities?) But, when he favors substituting coal for nuclear power, he is favoring substituting known death for risk...he might as well urge substituting arsenic for aspirin.

Rather than arguing the pros and cons in every issue, how about adding a once a month supplement in which all this junk (and I include this letter) could be printed on toilet tissue. In that manner it would at least have redeeming social value and offer a true service to the community.

"I do notice that people watch the specials more than they did before," she added.

Mrs. Walker agreed with Young, saying, "the foundry has tried to keep as many people working as possible."

The timing of the lay-offs last winter made business difficult for the town's only super market, Glens, which moved from its old 12,000 square foot store to its new 20,000 square foot store opening last Nov. 2.

"Food stamps increased by 50 per cent," Mark Weisler, store manager, said. "Buying patterns changed. People are buying lower priced items and food like potatoes and macaroni that can be spread out longer. Right now the teachers are using a lot of food stamps.

"I'm getting lots of job applications, but we aren't hiring anybody," the store manager continued. "When we opened this store I had 37 employees. Now I have 32. I just haven't replaced those who left to go to college or quit for [illegible].

"Employment died overnight, but it won't comeback over night, but our business hasn't been bad. We didn't have the usual after summer slump.
